We won't go back –Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford pledged Thursday night that American forces "will not go back" to Indochina but asked Congress to give Cambodia the supplies it needs to withstand communist - backed insurgents until peace can be negotiated.

Ford appealed to Congress to approve the $222 million in military aid he has asked for Cambodia, whose capital Phnom Penh is surrounded by attacking rebel troops.

Earlier a congressman just back from Southeast Asia said "the war is lost in Cambodia," and a colleague urged the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government to surrender.

Ford gave three reasons why Congress should approve the aid:

- "Humanitarian needs," including protecting the lives of Lon Nol supporters.
- Protecting the legitimacy of negotiation to settle dispute.
- The constancy of American commitment to its friends and allies.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian government task force plunged into swamplands surrounding Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport Thursday in a desperate counter offensive seeking to push back rebel gunners and keep open the capital's only supply line.

Rebel forces forced a temporary halt of the U.S. rice-and-ammunition airlift Wednesday. Only a limited number of flights were resumed Thursday.

In Washington, the U.S. state department denied Thursday that the U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh had ordered the evacuation of any Americans from Cambodia.

Dolphins lead men to free trapped kin

MOSCOW (UPI) — A school of dolphins sought and got aid from Black Sea fishermen to save the life of a baby dolphin, according to the newspaper Trud. The dolphins surrounded the fishermen's boat, then began swimming in a specific direction. The fishermen followed until they reached a marker buoy and found a young dolphin entangled in a fishing net.

They freed the dolphin and the school of dolphins accompanied the boat back to its original location, apparently as a gesture of gratitude, the newspaper said.

'Mood in Israel is ugly'

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

TEL AVIV — Israel's leadership senses that American objections preclude any immediate retaliation against terrorist bases following the battle of the Savoy Hotel here, informed offficial sources said Thursday.

Seven Arab commandos died in the battle Thursday morning and an eigth was captured about noon, military sources reported. Losses on the Israeli side were placed at seven killed (four civilians and three soldiers) and 19 persons wounded.

U.S. opposition to a counterattack on bases in Arab countries takes precedence in the Jerusalem leadership's eyes over the need to meet the demand by Israeli public opinion for revenge, the sources said, one of them adding:

"The mood in Israel is ugly."

Premier Yitzhak Rabin took pains to say that the terrorist attack on Israel's largest city would not be allowed to jeopardize U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace mission in the Middle East.

Earlier in the day, the cabinet met in extraordinary session and issued a communique which said the commando raid "was timed for a political purpose — to foil any chance of progress for a political settlement through negotiations."

The cabinet declared, however, that terrorist activity would not "move the government from its policy of political efforts for progress towards peace."

Jerusalem's political leaders think that an Israeli raid now on a terrorist stronghold in an Arab country would almost certainly ruin the Kissinger mission, the official source told The Los Angeles Times. He knew of no direct U.S. warning, but added that it was unnecessary.

The impotent position Israel is now in will likely hurt Rabin's already slipping popularity. A public opinion poll in late February reported that the prime minister's popularity had gone down from 64.8 per cent in September, 1974, to 32.2 per cent now. Rabin is strongly supporting the Kissinger approach.

On hand during the critical hours of the siege of the Savoy Hotel were Rabin, Defence Minister Shimon Peres and Chief of Staff Mordechai Gur. "They were calling the shots," a military source said.

It was their decision to storm the four-story structure early Thursday.

However, a terrorist inside the building touched off explosives that demolished the third floor of the structure,

Casa Loma agreement void—Grit

Charges that the transaction between the provincial government and Casa Loma motel in Burnaby was "completely illegal" were made in the Legislature Thursday, and quickly denied by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

Allan Williams (L—Vancouver-Howe Sound), the man who touched off the Columbia River Treaty furor on Feb. 19, made the charge during debate on a motion of non-confidence in the government's $3.2 billion budget.

Williams
. . . B.C. 'entrapped'

Macdonald
. . . 'wrecking crew'

Directing his attack at Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, absent from the house at the time, Williams said Nicolson had permitted the government "to become entrapped in an agreement it should not be entrapped in."

Casa Loma, a 125-unit motel on Kingsway, is in process of being purchased by the government for $3.5 million for use as a senior citizen residence.

The government has already admitted that in the initial stages of the deal Casa Loma owners were advanced $565,000 as a down payment on the $3.5 million.

Nicolson earlier tabled a memorandum of agreement in the Legislature which contained details of the transaction.

Willliams said the entire agreement was predicated on the government's Dunhill Development Corp. obtaining rezoning approval from Burnaby municipal council in order to use the motel for its senior citizen role.

Burnaby council to date has rejected the rezoning bid.

Williams said that meant the agreement on which the government had already advanced more than half-a-million dollars was completely void.

He said the government had illegally issued the advance on an agreement "that was inoperative until Burnaby council agreed to rezone the property" and that, he said, is something Burnaby council yet has to do.

Much of the money, Williams claimed, was used by Casa Loma to pay off a mortgage against another company also owned by the Casa Loma owners. "It is now beyond the reach of the government," he said.

Williams also claimed the mortgage against the Casa Loma property was registered illegally and that, unless the government could extricate itself from "this mess" by scrapping the present agreement, it could end up picking up the entire bill but without the property.

In addition to what Williams described as a terrible performance by Nicolson and Dunhill, he said there were more bills to come as Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. had insisted the development be brought up to strict CMHC standards.

A manufacturing first

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and mail says that for the first time the average hourly earnings of workers in Canada's manufacturing industries have surpassed those of their United States counterparts.

The newspaper says the American workers made 41 cents an hour more than Canadians in December, 1967, but by December, 1974, Canadian workers were getting nine cents an hour more.

The preliminary figure for Canada is $4.73 an hour, compared with the U.S. figure of $4.64, it says, adding that the averages are for gross earnings and include overtime and shift differentials.

The Globe and Mail refers to comparisons made in July, 1974, by Canada Labor Views Reports which show the average Canadian earnings to be higher in four sectors.

In a month when the U.S. average for all manufacturing was six cents more than the Canadian figure, the Canadian average for paper and allied industries was 65 cents higher than the U.S. figure, the newspaper says.

$100,000 ransom frees five

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — A bank manager paid $100,000 ransom Thursday to two masked men who held members of his family captive at gunpoint for almost 10 hours in their home in nearby Orsainville, Que., and then fled.

Quebec Provincial Police said the two armed extortionists burst into the home of Andre Bernier, manager of a Provincial Bank branch here, about 10 p.m. Wednesday.

They kept Bernier, his 35-year-old wife Danielle, their daughters Linda, 13, and France, 7, and an aunt, Regine Menard, 55, captive until the bank opened Thursday morning.

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — City council will consider at its April 1 meeting, a curfew aimed at reducing juvenile delinquency, Mayor Jack Campbell said Thursday.

Filmsy excuse for a crime

The cast of characters was properly assembled in downtown Victoria at about 11 a.m. Thursday. The backstage people were in their places. The props were where they should have been.

The only trouble was nobody remembered to tell the police what it was all about.

As a result, a Victoria police report said a woman in a dentist's office at View and Douglas phoned headquarters to report she had heard screams and looked outside to see a young woman being dragged into a car, which left the scene rapidly.

But not so rapidly that she didn't get the licence number. Police traced the owner, who said his 17-year-old son had the car. The son said the "kidnapping" was being filmed as a school project.

The son was cautioned that no such films should be made without police being notified.

Police discover fourth skeleton

SEATTLE (AP) — King County police said Thursday they had found and identified skeletal remains of a fourth person in the fifth day of searching a heavily wooded area east of Seattle.

Police said the latest remains found have been identified as those of Linda Ann Healy, 21, a University of Washington co-ed missing since Feb. 1, 1974.

Police used dental charts to identify the remains of Miss Healy, who was the first of several women reported missing in the Puget Sound area in 1974.

Police have found two skulls and parts of two others in the wooded area 23 miles east of Seattle.

The remains of Brenda Carol Ball, 22, of Burien, were identified by police Tuesday. She had been missing since June 1, 1974, when she was last seen at a Seattle tavern.

Police said identification of one of the partial skulls would be difficult because the teeth are missing. Efforts are continuing to match dental charts with the second skull.

However, Dale Rancourt of Anchorage, Alaska, said earlier that authorities told him they tentatively had identified the remains of the second skull as being his daughter's.

The area where the remains were found is within a five-mile radius of where the skeletal remains of Denise Naslund, 18, of Seattle and Janice Ott, 23, of Issaquah were found last September.

Mrs. Ott and Miss Naslund disappeared July 14, 1974, from Lake Sammamish State Park, about 15 miles east of Seattle.

Sima's touch is sure

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — Sima Gorelenko wants to win about $5,000 in the next Olympic lottery, and she just may.

After all, she has won money in every Olympic lottery draw so far — eight winners out of 18 tickets. Seven of the tickets were worth $100 each and one $5,000.

Her luck is so incredible that fellow workers at the Kaufman Footwear Inc. plant here hoped some would rub off on them. They asked her to join them in purchasing five tickets on the draw last month, which she did.

But she bought four tickets of her own.

Three of her four won $100 each. None of the five jointly-owned tickets was a winner.

Her Olympic Lottery luck began with the first two tickets she bought for the April draw last year.

She sensed before the draw that she would win the $5,000 — and she did. Then came seven other winners.

A mathematics professor at the University of Waterloo says the odds on her luck are about one in 19 billion.

Mines given hope for better deal

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

● Oil, gas directors see some help. Page 7

A six-man delegation from the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines came away from meetings Thursday with the NDP cabinet and Mines Minister Leo Nimsick "much encouraged" by the government's attitude to mining and hopeful of changes in mining and tax laws.

In a brief presented to the cabinet the chamber asked the government to provide security of tenure to the discoverers and developers of new mines in the province.

The chamber has 1,800 individual and corporate members, including prospectors, placer miners, exploration companies and producing mines as well as people and firms engaged in a wide variety of related equipment-supply-service businesses.

The brief asks that "a mine finder have an assured right to develop and mine a discovery with security of tenure, subject to compliances with the rules and regulations governing extraction."

The brief also asks that the rights and obligations of the private sector of the mining industry and of the government be clearly defined and that mine developers receive a fair return on investment as well as the return of capital.

It reminds the government that no new mines have started up in the province since 1972 and that many existing mines are curtailing their operations or closing down.

"We are very much encouraged by the government's attitude," said Robert Sheldon of Vancouver, chamber president, in an interview Thursday afternoon. "They seem to recognize that mining is dead and have asked us for our recommendations to remedy the situation.

"We talked of fundamental changes, changes which they probably didn't think were as important as we do but we came away believing they are concerned with the health of the mining industry.

"There was no dispute in our meeting with the cabinet," Sheldon added.

He said the group met the cabinet Thursday morning "and they were prepared to accept our concern with regard to technical and other aspects of the industry."

Casa Loma pact void—Grit

"In recouping itself from this mess, the government has to bring these units up to CMHC standards or it won't get a penny," Williams said.

"This is the kind of action we get."

CMHC is withholding $3.1 million in mortgage funds, 90 per cent of the total cost, "until certain problems are resolved."

It was left to Macdonald to close the debate on the non-confidence motion and he did so with a scathing attack on Wililams' charges and the opposition in general.

"The rezoning clause was built into the agreement to protect the crown," Macdonald said. "If by the 31st of May we haven't got the rezoning, we get our money back. The money is secured by mortgage and we get it back plus 12 per cent interest."

The attorney-general said the rezoning issue had been introduced as a red herring "by the wrecking crew. But you won't succeed," he shouted over opposition heckling.

Macdonald said the Casa Loma issue was not a legal problem. "It's a political battle for homes for senior citizens. Let's get that wrecking gang out of the way and get on with building."

Earlier in the day, during question period, Nicolson had come under fire on the same issue.

He was asked by Don Phillips (SC — South Peace River) if he could reassure the house that "no work was done on other premises and charged to Casa Loma" accounts.

Phillips said Wednesday that he had a copy of work orders proving that work had been done on the homes of the original owners of the motel and charged to the main construction account.

Phillips was eventually ruled out of order when it was established the work orders were issued prior to government involvement.

Williams had other questions.

He wanted to know on what date Burnaby council informed Nicolson that Casa Loma had been rezoned to make the senior citizen centre possible.

Nicolson said he would take the question "as notice," meaning he will consider providing a reply later.

Besieged man dies in blaze

LESLIEVILLE, Alta. (CP) — A house in which an armed man was holed up near this community, about 35 miles northwest of Red Deer, burned to the ground Thursday afternoon and the body of an elderly man was found in the burned-out wreckage.

Red Deer coroner Dr. R. C. Cooper was at the scene and the coroner's office in Red Deer confirmed a death in the incident.

RCMP became involved in the incident when an order for the removal of the man was issued under the Mental Health Act as a result of sporadic shooting during the weekend. Gunfire erupted from the house when police arrived Tuesday and the building was cordoned off.

Military assistance in the form of an armored personnel carrier and two helicopters arrived to assist the RCMP in approaching the house. Efforts to flush the man out with tear gas failed.

ANYTIME the discussion turns to today's teaching methods, today's rules of school conduct, I try to keep a barf bag handy. Being of the old geezer belief that schools should be strong advocates of manners, respect and a few other now frowned-upon niceties, I am usually appalled at the permissive attitudes that have afflicted both the school system and far too many parents who have abdicated their disciplinary roles.

There is, however, a light at the end of the tunnel, a new concept that is, in actuality, nothing but old time schooling. A revival, a return to basics and if you'll keep your hands down for a few moments, I'll report on what is taking place in California.

IN PASADENA they've got a school called the John Marshall Fundamental School. The school board that set it up and the teachers who man it, quite openly admit they are part of a conservative revolt against permissive experimental schools with open classrooms, controversial textbooks, new math, no grades, no dress code and weak discipline.

In this school, they begin the school day with 10 to 15 minutes of character building. They have discussions on morality, on pride, respect, patriotism and politeness. And all students (the school goes from kindergarten through Grade 12) and teachers must be neatly dressed. Oh yes, if they step out of line, they can be paddled right on the spot.

THE CURRICULUM itself is concerned to a great degree with the basics. Phonetics, reading, writing, spelling, fundamental math. Yes, they have tests and they are given marks and if they don't pass the tests, no advancement to the next grade. Those at John Marshall Foundation feel the experimenters in school work have caused a "mad dash to illiteracy" and hope to reverse the trend.

Now the way they set this school up was on a strictly voluntary basis — both from a pupil as well as a teacher standpoint. They have had absolutely no problem getting teachers and, in fact, have a waiting list of teachers.

THAT WAITING LIST is considerably greater with pupils. At last tally, there were 1,500 students hoping to be accepted, but there seemed little chance that too many of them would get the chance, because those already enrolled seem to want to stay. In the first year of operation, only 20 students transferred back to the regular-type schools and only six have asked for transfers in this school term.

Dr. Henry Myers, Jr., is the guiding light behind the project and he says it was no great feat establishing the school. "I feel," he told a Los Angeles reporter, "like the guy who nudged a snowball off a cliff." He points to a school in Palo Alto that has gone the same route and how parents tented on the school grounds the night before enrollment opened and that all classroom spots were filled in 10 minutes.

THE IDEA is spreading. Three such schools are scheduled for opening in Maryland, one is in operation in Charlotte, North Carolina, and they're discussing the plan in West Virginia, Wisconsin and Virginia.

Myers has received more than 1,000 queries on the school and has entertained delegations from such places as London, Eng., Winnipeg and Vancouver.

"It's not some right-wing, military program where we teach kids to march and salute. We've just gone back to really teaching them and discipline is a key."

MYERS AGREES it is tough at John Marshall. He says students must be neat and clean, no litter. He disclaims any credit for a fair amounts of homework right from kindergarten days. He says the school must be kept clean, no litter. Hedisc laims any credit for a new idea, stating instead that what they are doing is merely applying the teaching concepts of 20 or 30 years ago and that there are basic truths about discipline, about learning by rote, not "osmosis."

How well will students from the fundamental school do when they come in direct competition from those in the regular school system?

MRS. SUSAN MILLS, a member of the Pasadena school board, says she is concerned for the students not getting the proper basics.

"It bothers me a great deal," she said, "because many children in experimental schools now lack basic skills. I think students who have competed in the traditional schools will swamp them."

I suggest we might have a parallel in our own area. The private schools, like Brentwood, Shawnigan Lake, are run on traditionalist education theories and the rate of teaching success at such schools is considerably higher than in our public school system. Don't argue — the results are there for all to see.

Anyone for traditional schools here?

Israel

Nobody could say definitely how many persons were inside the hotel when the Arabs invaded it shortly after landing Wednesday night and shooting their way from the beach to the nearby hotel. Military intelligence director Shlomo Gazit estimated that there were 10 hostages taken in the hotel, but he hedged on this number because apparently two persons hid in the hotel without being discovered by the Arabs.

The battle reduced the hotel to a crumbling heap of brick and plaster with one entire corner sheared away.

The Israeli navy Thursday detained a 150-ton sailing vessel suspected of being the vehicle that transported the two outboard dinghies and eight terrorists close enough to the Tel Aviv coastline to shove off.

Information from the surviving commando, captured in the ruins of the Savoy nearly seven hours after his comrades had been killed, will fill in many of the gaps in what authorities know about the raiders, their origin and planning, said intelligence chief Gazit.

At a press conference, Gazit had no apologies for the government's policy of refusing to negotiate with terrorists, no matter how many hostages they hold.

"There was dialogue with them, but not really negotiation. We did offer them only one thing, and that was unconditional surrender," said the general.

"We have a policy that we don't believe in negotiating on that kind of blackmail basis with terrorists. If you release 10 prisoners now, the next time they will say please get out of Tel Aviv," said Gazit.

Your good health

By G. C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has emphysema, and we live about a block from a lake. He wondered if we moved away if this would help him.

There are about six other men here by the lake who have it. What is your opinion — E.H.V.

It is doubtful that the humidity produced by the lake has any effect on emphysema.

The nature of emphysema is such that victims often grope for any factor that they suspect makes breathing more difficult.

It seems logical that simply taking a vacation away from the lake to a dry area would indicate to your husband whether or not the lake is or is not a factor, though it is doubtful.

What part does sex have in the breakup of a marriage? It's a complicated question. But there's no doubt that today's liberated attitude toward sex has led to unreal expectations and a "tyranny of performance". A whole lot of trouble

BARWICK, Ga. (UPI) — A two-inch hole drilled under the Piscola Creek bridge near this southwest Georgia community has swallowed the creek, two 40-foot bridge pilings and is working on the bridge.

The fast-expanding hole was first discovered by farmer Jack Freeman last Saturday when it was about the size of a 55-gallon drum.

"I drove across the bridge and saw the creek running under it on one side and didn't see it coming out the other side," Freeman said. "I knew something was up."

Since then local residents have watched two 40-foot pilings that supported the bridge drop into the gaping opening and disappear without a bubble. The state highway department has closed the road leading to the bridge.

A highway official said the hole must have started during the middle of last week when a highway crew making soundings for a new creek bridge drilled a two-inch hole 85 feet into the creek bed.

"The cavity must have been there all along," said the official, who declined to be identified.

"We're going to divert the creek by Saturday, we hope, and try and fill the hole and build a temporary bridge just for the farmers," he said. "We won't open the road up until we get the new bridge."

Freeman said it's common knowledge among the area farmers that when they drill for water, they're going to come upon underground cavities.

"I expect if you drill a hole in any of these ponds around here, they'd drain overnight, just like pulling a plug," he said.

Ross hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Federal Power Commission hearing ended Wednesday on a contested plan to raise Ross dam in Washington state and extend its reservoir into Canada.

Lawyers for six groups on either side of the issue ran through 67 hearing days in the space of eight months, and were given six months to prepare final arguments.

The B.C. government and environmental groups in Washington and Canada oppose the plan, saying the expanded reservoir would destry a priceless wilderness area in the Skagit valley.

More jobless, long periods

Scene changing for unemployed

OTTAWA (CP) — A manpower department report says the character of unemployment is changing and the prospect is for more people being unemployed for long periods unless trained.

The report was released at a Senate committee meeting Thursday and members were given a mixed report on how the manpower department is reacting.

The department established a new program about two years ago to help solve long-term unemployment problems.

At the same time, the proportion of money spent on an existing occupational training program has been declining since 1971.

The department report says programs such the Local Initiatives Program and Opportunities For Youth are aimed only at seasonal unemployment and cannot be a solution to the continuing problem.

Firms subsidized, probed

Attack pressed on shipbuilding

OTTAWA (CP) — The government played down opposition suggestions Thursday that a new shipbuilding program announced this week might conflict with a nationwide investigation into federal dredging contracts.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp and Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said in the Commons the new program and the investigation are separate questions.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) protested that some companies qualifying for subsidies under the shipbuilding program are under investigation for dredging contract irregularities.

He mentioned Marine Industries Ltd. of Quebec, one of several in line for shipbuilding assistance. The government is withholding a final payment to Marine Industries for a St. Lawrence River dredging contract until the investigation is complete.

McGrath said the government might find itself giving subsidies to Marine Industries at the same time as it is stalling on the $1.3 million final payment. The company has sued the government for the money.

Natives criticize Sharp statement

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian and Metis groups Thursday criticized statements made earlier in the week by Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp indicating Ottawa might make a final decision on the proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline before environmental studies have been completed.

In a joint press release the groups said Sharp's statements "inspire no confidence at all that the government . . . takes seriously its responsibility for safeguarding the rights of native people."

In related developments:

● The environment department is willing to place at the disposal of the Berger inquiry all the expertise and information it has available on a proposed Northern Canada natural gas pipeline, Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve said in Ottawa.

● The Berger inquiry takes to the road the first week of April in the first of 20 or more visits to Arctic communities that would be most directly affected by the project. The first three weeks of the inquiry into the $7 billion line are taking place in Yellowknife, N.W.T.

● Meanwhile, at least 20 species of Northern Canada birds are vulnerable to human activities, such as the construction of the Mackenzie Valley pipeline, the inquiry has been told. "All have in common certain vulnerability to potential impacts," Prof. John Livingstone of York University told Mr. Justice Thomas Berger's inquiry.

Mississippi oil-slicked

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — A 40-mile-long oil slick streamed Thursday down the Mississippi from two 20,000-barrel barges that ruptured during a collision which claimed the life of a towboat crewman.

The spill occurred when the towboat, pushing four barges, slammed into a bridge pier.

We still welcome Italians—Trudeau

ROME (CP) — An assurance that Italian immigrants are still welcome in Canada was given Thursday by Prime Minister Trudeau to his Italian counterpart, Aldo Moro.

A Canadian spokesman said the comment was made during a two-hour meeting between the two government leaders in which Moro expressed some concern about Canada's immigration policy.

However, Trudeau's assurance apparently satisfied Moro and the immigration question did not become the issue that some officials expected it to be in the talks.

Some 3.5 per cent of Canada's population is of Italian descent and the newly-instituted Ottawa review of immigration policy is reported to concern the government here. It already faces unemployment problems compounded by the possible return of Italians working in other European countries with growing unemployment.

Peace by barter

EVENTS ARE MOVING SWIFTLY in Southeast Asia with the imminent collapse of the Lon Nol government in Cambodia and the dangerously escalating revolt of the domestic opponents of President Nguyen Van Thieu in South Vietnam. In both countries communist forces continue to increase the military pressures with the same indiscriminate bombardments which have characterized their offensives in the past.

Resumption of the United States airlift to Phnom Penh, beleaguered capital of lovely Cambodia, is apparently too little too late to have any significant effect. What the Cambodian government forces lack, besides adequate military equipment, is competence: the will, skill and leadership to make them effective against fanatical, well trained and disciplined troops under the command of experienced, battle-toughened officers trained in North Vietnam. The odds are all against the Phnom Penh defenders.

The United States has belatedly recognized the true state of affairs. On Wednesday it ordered evacuation of all "non-essential" nationals. It was following the lead of other governments with representatives in the capital.

In South Vietnam, President Thieu's position is becoming less and less secure. In the face of bold and blunt criticisms from such influential leaders as former army general Duong Van Minh that the state has become a tyranny, and with indications of his alliance with the Roman Catholic leader Father Tran Hua Thanh and the Buddhists' Trich Tri Quang, the president has moved with perhaps immoderate response. He has shut down opposition newspapers and sent dissenting newsmen to prison.

It has been the history of South Vietnam, however, that dissidents appear to thrive on persecution. Harsh deterrents are apt to bring hot reactions.

While there is yet no sign of any coalition there is always the possibility that some acceptable leadership may offer as an alternative to President Thieu whose presence in government is claimed to be a chief obstacle to any negotiation by the communists. There is no guarantee, of course, that Hanoi would not find another excuse for continuing the military adventure even if President Thieu made the unlikely decision to step down. But the possibility is there.

In Cambodia the situation is different. President Lon Nol is on record as being willing to resign if he has become a barrier to a peace agreement with the communists.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, deposed chief of state but heading a "government-in-exile" in Peking, has made conditions for any negotiated peace. Among them is President Lon Nol's departure.

It sometimes seems that unless the United States is prepared to provide the sort of support that would reverse the fortunes of the tortured Southeast Asian states it would be better to leave them to settle their affairs by independent compromise. All the American aid is doing in Cambodia at the moment is prolonging the agony. And if South Vietnam is an example of the "peace with honor" Washington hopes to achieve it would perhaps be better to allow Saigon to make its own deal with the communists.

Power makes a difference

THE CENTRAL PROBLEM facing B.C. cities "is their chronic inability to pay for the services people need," said a booklet, the September 1972 issue of Democrat, wooing votes for the New Democrats in the election which they subsequently won. "Depending almost entirely on property taxes for revenue, municipalities must scramble to attract industrial and real estate interests in an endless attempt to secure a better tax base.

"The results are obvious. Developers and speculators are given a free hand to carve up our cities for their own profit, often with the lure of tax and other concessions. Lost revenue is picked up by placing an even greater tax burden on homeowners.

"In effect, homeowners are being forced to finance the destruction of their neighborhoods . . . while losing the right to control urban development in the process. . ."

The section devoted to a "new deal for cities" went on to describe what the NDP would do about it, including shifting municipal revenues from the property tax as a foremost change, but also, incidentally, "a major program of socially-owned housing . . . with the full participation of the residents and neighborhoods concerned," and a more mysterious restructuring of municipal governments "on the basis of local neighborhoods or communities to ensure that cities are democratically controlled by the people who live in them."

There is a clear emphasis here on local democracy, as one would expect from the New Democratic Party. But being in power has made a difference.

The first evidence of this was when the NDP government, having apparently subjected itself to municipal bylaws by an amendment to the Interpretation Act, nullified the action last fall through the Laws Declaratory Act, exempting itself from local laws on the use and development of land. Regardless of the plans and wishes of the local people, the government can put a building or development of any kind wherever it wants.

Now there is a sign that the government will not let local democracy stand in the way of its desires being satisfied even it it is not primarily involved. Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer has issued a warning, informally, that if three or four municipalities continue to impede new housing developments to prevent big influxes of people, the government may move to assert final control over municipal planning and zoning.

Ah, yes — cities democratically controlled by the people who live in them.

Ottawa Offbeat

Mr. Munro picks up an idea

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Their political opponents swear that the Liberal talent for power really flows from their skill at theft.

Routinely through all the 34 of the last 40 years they have ruled the land, the Liberals have simply lifted their best vote-grabbing ideas from the CCF-NDP.

Just ask NDP veterans Tommy Douglas and Stanley Knowles. They both watched it happen.

The biggest political idea heist of all was that vote-winning whiz-bang, family allowances.

But there have been others — the old age pension, unemployment insurance, collective bargaining for public service.

Right now it's coming through loud and clear from the taxpayers that collective bargaining for public servants wasn't really such a terrific idea after all.

For the way things have been working out in recent years in the post office, air and other transport, inspection services and other federal functions, the public servants have become the masters through the simple process of holding the public to ransom while Parliament and government, terrified of union power, does little except pay off.

But something is beginning to happen in this last wave of public service strikes with both Liberals and Conservatives starting to show a bit of courage and perhaps even muscle.

The Conservatives were first, and the Liberals, who so successfully pilfered NDP ideas, now are taking from the Tories.

It was only a couple of months ago that Otto Jelinek, one of the two Tories to survive the Liberal sweep, in last summer's election, of the Toronto ridings, proposed a possible cure for public service strike blackmail.

It was what he called "sector bargaining" for longer contracts.

He'd put all the different air transport services under one collective bargaining roof. Same with the railways. Ditto the inspection services.

Unions, providing the same basic public service but fragmented into differing trades and professions, would be brought under one roof for negotiations on contracts of two or more years.

All Otto Jelinek wanted, really, was some tilting of the scales back into better balance between the rights of the taxpayers to receive the services for which they pay and the rights of the public servants to shut them down.

There had to be a fairer sawoff between union freedom to strike and the public's right to freedom from extortion through harassment.

So along comes, of all unlikely people on his record, Labor Minister John Munro.

He even lifts some of Jelinek's own words.

And in a recommendation to cabinet he proposed sector bargaining through what he calls a Canada Labor Relations Council.

". . . there are too many bargaining points, too many bargaining agents and unions.

"The result (in the case of the air travel industry) as any holiday traveller in Canada knows, is something as exciting as the Olympic lottery.

"As he embarks on his holiday (or business trip) confident that the airline pilots are working and that the machinists are also on the job, there just may happen to be a walkout of ticket clerks and other personnel.

"And even if all these employees (federal public service and Crown Corporation Air Canada) are working, the trip still could be placed in jeopardy by striking air traffic controllers, technicians, airport electricians, firefighters or runway cleaners, baggage handlers, fuel pumpers.

"There are similar difficulties in the movement of grain, with risk of its steady flow being halted, if in the long stream of handling it, there is labor peace on the dockside, but not on the ships, the waterways, railways, or inspection services.

"It is clear," writes the labor minister to the cabinet, "that the system now lacks coherence and has a great potential for conflict."

He's telling the taxpayers!

They've known it for years, have howled their rage and frustration for years, but nobody in government was listening.

Deaf leaders?

From the Winnipeg Free Press

Perhaps labor leaders in Canada should take note of a groundswell among their members against sympathetic stoppages. In bad times, men are increasingly reluctant to inflict on their families shortages of money, groceries and other necessities because of another union's strikes.

During the illegal CN strike there were rumblings among angry members against leaders who had negotiated a bad contract and against a stoppage that was unnecessary. There are rumblings in the postal unions against any suggestion of a respect for picket lines that will leave members of other unions unemployed.

The feeling appears to be growing that it is better to have a job than to be out of work or out on strike. Some union leaders may not have noticed this. It may be that they do not spend enough time talking to their rank-and-file members.

First of two parts

Strikes and public service

By DONALD W. MUNRO, MP

All the evidence suggests that 1975 is going to see more and more disputes between labor and management in the public service. A special committee, drawn from the Senate and the House of Commons, has been named to look into the problem, and in particular, to make recommendations with respect to the Public Service Staff Relations Act which, in 1967, following the Heeney Report, introduced collective bargaining into the public service. As a member of that committee, I am becoming deeply disturbed at the direction employer-employee relations in the public service seem to be heading: as far as I can see, they're heading for more and more confrontations.

There must be a better way to ensure service to the public — which, after all, is what the public service was established to do.

The great mistake, I think — and it goes back to the Heeney Report prepared at Mr. Pearson's request — stems from a holus-bolus translation of industrial concepts and techniques in employer-employee relations into the staff relations field of the public service, a milieu in which those concepts and techniques just don't fit.

Thus, for example, attempts are made to set uniform pay and conditions of work for all employees of a given class in such widely differing departments as external affairs, public works and environment.

In addition, management (who, in industrial negotiations, decides on pay and such matters) is confined to the role of managing while Treasury Board becomes the "employer," and settles on pay and conditions of work. This divorce of the "management" function from the "pay settlement" function has two unfortunate defects.

In the first place, the Treasury Board is not as intimately aware as management of the problems facing employees in the performance of their duties and consequently is frequently unsympathetic to some of the employees' demands; secondly, management loses its concern for the employees at least in the sense that it is unable to adjust to employees' pay and conditions of work requirements. The overall effect of these shortcomings is that a gulf is developing between management and support staff: a morale problem that will be difficult to eradicate.

One of the other problems stemming from the mistaken notion that what works in industry will work just as well in the public service stems from the integrated nature of the public service and its inability, really, to digest trade union practices and still provide the public with the service for which it is paying.

A "picket line" is a trade union device. In an industrial plant, the picket line of the union can shut the plant down and, in doing so, cause hardship in those sectors of the economy served by that particular industry and, possibly, a reduction in dividends to the investor. In the public service, a picket line established by one union can bring public service in a variety of fields to a total halt and, in doing so, cause hardship throughout the nation and will inevitably breed deep annoyance in most taxpaying citizens. It can also force some non-striking personnel into an illegal position.

It is generally agreed that firemen, policemen, air traffic controllers, prison guards, and airfield runway cleaners (for example) are some of those who, unionized or not, can hardly avoid being declared "essential personnel" whose services are required to ensure the safety and-or security of the public.

Where is the strike weapon in such circumstances? And, if the strike weapon is not in their hands, what leverage do these classes of employees have to secure their just rights at the bargaining table? Their just rights, that is, in absolute terms and also in relation to other workers?

And if on a legal strike a picket line of "non-essential" workers is set up, are "essential" workers to be anathematized by their brothers in the union of the "non-essentials" for crossing that line, or penalized by their employers for not crossing it? And are both to incur the wrath of the general public for creating such a mess?

Is there no better way of dealing with labor disputes in the public service?

In a second article, I'd like to try my hand at some sort of alternative.

Unexpected challenge

By LUBOR J. ZINK
from Ottawa

These are trying times for the self-styled progressives. One by one their sanctified articles of faith are being challenged from unexpected quarters.

The latest blast hit the lib-left perversion of justice into mollycoddling of criminals. And it came, as did the Green Paper's "racial" camouflage of Quebec's fears of further large immigration, from within the fortress of correct thinking and trail-blazing enlightenment which is what makes it shocking to the apparatchiks who understand the difficult and delicate process of herding the masses in the desired direction.

To be sure, the Trudeau regime has been accused many times before now of making a mockery of the existing laws that seek to protect society from pathological criminals. But such accusations have usually come either from police organizations, victims of preventable crimes or from individuals whose outspoken views of the whole lib-left drift towards anarchy singled them out for concerted scorn and ridicule as abominable reactionaries.

Hon. Louis Robichaud who recently publicly condemned the government's perversion of justice in commuting all death sentences and letting dangerous criminals loose on parole, poses a problem for the character-assassination brigade. A former Grit premier of New Brunswick for 10 years, Mr. Robichaud cannot be simply put under the branding iron. After all, his life-long services to the Liberal party have been rewarded with appointment to the Senate and to the Order of Canada only a few years ago.

And as a lawyer with a QC behind his name, he must be presumed to speak with full knowledge of the fine points of the law.

So when Louis Robichaud blasts the federal government for crazy misadministration of justice and the penal system, he cannot be dismissed as a hopeless reactionary who simply does not understand the enlightened ways of the lib-left establishment. For Robichaud, though not a charter member of the Trudeau regime, is very much a product and part of that establishment.

What, then, prompted him to speak against the "progressive" orthodoxy which absolves the individual for any crimes he or she commits and blames the society instead?

Mr. Robichaud who will be only 50 this year (and cannot therefore be shrugged off as a senile old fool, has four children, one of whom is a teenage girl. Instead of theorizing along the prescribed "progressive" lines, Mr. Robichaud apparently visualized his daughter assaulted by a released or escaped criminal whose death sentence was commuted automatically to what now amounts to a few years of nominal "life imprisonment." All theorizing ended with the realization that the next victim could be his daughter instead of an impersonal digit in the lengthening statistics of rapes and murders committed by "rehabilitated" or escaped criminals.

Speaking as a father, rather than a Trudeau-supporting politician, Mr. Robichaud, QC, said that in case of such an attack on his daughter, he would take the life of the criminal himself if the law failed to do so.

I suspect that very few parents, if any, would hesitate to endorse Mr. Robichaud's sentiments and his stand on capital punishment. Nor can there be much doubt that a large majority of "ordinary" Canadians feel the same way and want to see a substantial tightening of the administration of justice, particularly in the administration of sentences passed by the courts after due process of law.

No one objects to properly supervised efforts to use the penal system for rehabilitation of rehabilitable law breakers. But most people are outraged by weekend passes, holidays and other "rehabilitation conditioning" for pathological criminals who use the first opportunity for robbing, raping and murdering again.

It may appal the theorizing "progressives," but Robichaud is speaking for the masses they purport to serve when he demands reinstatement of the death penalty at least to the extent specified by the law as it now stands. Clemency should be granted only when recommended by the sentencing court.

To maintain that the public is ignorant and reactionary on the one hand while claiming to represent its progressive aspirations on the other, as our lib-left establishment does to suit its preconceived ideas, is intellectual and moral (not to mention political) hypocrisy.

What worries the Trudeaucrats is that Robichaud's blast could encourage other meritorious Grits to question not only the mollycoddling of criminals but the whole direction of their party.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Essential public services should not be interrupted

Following my letter (Colonist, Feb. 26) critical of CUPE's ethics and the harm I believe they have done to the labor movement, I had occasion to talk with Frank Preston, a CUPE leader and negotiator . . . Both Mr. Preston and myself are in agreement that no job in government ought to be at an income level little better than the poverty index for Canada, and that more levelling off of all incomes ought to occur, but there was little agreement as to how best to accomplish this.

Basic to my first letter were the ethical implications of a generalized strike by public employees against the public. These were not answered.

Quite aside from the possibility that the strike as an effective union tool may have totally outlived its usefulness, there remains the possibility that it could at least have been selectively applied in the present situation in such a manner as to have pointed up union needs, eliciting community support and sympathy, while not punishing those totally at the mercy of municipalities and unions.

In my judgment there can be no justifying a strike which closes the venereal disease clinic when we are faced with an epidemic of VD, of closing the family planning clinic in the face of a population explosion, of closing garbage disposal in the face of an increasingly polluted environment, of closing our schools and depriving our children of their rights and needs to a quality education, of displacing senior citizens activities, cerebral palsy clinics, mental health centres, etc., etc.

In the absence of an atmosphere of genuine good will in which negotiations can be successfully concluded, such generalized strikes — and lockouts — of essential public services must be denied. Specific strikes of very limited duration and against circumscribed objectives alone can be tolerated.

In our present atmosphere of adversary proceeedings, compulsory arbitration and binding settlement must be effected. Any government that fails to move in the direction of protecting the community while at the same time working to achieve equity for the labor movement, does not serve the people. Such government, whether socialist, liberal, or conservative, should be replaced.

In mean my riticism of CUPE and the other trades unions to be friendly and constructive, but firm in ethical considerations.

In that same spirit I say to the municipalities: there is no possible excuse for the long delay between the time CUPE presented a proposal and it was repected. I do not criticise the rejection of what I consider to be an ill-advised and totally unrealistic proposal by CUPE, but I find the municipalities' lame excuse for the delay to be merely punitive. Nor can there be any excussing of the gratuitous insult to CUPE which Mayor Pollen's holiday in Hawaii at this time constitutes.

That is to say, there can be no excusing unless we take the extraordinary step of terminating all power plays by both sides, restoring all essential services, lifting the lockout and going at negotiations every day with equity as the goal.

Openness of information to the people should also be integral to the negotiations, as should an understanding by the people that no settlement can please everyone. But if equity be our goal and good will our medium we shall all have won a great victory for humankind.

'He suggests ...but surely he jests'

I read with some amusement the letter from Mr. Harris (Colonist, Mar. 4) on capital punishment. Mr. Harris deals with psychopathic murderers: people who are, by definition, ill. He suggests that we should kill them. Of course Mr. Harris cannot mean to be taken seriously; his letter must be jocular.

There is, however, the possibility that his intention is not to amuse; he might mean to be taken seriously. It does seem rather far-fetched to believe that Mr. Harris is suggesting we deal with illness by execution, but this does seem to be what he means. Despite the savings resulting from the abolition of hospitals, this does seem a rather silly notion all in all.

In fact it would seem that Mr. Harris is employing reasoning so deviant as to be itself pathological. As this type of inept reasoning is also highly destructive to society, it would seem that Mr. Harris meets his own standards as a fit subject for execution. It will be interesting to see if he acts in accordance with his stated believes and takes the appropriate step.

But surely he jests.

HELP WANTED

I am writing a book on Scottish bagpipers who emigrated to Montana during the frontier days. Over 100 pipers went there between 1860 and 1930.

Please help me complete one of the most unusual stories ever written about the North American frontier.

Can anyone tell me about pipers among the trappers and mountain men before 1860; the pipe bands and Highland games in Great Falls, Billings, Butte and Milred City before the First World War; champion piper and dancer D. C. Mather, and A. K. Cameron, Tom MacRae, Donald Sutherland, Farquhar Finalyson and John Renwick?

Also, can anyone tell me about Dr. Tom MacKenzie's Miles City piping organization, dedicated to serious pibroch study; a Highland dancer named Neil Livingstone MacLardy; A. K. Cameron's research into pibroch history and theory, and his links with Willie Gray, Simon Fraser, J. D. Ross Watt and other pipers around the world.

The activities of Mather, who travelled to the Vancouver area and other parts of the northwest? Who has the papers of Boston pipemaker Adamson? Can anyone confirm a story that pipers died with Custer? I will welcome correspondence from anyone who has information about Scottish activities in Montana.

Canada and loan to Thieu

May I address a note to those concerned for their tax dollar. The Americans, wishing to get out from under their South Vietnamese burden, are talking our prime minister into providing President Ngutyn Van Thieu with a loan through the World Bank (along with Japan, Australia, etc.).

Corruption and high inflation are hallmarks of Thieu's regime. Even his supporters are falling away from him.

Americans are good neighbors so long as they do not meddle in Canadian affairs. How can we ask our tax dollars to support American influence in South Vietnam when we do not want their influence in our affairs?

There are neutralists in South Vietnam who wish to be neither "communist" nor poor brother to America, but Vietnamese, a people of courage and kindness, a land longing to be healed. Please instruct the prime minister as to the use of your hard-earned tax dollar.

'Government is be all, end all'

Ever thought of a new constitution for the Peoples Republic of British Coumbia? We might re-write the Ten Commandments to read:

"Government is the be all and end all. Thou shalt have no loyalty except to The Party. Be thou a graven image of the obedient follower. Bow the knee only to members of the Cabinet. Thou shalt have no responsibility but depend upon government for thy bed and board, education and entertainment, directions and decisions. Thou shalt not steal but ask that government do thy stealing for you. Thou shalt covet thy neighbor's goods until his poverty is equal to your own. Honor youth for they are being processed to vote for us tomorrow. Verily I say unto you, enjoy the glorious equality of the drone as they serve the Queen Bee. And unto these add another directive: Do unto the haves all you can do them for, for their self-reliance threatens our continuance in power."

U.S. Supreme Court to rule on capital punishment

Death debate renewed

By PETER BUCKLEY, from Washington

Nearly three years after the United States Supreme Court emptied the country's death cells with a chaotically divided opinion in a capital-punishment case, the court now faces a decision on whether the death penalty can ever be enforced again in the U.S.

Familiar arguments and passions are being revivedin anticipation of the court hearings, this time coupled with new variations designed to acknowledge the court's 1972 opinion.

A lengthy brief in favor of capital punishment was filed with the court this week by Soclicitor-General Robert Bork, representing the federal government, and the justices are expected to hold hearings on the question as soon as the ailing Justice William Douglas returns to the bench.

The Bork brief was addressed to the one case the Supreme Court has so far agreed to hear — the appeal of 27-year-old Jesse Fowler of North Carolina, sentenced to die for killing a friend after a fight over some crap-game winnings.

The North Carolina case has some narrow peculiarities about it that would allow the Supreme Court to limit the effects of its ruling only to Jesse Fowler and a handful of others among the 63 men and one woman awaiting execution in North Carolina.

If the court decides on a limited ruling in the Fowler case, other opportunities will press in before long for a broader decision.

Since the 1972 ruling invalidated capital punishment as it was then practised in 40 states, the death penalty has been approved again in revised form by 31 states and the U.S. congress.

More than 185 persons have been sentenced to death since then and their appeals have begun working their ponderous way toward the Supreme Court.

But no one has been executed in the U.S. since 1972 — and, indeed, clemency decisions and appeals had left the country without an execution since 1967.

The court's 1972 ruling found the justices split five to four. Although each judge wrote a separate opinion, the majority consensus was summed up by Justice Potter Stewart.

Stewart found that because most juries had the discretion to vote clemency in capital offences, the death sentence was being "wantonly and freakishly imposed" on a "capriciously selected random handful" of defendants — and was therefore unconstitutional as it was then applied.

Most of the states which have since passed new capital-punishment laws have attempted to meet the Supreme Court's objections by making the death penalty mandatory for such crimes as premeditated murder and rape, killing for hire, and killing of prison guards or police.

Others have gone further. North Carolina, with only three per cent of the U.S. population but about one-third of the entire country's total of condemned persons, has made burglary and arson capital crimes in addition to murder.

As Bork told the court, a majority of the American people favor restoration of capital punishment. The state legislatures, in enacting such laws, have reflected the people's will, Bork said.

If the courts have struck down the death penalty, he suggested, their action tells more about "judicial queasiness" than about the popular will.

A majority of the courtmay have difficulty finding that the law is not still being "capriciously" applied, even with the new mandatory death sentences approved by most states.

Prof. Charles Black of Yale, one of the most respected constitutional scholars in the United States, argues in a recent book that the laws can never be explicit enough to make capital punishment fit the constitution.

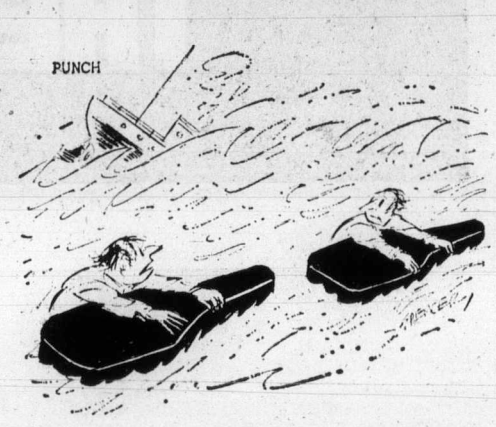

Noting that a prosecutor can choose to file a lesser charge than murder, a judge or jury can reduce the charge, a state governor or president can grant clemency, Black argues that the official choices "that divide those who are going to die from those who are to live are on the whole not made, and cannot be made, under standards that are consistently meaningful and clear."

Without such standards, the poor and those from minority groups would continue to face death more often in future — as they have in the past — than those who can enlist expert lawyers and prominent character witnesses.

Without such standards, there is arbitrariness. In North Carolina's case, for example, some 40,000 burglaries are reported every year, yet only one man is in the state's death row under the burglary section of the death-penalty law.

But with a relentless rise in the number of violent crimes in the U.S., the public mood as reflected in legislative debates is clearly in favor of tougher anti-crime measures. The Supreme Court will have that opinion to contend with in its eventual decisions on the death penalty.

Tsikita limited logging supported

By NEVILLE SHANKS
Colonist Correspondent

PORT McNEILL — Mount Waddington regional board is supporting two logging companies in their demand that limited and controlled logging be permitted in the Tsitika-Schoen Lake moratorium area.

The 310,000-acre area extends from the east coast of Vancouver Island at the mouth of the Tsitika River to a point close to Gold river. The last unlogged watershed on Vancouver Island, it was closed to logging two years ago to allow a study of its various potentials to be made by a group headed by Howard Paish.

The study group's recommendations are being presented to public meetings in Port McNeill, Sayward, Campbell River and Nanaimo.

"If the company had known the tree farm licence was not going to be honored by the government, we would have cut that timber years ago," Owen Hennigar, north Island manager of Canadian Forest Products, told a special meeting of the regional district board Monday night.

CFP and MacMillan Bloedel are the companies which will be most seriously affected by decisions made in regard to the moratorium area.

Hennigar said that when CFP's tree farm licence was granted in 1960, privately-owned timber incorporated in the licence exceeded 70 per cent of the value of the total inventory. In the Tsitika area, the licence includes 1,200,000 cunits of timber (a cunit is 100 cubic feet) purchased by the company in the early 1940s as special timber licences.

"In addition to the purchase price of the timber, the company has paid annual rentals, fire protection taxes, and land taxes over the years to ensure that a perpetual supply of timber could be harvested," Hennigar said. "There would have to be substantial compensation if such lands were withdrawn from the tree farm licence."

A B.C. Hydro transmission line, the new North Island Highway and a few service industries have already taken 2,000 acres from the tree farm licence, Hennigar said, and Mount Cain regional park, a Tsitika reserve and a proposed Schoen Lake park would reduce the annual cut by 31,000 cunits.

"This far exceeds any logical withdrawals of land provided for under the terms and conditions of the forest management licence," he said. "Such extensive deletions would negate the company's objectives of continuing to operate all of its logging facilities and manufacturing plants; therefore many employees would be laid off."

Basing its activities on the terms of its tree farm licence which would be seriously disrupted by major changes, the company has invested more than $42 million in its operations in the area, Hennigar said. Taking timber from lands included in the moratorium area would provide employment for 400 people and generate an annual payroll of $5½ million.

CFP has proposed a 28-year logging plan which, it says, would open the area for recreational purposes through the roads that would be built. At the same time, extensive areas of standing timber would be left to protect streams and provide sheltered areas and migration routes for animals.

Curtailment of logging activity in the area would have an even more drastic effect on MacMillan Bloedel's operations, Jim Trebett, of Nanaimo, the company's regional manager, told the district meeting.

"Unless industrial forestry is to begin in that area, it spells death to Sayward," Trebett said.

MB has recommended that the area under sttudy be managed under a multiple resource plan, with the primary emphasis on timber production. The company wants an immediate start, with studies of the lower Tsitika River with completion within 10 years, while the main valley is undisturbed, along with assessment of ecological reserves it has proposed at Tsitika Lake and Mount Derby.

It has also called for co-operation between the company and the provincial government in a program of logging research with special emphasis on protection of fragile sites, and reduction of environmental impact through the use of new logging systems.

The regional directors agreed that logging should be allowed to take place in the area on a carefully controlled basis, firmly supporting the stand taken by the two companies.

They showed particular concern that any delay in reaching a decision on the moratorium area might stall construction of the North Island Highway, originally scheduled for completion in 1977.

The second hearing on the Tsitika-Schoen area study will be held tonight at Sayward; the third in Campbell River — all day Saturday; and the fourth and last scheduled in Nanaimo March 14.

INSIDE.

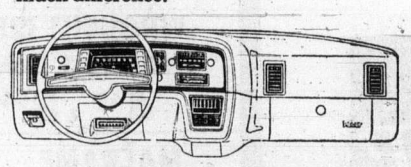

Roominess plus comfort.

Four full-grown adults can sit comfortably. There's lots of legroom front and back. No need to push the front seats way forward. In actual fact, if you check the inside space of the Pacer against most big cars, you won't find much difference.

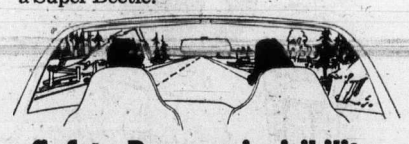

Roominess: You can fit a Pinto, Vega, Grenada or Duster inside a shell of the Pacer.

That gives you an idea of how much room there is inside this unique small car. Yet the Pacer will take up just a little more parking length than a Super Beetle.

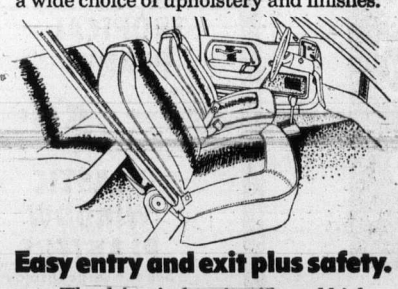

Feels good. Looks good.

You don't just get room and comfort. You'll like the appointments too. The dash is clean, easy to read. There's a wide choice of upholstery and finishes.

Safety: Panoramic visibility.

The view from inside the Pacer gives you a wonderful sense of spaciousness. You and your passengers see just about everything. Blind spots are largely eliminated. Wait till you see how this feature makes reversing so much easier. The incredible stability and handling really helps here too.

Easy entry and exit plus safety.

The driver's door is wide and high. And we've even made the passenger door almost four inches wider than the driver's. So it should be easier for everyone to get in and out. The unique Pacer design incorporates a rollbar-like roof for your protection.

OUTSIDE.

Safety: You can even get a rear window wiper/washer system.

That's only one of the options that you can get with the Pacer. A rear window defogger is another. Your AMC Dealer can deliver a Pacer with almost any accessory you might want.

Safety: The stable ride that's something else.

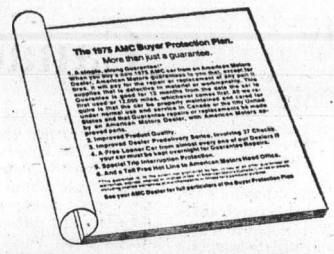

The wide look and stance tells you about it. But get behind the wheel and try it. That's really when you'll find out about that 'something else' we're talking about. It could be a whole new driving experience for you.

Economy.

Oil, gas directors:

B.C. shows 'some effort'

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

"I think it would be fair to say there is a recognition of our problem out here and there is some effort going on toward improving the situation," said C. W. (Clem) Dumett of Calgary just prior to stepping down Thursday as chairman of the B.C. division of the Canadian Petroleum Association.

Dumett's statement, which came at the end of an hour-and-a-half press conference at the Union Club, was one of the few positive ones made by him and other directors of the association, who were holding their annual meeting.

The retiring president was referring to the fact that the provincial government was offering some encouragement to natural gas exploration and production by paying 33 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas from new wells compared to the current average price of 20 cents per mcf for old, or existing, gas.

Hank Boswell, a CPA director, added that the assistance was being directed toward natural gas exploration only, not oil exploration.

"The question is," Dumett added, "the level of need that they (the government) recognize and when they will be prepared to do something about it."

However, all the directors were in agreement that there will be no early improvement in supply of natural gas in the province. And if Premier Barrett expects to gain an extra $40 million in tax revenue for municipalities, as he announced in his budget speech last week, there will have to be a bigger pricetag put on export gas.

Boswell, a vice-president of Amoco Canada Ltd., one of the principal producers of natural gas in B.C., said that if the revenue for 1974 was about $74 million, all that Barrett would have to do to achieve his aim would be to increase the price by about 50 per cent

The directors conceded that the improved price for new gas is playing a part in bringing into production a small portion of the 2.1 trillion cubic feet of gas lying in B.C. wells that have been discovered and capped. The cost of laying in pipeline networks to recover more of their production inhibits a more wide tapping of these resources.

Total proven and probable reserves are 9.17 trillion cubic feet, the directors said. Hans Maciej, manager of the Alberta branch and who was at the meeting, said that the Canadian Petroleum Association's statement on estimates of reserves would show that there has been between a 10 and 15 per cent decline in the last year.

Dumett said that it costs more than three times as much money to replace a mcf of natural gas as the 8.4 cents that the companies are currently receiving. Inflation is adding further to the costs, he said.

"If the deal with the federal government goes through, and we get about 33 cents for the new gas, we will be able to keep about 25 cents, but it will take about 22 cents to go out and develop and tie it in," Boswell interjected.

The directors claimed that prior to the recently-concluded agreement between Ottawa and B.C. with respect to natural gas prices, producers were actually losing 4.6 cents per mcf as a result of announced federal budget proposals. They said that it was costing them 24.6 cents per mcf and only receiving an average price of 20 cents.

However, under the new agreement, the full details of which aren't known, the companies say that they'll still get paid 20 cents but will wind up with a new return of 8.4 cents. They calculate that governments will get more than 90 per cent of any improved prices for export gas.

Dumett, who was succeeded as chairman of the B.C. division by Donald Axford, vice-president of Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., detailed some of the decline in B.C. activity in the past year.

Dumett said that oil production has decreased from a high of about 70,000 barrels per day to about 50,000 in three years. Seismic activity fell from 61 crew months in 1973 to 29 crew months in 1974 and there were 23 active drilling rigs on Jan. 1, 1975 compared to 31 as of Jan. 1, 1974.

However, some other figures that he listed moved in the other direction. Industry investment in the province was $113 million in 1974 compared to $104 million the year before; direct revenue in land bonuses and royalties rose from $46.5 million to $84.9 million and the value of production rose from $122 million to $198 million in a year.

Between 1947 and 1973, Dumett said, industry investment in oil and gas in the province has been $1.6 billion. He said that returns were $926 million in that period.

The directors spent the early part of the conference expounding on the overall Canadian energy picture, particularly as it pertains to oil. They said that a healthy economic situation for the country will happen if there is an assured domestic supply of gas and oil.

Lack of self-sufficiency, the directors said, will cost the country between $30 billion and $40 billion in unobtained value of goods and services that would have resulted had a vigorous exploration and production program been allowed.

The alternative to Canadian self-sufficiency, they argue, is heavy balance-of-payments deficits, consequent unemployment and a drop in Canadians' standard of living.

Pisces sub seeks chlorine in strait

UPI

A two-man Pisces submersible Thursday probed the depths of the Strait of Georgia with searchlights and television cameras in an effort to locate four sunken rail cars loaded with deadly liquid chlorine.

The environment department ship Pandora tracked the submersible's search path, keeping in close radio communication, a transport spokesman in Vancouver said.

"The Pisces started checking out the area just south of the northwest point of Texada Island at 11 a.m. and will be investigating all the findings (of earlier search vessels)," he said.

The tank cars were believed to have sunk out of sight beneath shifting ocean sands under 600 feet of water near the farming community of Texada Island. Earlier search vessels, including three Canadian destroyers, used side-scan sonar and magnetometers to try to pinpoint possible locations of the cars.

The environment ship Vector, equipped with sophisticated tracking devices, also searched a seven-mile stretch along the island Thursday.

A meeting of environment department officials and oceanographic scientists is scheduled "early next week" to study findings of the Pisces and other search vessels.

Deputy liquor chief named

Keith Warnes, 47, has been appointed deputy general manager of the Liquor Administration Branch.

In making the announcement, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said that, after amendments are made to the Liquor Administration Act, Warnes will be named general manager. As the act now stands, the branch can only have one general manager.

Victor Woodlands occupies that position after the latest round of promotions to fill the job vacated by William Bruce, who retired last month.

Once the changes are made in the act, Warnes will be general manager of the liquor distribution branch and Woodlands general manager of the licensing arm.

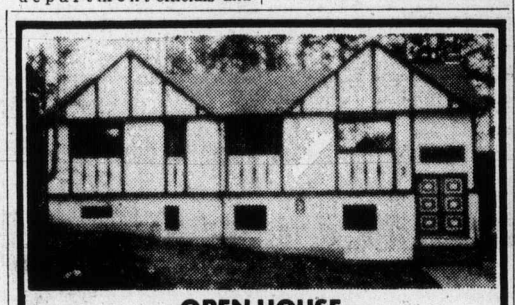

The distribution branch is in Vancouver, the licensing branch in Victoria. Warnes lives in Vancouver, Woodlands in Victoria.

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market managed to recover early losses and close fractionally higher in moderate trading Thursday.

Prices opened lower and remained down through most of the session. However, a rally on the New York market encouraged a rebound near the close of trading. The industrial index closed up .16 to 183.74.

Trading in shares of Falconbridge Nickel was halted shortly after the open, pending the company's announcement that an amendment to the Ontario Mining Tax Act will result in additional tax levy in 1974 of about $8 million.

After the announcement, trading in McIntyre Mines was halted. McIntyre, which has a 37.3-per cent interest in Falconbridge, was unchanged at $47 prior to the halt. Falconbridge had been down ¼ to $32½.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, cheered by a drop in wholesale prices and hopeful for a break in foreign oil rates, reached its best levels in more than six months Thursday. The Dow Jones average advanced to 761.81, the highest close since last Aug. 12.

Profit-taking early in the session had taken the Dow as much as 4½ points lower. But news from the U.S. government that February wholesale prices fell 0.8 per cent helped stock prices gain steadily and the rally accelerated toward the close. The New York Stock Exchange's composite stock index rose 0.42 to 44.20.

Reports that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is straining to maintain its oil-price controls as well as the view among analysts that foreign oil prices may soon break lower, were especially helpful to hotel, motel and airline stocks.

Holiday Inns rose 1⅛ to $10⅞, Howard Johnson 1 to $10⅞ and Ramada Inns ¾ to $4¾, all three in heavy turnover.

In the airline group, UAL Inc., and TWA each added ⅞. Hilton Hotels, another stock that would benefit from increased tourism as a result of lower oil prices, rose 1⅞ to $21¾.

Sony Corp., the NYSE's volume leader, climbed ½ to $9⅜ including a 230,000-share block at $9.

Semi-conductor stocks, which have sparkled in recent sessions, continued to climb with Texas Instruments up 4 to $91⅛, Motorola 1⅜ to $50⅜ and National Semiconductor 1⅜ to $22¾.

New housing funds ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) announced Thursday it is ready to invest up to $200 million in construction of moderately-priced rental accommodation.

An urban affairs department news release said Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson will seek proposals from builders this week.

Maximum incomes for tenants entering the accommodation would be limited to four times the rent. Intent is for rents to be below market rates or, in high-cost areas, to be at market rates for comparable accommodation.

Builders will have until April 30 to submit proposals, a CMHC spokesman said. Construction would begin this summer.

The program is expected to provide accommodation for more than 8,000 families.

"Rents . . . will be set between CMHC and the owner of a project and will be based on the size of the units . . . services . . . financing terms offered," the news release said.

"Selected proposals will be financed by loans under the National Housing Act, which enables CMHC to provide financing up to 95 per cent of costs at . . . 8 per cent interest."

OPEC decree

West must help

ALGIERS (UPI) — Leaders of the world's oil producing nations Thursday ended their first summit meeting by proposing a conditional freeze on oil prices, linking the cost of oil to the cost of industrial imports from Western nations.

But such a freeze, they added, would depend on Western agreement to reform the world monetary system to protect the oil nations' bank accounts and investments abroad and to give massive development aid to the Third World.

The 13 kings, presidents and sheikhs of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said any freeze must be linked to inflation, so the price of oil would go up as their imports from the west became more expensive. But they left open whether OPEC would demand oil price increases equal to the full rate of inflation, or only part of it.

A final 14-point "solemn declaration" ending the three-day summit said the member nations "ensured (oil) supplies that will meet the essential requirements" of industrial nations. But it threatened joint "measures" — presumably including an oil embargo — against any nations committing "aggression, economic or military", against any OPEC member.

Iraq, Iran agree

ALGIERS (UPI) — Iraq and Iran Thursday signed a surprise agreement engineered by Algerian President Houari Boumedienne to seek a "final and lasting solution' 'to their long-standing territorial disputes. The agreement opens the Shatt Al-Arab estuary leading to Iran's big Abadan oil refinery to free navigation by Iranian tankers. In return, it was indicated that Iran would close its northern borders with Iraq to Kurdish rebels.

First quarter

Doman optimistic

DUNCAN — The figures may have been down but the optimism was evident Thursday at Doman Industries when the results of the first quarter of the current fiscal year were announced.

President Herb Doman said that sales for the quarter ending Jan. 31 were $7.57 million compared to $10.68 million in the same period of 1974. Net earnings were $246,000 this year against $941,000 last. However, compared to the fourth quarter results of 1974, the net earnings were a vast improvement on the $85,000 that was the result last Oct. 31.

The president said that the shock of the energy crisis has been partially absorbed, interest rates are falling and mortgage money is becoming available.

He said the Chemainus plant is on one shift, the Vancouver mill has changed over from pulp chips to lumber production and on two shifts and the main producer, at Ladysmith, is now on a three-shift basis.

The company said that when the new mill at Cowichan Bay gets into production late this year its initial annual production of 125 million board feet will bring the company's capacity to 360 million board feet.

Extra help as usual

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Caribbean and Mexican seasonal workers will be admitted to Canada as usual this year to assist farmers and food processors in the growing, harvesting and canning of fruit and vegetable crops, Bill Andres, Liberal member of Parliament for Lincoln, said.

Exhaust limits eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced Wednesday a one-year suspension of automobile anti-pollution standards previously due to take effect with 1977 models.

At the same time, Russell Train, EPA administrator, changed present standards to interim standards to remain in effect through the 1977 model year, but with some tightening of nitrogen oxide controls.

Train also proposed a new auto emission standard to control sulphuric acid emissions beginning with 1979 models.

And, as expected, he proposed further intermediate emission standards, leading up to the imposition in 1982 of the standards originally scheduled for 1977. Such additional delay will require congressional authorization.

Train also said the EPA will try to tighten its regulations to control hydrocarbon emissions from paints, solvents, dry-cleaning liquids, and refineries.

Celebrity dinner fare fit for a king

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Dee Andros

There will almost certainly be something for everyone attending the eighth annual Greater Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner, Monday, at the Empress Hotel.

Sports from rugby to auto racing, professional and junior hockey to thoroughbred racing, college and pro football will have head-table representatives at the prestigious event.

And competitors from basketball, softball, field hockey, amateur wrestling and track and field have been named as finalists for the athlete-of-the-year awards.

In addition, awards will be made to the team of the year, sportsman of the year and the recipient of the Kiwanis Distinguished Service Award.

Leading off the speakers will likely be Premier Dave Barrett, a longtime rugby player in the Vancouver area and member of the B.C. over-40 team which toured Japan last year.

Also speaking will be Jack Short, "the voice of the races" in B.C. for about 40 years; Herschel McGriff, probably the most successful stock-car driver in the Pacific Northwest during the last few years; and Pat Ginnell, coach and manager of Victoria Cougars, Western Division leaders in the Western Canada Hockey League.

Pro hockey will have two representatives, Bill Hunter of Edmonton Oilers, general-manager of the World Hockey Association all-star team which played Russia in an eight-game international series last year, and defenceman Dennis Kearns of Vancouver Canucks, substituting for coach and general manager Phil Maloney.

And football will have two outstanding speakers in Oregon State University head-coach Dee Andros and former Canadian Football League great Normie Kwong.

Affectionately know as "The Great Pumpkin", Andros acquired the nickname by wearng bright orange suits on the field. — and he always sprints onto the field ahead of his players.

A bruising fullback, Kwong teamed with Johnny Bright to help the Eskimos win the Grey Cup in 1954-55-56 and was named the outstanding Canadian player in the CFL in 1955 and 1956. Kwong, named to the Western Conference all-star team on four occasions, now makes his home in Calgary where he is a stockbroker, and a much-sought-after speaker.

The dinner will start at 7 p.m.

Flin Flon	61	15	37	8	217	342	38

Next games: Tonight — VICTORIA at Medicine Hat; Flin Flon at Calgary, Edmonton at Kamloops, Regina at Saskatoon, Brandon at Winnipeg.

Victoria Cougars had two strikes against them before Thursday's Western Canada Hockey League game with Lethbridge Broncos even started.

And when the game did get underway, ex-teammate Glenn Anweiler turned in another spectacular performance in the Lethbridge nets to help the Broncos to a 4-1 victory.

Cougars played without the services of league-leading scorer Mel Bridgman and rightwinger Don Cairns, two of the most productive point-getters of late.

Cairns was excused from duty to attend the funeral of a brother killed in an industrial accident earlier this week at Calgary.

But Bridgman, who went into the game leading Lethbridge's Bryan Trottier by only three points in the individual scoring race, watched the action from the stands after being suspended for what was described as a "team matter".

Cougar-coach Pat Ginnell was unavailable for comment following the game and it's not known if Bridgman, who has 132 points this season, will play tonight when the Cats visit Medicine Hat Tigers.

Cairns will be back in the lineup for tonight's game.

Ginnell moved Jim Gustafson into Bridgman's spot and the slender centre contributed an assist on Peter Morris' goal late in the second period, the 100th point of the season for the hardskating left-winger.

Dealt to the Broncos early this season on a "make-good" basis, Anweiler has been backup to Rollie Boutin for most of the campaign but starred in a 5-3 Bronco win at Memorial Arena last month.

Alec Tidev and Ron Delorme scored two goals each for the Broncos and Trottier picked up a pair of assists to run his points total to 131.

In the only other game, Saskatoon Blades got two goals from Blair Chapman and Danny Arndt and coasted to a 6-1 win over Calgary Centennials.

Two coaches fined players suspended

SASKATOON (CP) — Two coaches have been fined and two players suspended as a result of a Tuesday Western Canada Hockey League game between Flin Flon bombers and Kamloops Chiefs, league president Ed Chynoweth announced Thursday.

Bomber-coach Mel Pearson was fined $500 and Kamloops coach Harvey Roy $250 as a result of the altercation during the Kamloops game, in which both benches emptied.

Rick Dorman of Flin Flon was suspended for the next three games for becoming involved with a Kamloops player after he had received a game misconduct penalty and been sent to the dressing room.

Allen Young of Kamloops was suspended for two games for receiving a match penalty for head-butting in a fight with Rich Gosselin.

Chynoweth said the difference in the players' fines was due to the fact that Flin Flon players were the first to leave the bench.

Islanders, Kings in another tie

LOS ANGELES — New York Islanders and Los Angeles Kings have something in common this National Hockey League season — they tie a lot of games.

The teams played to a 2-2 tie Thursday in Los Angeles, the 17th deadlock of the season for each club — tops in the league.

Jude Drouin scored with less than three minutes to play to give the Islanders, the only team in the league Kings have failed to beat this season, the point.

Andre St. Laurent scored the other New York goal while Dan Maloney and Bob Murdoch tallied for the Kings, who moved to within three points of front-running Montreal Canadiens in the Norris Division.

Murdoch's goal was his 11th of the season and it set a record for goals by a King defenceman in one campaign.

Islanders, who have a win and three ties in four games against Los Angeles, moved to within four points of New York Rangers in the Patrick Division.

City powers romp to wins in Island tourney openers

By REG REYNOLDS

Victoria's Big Three scored lopsided victories and all three up-Island teams suffered defeats Thursday, in the 25th annual Vancouver Island high school boys basketball tournament.

Defending champion Oak Bay Bays defeated Belmont Braves, 74-56; Mt. Douglas Rams crushed Cowichan Thunderbirds, 92-61; and Vic High Totems whipped Alberni Chieftains, 78-45, in opening-round games played at the University of Victoria's new McKinnon gymnasium.

The only game that provided much tension in the final minutes was between Spectrum and Courtenay Towhees, with the surprising Victoria number four representative scoring a 60-56 win.

Spectrum took advantage of Courtenay's defensive lapses in the first half and was ahead, 37-24, starting the second half, but Courtenay came out hustling and scored the first three baskets of the half.

The Towhees used a half-court press and forced Spectrum into making numerous turnovers and could have won the game, but their shooting was off.

Gord Gummer topped Spectrum with 21, Roy Gerath added 19 and Joe Grewal 14.

Dave Kent scored 16 points to top Courtenay, while North Island MVP Dave Lee scored eight of his 10 points in the second half to spark the Towees rally.

Mt. Douglas played centre John McManaman only a couple of minutes, but still managed to come within one point of the record 93 points scored by the 1973-champion Bays.

McManaman, who had his nose broken in the lower-Island final against Oak Bay, was wearing a special nose guard and will only get into the action if it becomes absolutely necessary.

Tom Watson, third high scorer in league play, led the Rams with 24 points and Bob Jones and Rob Spanier chipped in 19 points each. Ross McCauley topped Cowichan with 20 points and Andy Riley added 18.

Vic High and Oak Bay were both impressive and will meet today in a semi-final game at 7:20 p.m.

The tournament resumes today with losers' bracket games between Cowichan and Courtenay at 4 p.m. and Alberni and Belmont at 5:40 p.m.

The other semi-final is between Mt. Douglas and Spectrum at 9 p.m.

Young player dies of injury

NEWBERRY, S.C. (AP) — Billy Douglas, a 19-year-old freshman football player at Newberry College who broke his back in a spring scrimmage Tuesday, died Thursday in hospital.

Newberry officials said Douglas, a defensive back from Charleston, was injured when he made a tackle in the practice game. He was a starter during most of last season.

Skiing report

Green Mountain . . . a fine facility

Green Mountain has come a long way since the Sno Birds Ski Club started developing its skiing potential more than 10 years ago.

The 4808-foot mountain, located south and west of Nanaimo, now has complete facilities, including a lodge, two T-bars, a ski-school with resident instructor, a ski shop with sales, repairs and rentals and a cafeteria.

Under the administration of the board of directors of the Sno Bird Lift Society, a non-profit organization devoted solely to the development of skiing on Green Mountain, the resort has prospered and provided lower-Island skiers with their only fully equipped ski area.

Sno Birds operate an "overnight accommodation" lodge at the top of Green for Ski Club members, but non-members are welcome at $5 per night. Cooking facilities, cutlery and dishes are supplied, but take along a sleeping bag and food.

Green offers two runs for experienced skiers and one for beginners.

Doppelmyer is 2375-feet long with a 608-foot vertical drop and Harusch is 1535-feet long with a 385-foot drop.

A member of the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance, the veteran Austrian skier teaches the popular graduated-length method, which has proven to be an easy way to learn.

The mountain is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekends only, but will remain open Good Friday and Easter Monday

The Island ski report will appear in Saturday's Colonist. Following is the Mainland report:

Grouse Mountain: 33 degrees, unlimited visibility, no new snow on 104-inch base, open from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Mount Seymour: 24 degrees, no new snow, road conditions good, open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Whistler Mountain: 15 degrees, no new snow, but excellent skiing conditions on packed powder, 116-inches in alpine regions and 72-inches at mid-station. Open from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Manning Park: 18 degrees, no new snow on 68-inch base. Road conditions good and open from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Mount Baker, Washington: 29 degrees, no new snow, open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Northern Ontario skip Bill Tetley displays winning form

Territories quartet on heels of leading Northern Ontario

FREDERICTON — Northern Ontario and the Territories continue to be the surprise rinks in the 1975 Canadian men's curling championship.

Bill Tetley of Thunder Bay scored three wins Thursday and is in the driver's seat for the Brier Tankard with only a single loss in eight games.

But Don Twa's rink from Whitehorse, giving the Territories their first representation in the championship, posted Thursday wins over perennial-powers Alberta and Manitoba and is alone in second place at 6-2.

The odds against those rinks ranking 1-2 at this point in the championship would have been astronomical before the 13-round competition got underway on Sunday.

Tetley, seeking to become the first Northern Ontario rink to win the Brier since Tom Ramsay's Kirkland Lake foursome won the 1950 championship in Vancouver, started the day with an 8-6 decision over Dr. Alex Scott of Ontario. He then scored the final three points in a 7-5 win over John Fortier of Charlottetown and finished the gruelling day's play by roaring to an 11-4 rout of an ailing Nova Scotia rink from Dartmouth.

Skip Dick Boyce was forced to withdraw because of the flu but Nova Scotia, with third Bob Margeson in command, was only behind by a single point when Tetley stole four on the eighth end, added two more on the 10th and stole a single on the 11th to win going away.

Twa, who had the bye on the morning round, edged Tom Reed of Edmonton, 8-6, then topped pre-tournament favorite Rod Hunter of Winnipeg, 8-5, by scoring three on the 11th end and stealing a point on the 12th.

Reed and Harvey Mazinke of Saskatchewan are still in the running at 6-3 while Jim Ursel's Quebec rink is at 5-3.

Hunter, almost out of contention at 5-4, was involved in a controversy over the rocks being used at the national championships.

Following an afternoon win over Mazinke, Hunter said the rocks were doing "strange things" during the afternoon draw and in earlier rounds.

But Tetley, who has played on most of the sheets in the first 10 draws, said: "I don't like thinking there may be something wrong with the rocks because it affects your style of play.

"If you've got to make concessions for possible flaws in the rocks, it would bother you when you are throwing the rocks."

Tetley will meet hometown favorite John Clark of Fredericton (4-4) and Ursel today while Twa meets Bob Cole of Newfoundland (1-7) and Frank Beutle of Penticton (0-8) today.

On Saturday morning, Northern Ontario finishes up against Newfoundland and Territories meet Quebec in the final round. Playoffs, should they be necessary would be held, starting Saturday evening.

B.C. girls hoop tourney switched to UVic gym

Victoria will host the 26th annual B.C. high school girls' basketball championship next week, but at a different location than originally scheduled.

The 16-team tournament originally scheduled for Vic High has been moved to the University of Victoria's old gymnasium for all but three of the games because of the current strike-lockout situation at Victoria schools.

Play gets underway Wednesday with 12 games scheduled starting at 8 a.m. and running continuously through to 9:45 p.m. The format is the same for Thursday and Friday, but Saturday play starts at 8:30 a.m. Three of Thursday's games will be played at Henderson Park Pavilion.

The games at Henderson Thursday are the final three of the day, 7:45 p.m., 8:30 and 9:45 p.m.

The move costs Vancouver Island champion Vic High Tigers the chance to play on their home floor, but the Bari Hanslip-coached Tigers have been so impressive lately they have to be rated as one of the tournament favorites.

Tigers, who had a good chance of winning last year until they were pulled out of the B.C. playoffs because of disciplinary problems in the Island tournament, easily won the Island championship this year and defeated defending-champion New Westminster Hyacks in the Rambler preseason tournament.

The Hyacks are back as the Vancouver and district's third representative. They finished behind Eric Hamber, and Richmond in the Vancouver playdowns and ahead of Argyle the fourth team.

Belmont Tomahawks, the second Island representative, will be making their first appearance in the tourney, while Reynolds Roadrunners are the number three Island reps for the second straight year.

Salmon arm Jewels, a finalist last year, finished third in the Okanagan behind Kamloops and Penticton and have to meet Rutland or Mennonite Educational Institute on Saturday for the tournament berth.

The teams will be divided into four-team divisions and will play a round-robin format Wednesday and Thursday to decide on the eight teams that advanced to the championship round.

Division lineups are: A. — Quesnel (North Central); North Delta (Fraser Valley I), Richmond and Reynolds; B. — Castlegar (Kootenay West), Vic High, Penticton and Argyle; C. — Prince Rupert (North West), Eric Hamber, Belmont and the playoff winner; D. — Cranbrook (Kootenay West), Kamloops, Port Moody (Fraser Valley II), and New Westminster.

Meanwhile, Vic High had an improved record in the basketball leagues, but didn't gain any ground on Mt. Douglas in the Colonist Shield Race.

The Tigers finished first in the girls' league picking up 25 points to the second-place Ramblers 20, but the Totems finished third in the boys' league picking up 15 points to the Rams 20.

The 40 points pushed Mt. Douglas' total to 180.5, slightly behind last year's winning pace, but the Saanich school has a substantial lead over Vic High with only four sports left — badminton, rugby, girls' and boys' track and field.

Vic High is ahead of Mt. Douglas in the rugby league, but is trailing in badminton and Mt. Douglas has won the track-and-field competition for six straight years.

alec merriman

Recent bright sunny weather is bringing out that urge to get into the outdoors for a little fishing and a little backwoods travelling.

But, low overnight temperatures are slowing down the melt and rivers are still mostly a little low for the best steelheading, although most of them are in low water fishing condition and producing a few fish.

It really means the best is still to come.

Salmon River has been one of the better producing steelheading rivers, but anglers have had to push through 2½ feet of snow in the middle reaches.

One angler who did was Stuart Wilson of Vancouver who used Gooey Bobs to hook steelhead in both the Salmon and the Campbell.

Len Francis has been getting steelhead in the Oyster and the Campbell. The Gold is also producing steelhead and so is the Bear (Amor de Cosmos) River.

Mid-Island rivers, including the Nanaimo, are still fairly low for good fishing. But a melt will change that picture almost overnight. There is plenty of snow back in the hills to fill the rivers with just the kind of cool water that attracts the steelhead.

Cowichan has come up a little and is producing steelhead in the Riverbottom area and below the Silver Bridge at the highway.

The March run of four to six-pound steelhead is due into the Cowichan any day now.

Nicer weather will bring the saltwater anglers out, but chinook fishing, while still fair, is not as good as it was in December and January.

The dropoffs from the shoals in Baynes Sound have been giving up chinooks for anglers fishing with Strip Teasers and Flashtails with flashers.

The lower Sansum Narrows, around to powerline by Burial Island, has been producing limits of grilse to 14 inches. Grilse have been fairly plentiful in the Tent, Thetis and Kuper Island waters

★ ★ ★

Gordon Lamont reports two to three-pound coho grilse plentiful in Finlayson Arm waters of Saanich Inlet, with flies producing limits for some anglers.

Federal fisheries checked 285 boats at the weekend, but the catch was only one per boat day. That was probably because a great many were fishing for chinooks.

Boats checked recorded 16 chinooks, 58 jack chinooks (which for statistic counts are chinooks three to five pounds), three chinook grilse and 219 coho grilse averaging two pounds.

In Sidney waters 15 boats checked recorded two chinooks, six jacks, four chinook grilse and 12 coho grilse for a 1.6 fish average.

Sports fishing season for halibut and ling cod resumed March 1, with a limit of three ling cod any size and the halibut limit for sportsmen somewhat confused. Last year the limit was one halibut. An official proposal for a two-halibut limit has been put forward, but has not yet won official approval.

The herring run has started in the Gorge. We used to fish them for food and roe, but in recent years more and more anglers have been jigging them for bait.

Apprentice jockey wins first Santa Anita feature

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Admirability gave apprentice jockey Wendell Travers his first victory in a Santa Anita feature race Thursday by winning the $12,000 Round Table purse.

Admirability drew out to win by five lengths over favored Pink Castle. Her time for the one and one-eighth miles on a yielding track was 1.56 2-5.

Admirability returned $5.60, $3 and $2, while Pink Castle paid $3.40 and $2.40 and third-finishing Lady's Bower paid $2.40.

Jockey Don Pierce scored his first triple of the meeting, winning aboard Pecos Silver in the third race, Beautiful Isle in the fifth and Alderanna in the ninth. Pierce is the third-leading jockey of the meeting with 38 wins.

Machine tosses beanballs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds hitters faced a scatter-armed pitching machine Thursday which was supposed to throw strikes but began throwing beanballs instead.

Darrel Chaney was hit in the left arm when he moved to protect his head. Ken Griffey was hit on the right hand.

KARACHI (Reuter) — The second and final test between Pakistan and the West Indies ended in a draw Thursday.

Final scores: Pakistan 406 for eight declared and 256; West Indies 493 and one for no wicket.

Surprise for Als

To the surprise of officials of Montreal Alouettes, superstar Johnny Rodgers has arrived in Montreal from his Omaha home with a cast on his left arm from hand to elbow. Rodgers told the Als he had cut his hand in a home accident, that a piece of glass stayed inside and that X-rays showed tendons almost severed. He had the operation without advising club officials.

Tour rookie in fourth place

ATLANTA (UPI) — Rookie Amy Alcott, who picked up $5,000 for her victory in the Orange Blossom Classic last week in only her third LPGA start, moved into fourth place on the year's money list after three events of the 1975 tour.

Donna Caponi Young leads with $9,395, while Sandra Post is second with $6,650, Sandra Haynie third with $6,387 and Miss Alcott fourth with $5,580.

Sparkling fairway shots give Courtney golf lead

ORLANDO, Fla. — Bespectacled Chuck Courtney, owner of just three trophies after more than a decade on the pro tour, crafted a six-under-par 66 with some "phenomenal" iron work Thursday to lead the opening round of the $200,000 Citrus Open golf tournament by one stroke.

Playing one of the best rounds in his career, Courtney collected seven birdies against one bogey on the strength of some superb sharp-shooting on the tight and pine-studded layout at Rio Pinar Country Club.

"It was definitely one of the best rounds I've ever played," said the 34-year-old former winner of tournaments in Tallahassee, Puerto Rico and St. Paul.

Courtney, who picked up $51,001 on last year's tour, had five birdie putts of six feet or less, including one just 10 inches away.

"It was phenomenal as far as hitting the ball close to the hole," said the red-haired graduate of San Diego State. "That's as close as I've ever hit it."

Young Pat FitzSimons, who won his first tournament at the Los Angeles Open earlier this year, finished a 67 with five birdies and no bogeys to share second place after 18 holes with little-known Mark Hayes.

FitzSimons said he used to think of just trying to survive the cut, but now he goes with the intention of winning.

"You keep expecting the thrills of winning to diminish, but they don't," he said.

Australian Bruce Crampton was in with a 68, along with a pack including Jim Dent, Mike Reasor, Larry Hinson, Rik Massengale, Hale Irwin and George Archer.

The curly-haired veteran bogeyed two holes and collected six birdies on the 6929-yard course where the fairways have been tightened this year.

Lee Trevino, who says he likes to play in Florida because of the Bermuda grass and hot weather, was in a pack at 69 with four birdies and a bogey.

"The greens are a little grainy, so the short putts are a little hairier to make," Trevino said.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 71 and is tied with 20 other golfers. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Danny Halldorson of Brandon each shot a 75.

Hero's welcome for Erb

Captain says, 'Not guilty'

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Ship's captain Brian Erb, who led authorities on an 11-day game of hide and seek in Gulf of St. Lawrence, Thursday received a hero's welcome at a court appearance to answer charges that he stole the freighter Answer.

Erb, 37, of Montreal, pleaded innocent to charges that he unlawfully took the Answer from Quebec City Feb. 23.

He was released in his own recognizance, pending a preliminary hearing May 14.

The bearded skipper appeared weary from his ordeal when he was brought before Sessions Court Judge Gilles La Haye.

But he shook hands with and signed autographs for the dozens of spectators who applauded when Erb was escorted into the courtroom.

"I don't understand all this commotion," said Erb, pointing to the crowd in the courtroom.

Following the brief court appearance, Erb said he would go to Sept Iles, Que., where the Answer, also known as the Atlantean, was under guard by Quebec provincial police and the Canadian Coast Guard.

Erb agreed to the judge's conditions that the skipper not reboard the vessel or communicate with authorities on board.

He said he would contact his 23-member crew, including seven women, "and stay there (Sept Iles) in a hotel. We will wait for the trial and then proceed to Boston."

Erb and his youthful crew were on the way to Boston when the chase began a dozen days ago. He took the 2,500-ton freighter from Quebec City after it had been sold at auction to pay his debts.

Erb, who contends the vessel is his, evaded authorities for 11 days in the gulf before RCMP seized the Answer Wednesday.

The current owner, Paul-Emil Caron, a Louiseville, Que., businessman who paid $28,500 at the debtor's auction, has filed suit to recover the Answer. A hearing in that case was set for next Monday.

Meet the Viking Roto-matic. A break through in vacuum design. The Roto-matic finally does all the things that a vacuum should do. It's as versatile and easy to handle as the canister but it deep cleans your shags just as rigorously as any upright. The success is in the full-width power-head—now Viking has a full width suction in the power head attachment. As the motor driven beater bar vibrates out the deep down dirt, the full-width suction whisks it up, better than most previous vacuums. And there's more improvements like the floating power-head wheels that adjust instantly to any carpet surface. Stands on end for cleaning stairs and storage like an upright-canister ready to go without any reassembling.

Basically, cleaning has never been easier. Or more thorough. Or more practical. Because right now to introduce you to a great vacuum, we're offering it at a great low price. And that includes the complete accessory kit! It's a Canada-wide Special savings only at Eaton's. See it now.

Remove criminal aspect from abortion: Turner

Criminal law should not be used to force one moral view over another, he said. "When there is no consensus, criminal law should withdraw and it should be a personal matter."

Extra $10 million

Some servants overpaid, says Chretien

OTTAWA (CP) — Some federal civil servants are overpaid, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said Thursday in seeking approval for an extra $10 million to help bankroll government salaries.

Chretien also said that because of "rampant inflation" the government seriously under-estimated the cost of wage settlements for many of the 240,000 unionized civil servants who negotiated new contracts with the government over the last year.

He refused to tell the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee which groups within the federal bureaucracy are overpaid but said some succeeded through binding arbitration in winning "more than they deserve."

He said the government is considering ways of consolidating the 80 collective bargaining units dealing with the government into a smaller number to reduce the number of strikes.

He specifically mentioned the several small unions involved in grain shipments whose recent strikes and refusals to cross picket lines have disrupted grain exports.

He said the idea of consolidation may also be considered for the unions involved in airport operations and maintenance.

Chretien was "annoyed" with the recent rash of work stoppages in grain transportation and handling and said the government would prefer "one big strike every once in a while" to a whole series of strikes by smaller unions.

But these are difficulties that would have to be resolved before the Public Service Staff Relations Board, an agency which rules on disputes between the government and civil service unions.

Chretien appeared at the committee to explain some of the $1.65 billion in supplementary spending estimates tabled by the government recently for the fiscal year ended March 31.

Whelan blasts 'ripoff'

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan blasted fertilizer manufacturers Thursday for more than doubling their prices in the past two years.

Whelan invited himself to the annual convention of the Canadian Fertilizer Institute here and warned manufacturers that the "ripoff price" they are charging "is not going to be tolerated within Canada."

In a hastily-prepared speech, Whelan said government studies disclosed the manufacturers could produce fertilizers, important elements in assisting crop production, for about $142 a ton and still receive a 20-per-cent return on investment. Yet the current price is $200 a ton with pressure from the manufacturers for further increases, he said.

Whelan, who marched from the conference room as soon as he finished his speech, had not been invited to attend the meeting. He asked for and received time to talk to the delegates.

"It's time to level with each other," he said. "I've been watching fertilizer prices and I've been getting a lot of mail."

Dispute throttles building work, CUPE tells city

The general construction industry in the Greater Victoria area is "slowly grinding to a halt" because of the six-week-old strike and lockout of municipal employees, union spokesmen said Thursday.

"Builders cannot get permits and inspections and are concerned about the legality of the work they are now doing," three members of Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 388 (Victoria inside workers) said in a letter to the city's acting mayor, Ald. Alf Hood.

The letter was signed by Dennis Burke, Frank Preston and Jim Nelms, members of the CUPE local's negotiating committee, and was written at the instruction of the local's executive.

It did not deal with specific negotiations, but was written to "underline the general deterioration of services and relationships in the community."

The three gave as examples of that deterioration the cutbacks — of "about 75 per cent" — in Farmer Construction's Old Town renewal program.

They also said B.C. Hydro's gas division had laid off many of its construction crews since the strike-lockout began Jan. 27.

But the deterioration of services was not their only concern, the negotiators said.

"The loyalty and co-operation between council and civic employees, enjoyed by yourself and your colleagues over the years, (also) seems to be rapidly deteriorating," they said in their letter.

Hood — who is acting as the city's chief administrative officer while Mayor Peter Pollen holidays in Hawaii — was elected on a platform of continued development in the city, the three men said, as were most aldermen.

The continuing strike-lockout was making the attainment of promises made during the election an impossibility, the union said.

As a result, "taxpayers, long-term employees and, indeed, newer employees find your inactivity in this matter hard to understand, and your silence concerns us deeply."

The negotiators said the wage offers put forward so far by the city would "put us among the lowest paid public employees in the general area."

"The city," they added, "will not reap any benefit or receive any bargain from paying substandard wages," as such action would affect "quality of staff and standards of work."

The letter to Hood came the same day a member of CUPE Local 333, representing the Esquimalt civic staff, told reporters that union members affected by the strike-lockout who had applied for welfare were given aid but then cut off.

Hector Whitcomb said he had been given full benefits for himself and his family for two weeks.

Then the social assistance office reviewed the situation and stopped payments, Whitcomb said, explaining it did not want to be involved in the area-wide dispute.

Whitcomb said he knew of five or six other CUPE members who had applied for benefits after being locked out.

Some of them, he said, had received at least partial benefits.

Earlier, Greater Victoria School Board spokesman Bill Stavdal told reporters most classes at Lampson School had been dismissed early Thursday, because of a lack of heating at the school.

Only grade 1 and 2 classes continued until noon Thursday, he said, with all other students being sent home at 10 a.m.

Boil it, water users advised

Analysis of tap water from a house on the west side of the lake has shown a high degree of pollution, according to regional medical health officer Dr. A. F. Arnell, and any water for drinking should be brought to the boil before consumption.

However, he said, it is impossible to pinpoint the source of pollution.

"We are in the situation where we say any lake with habitation on it has some pollution and should not be used as a water supply," said Arneil.

He said he does not see boiling of water as anything but a temporary solution to the Florence Lake problem.

"Obviously, people are not going to go on indefinitely boiling every spot of water before they drink it or clean their teeth or anything," he said. "The only solution is extension of the Victoria water supply to that side of the lake."

Latest tests, he said, showed that at present the water is safe for swimming but not patable.

Unique in Canada

Wobbly-legged, fuzzy-coated American spotted ass foal, born last week, has joined first herd of its kind to be imported to Canada, at donkey farm at 5450 Rocky Point Road, Pedder Bay. Mrs. Edelgard Schalke, who had donkeys as domestic pets when she was a child in Germany, imported one jack and three jennies from Chicago in 1973.

Americans wait with sleek ship for Seattle run

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

The lineup of those awaiting a provincial decision on whether the ferry Princess Marguerite will fly under government flag has been joined by three U.S. businessmen.

The Americans, who are forming a company called Victorian Ship Inc., have a sleek 20-knot vessel they want to put into service on the Victoria-Seattle run in Many.

But so far they haven't got Inner Harbor berthing space — and they won't operate the run if the B.C. government goes ahead with the Marguerite.

510 patrons

Their ferry, the 165-foot Avalon, now sailing between southern California and Mexico, is licensed to carry 510 foot passengers but doesn't ship cars.

But both Tom Orr of Long Beach and Seattle's Lynn Campbell, co-owners with a third U.S. businessman of the Avalon, said Thursday that if the government was to reopen the Marguerite service, withdrawn last fall by Canadian Pacific Ltd., there would be no point in them operating their service.

Package deal

The province is believed to be negotiating a package deal with CP and its real estate subsidiary, Marathon Realty, to buy not only the Marguerite but also Marathon's 10-acre Inner Harbor property.

But both Transport Minister Robert Strachan and Resources Minister Robert Williams would give no indication Thursday of when a decision would be reached on the transaction.

Orr told the Colonist the province in January had turned down his group's invitation to buy into the Avalon service.

And so the group — which has CP berthing space in Seattle committed to it — started to investigate the possibility of docking at the Black Ball terminal in the Inner Harbor.

Black Ball

Black Ball went along with the idea as there would be no apparent conflict of sailing schedules with its own ferry service.

But Orr said Thursday his investigation showed it was not "economically feasible" to modify the terminal to accommodate the Avalon's foot passengers.

Orr's latest scheme is to get permission for a floating berth fronting the harbor seawall, with the Avalon docking parallel to Black Ball's Coho ferry.

Orr said the Causeway's Imperial Esso service station could perhaps act as a customs shed to process passengers from the U.S.

Murmurs

The Avalon, however, has raised murmurs from Don Nixon who manages the local tourist promotional and information bureau on the Causeway.

Nixon hopes the prospect of such a venture will not cause the province to change its change its mind about buying the Marguerite, which with the carrying capacity of up to 2,000 passengers brought some 16,500 cars to Victoria last year.

He maintains the Marguerite "is the only answer" and that the Avalon would be acceptable only as an additional service.

His views are echoed by bureau president Terry Farmer who points out that without the car-carrying capability of the Marguerite, there will be intolerable lineups at the Island's Black Ball and Swartz Bay terminals.

Ald. William Tindall, a director of the tourist bureau, says the Avalon run would be better than nothing. "Half a loaf is better than none."

Tindall notes that even if the Marguerite service were to be reopened by the government, it's a "little late" as far as Victoria's tourist business is concerned.

Tour bus operators, left in limbo by the closure of the run, have had to reroute via Port Angeles and Swartz Bay.

"The government is in the driver's seat on this thing," said Tindall, who feels the province is using the Marguerite as a "lever" to acquire the Marathon site at a reasonable price.

The 10-acre site has been the subject of price-haggling for 18 months.

On the verge

In August, 1973, the city announced it was on the verge of concluding a deal with Marathon Realty — at a price of about $1.2 million — but at that point the provincial government stepped in and took over negotiations with the company.

Meanwhile, Orr maintains there is "no way" that the Marguerite or similar ship can be operated at a profit.

Even if the government takes over the ship, it would be unlikely it could be put into operation by the start of the summer tourist season.

As far as the Avalon is concerned, said Orr, "we have to have some answers or we have to disregard this particular route."

Local flavor

The Avalon would then be recommitted to her California-Mexico route.

If the Avalon went into service, it would be renamed — to give local flavor — and the cost for a single passenger round-trip fare would be about $16.80.

The CP fare had been $14 in the last 1974 season of operation.

CP blamed soaring fuel expenses, inflation and manpower costs for the Marguerite's discontinuance. The vessel required a 95-man crew and was steam-powered.

The Avalon, powered by four gas turbines, needs only a seven-man crew, including only two union members.

The six-year-old ship, complete with luxury features, could probably add Victoria-Port Angeles runs during the five-hour layover period, and would operate between May and the end of September.

Island girl given $1.1 million award

An 18-year-old Courtenay girl was awarded $1.1 million general damages in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria on Wednesday, believed the highest award in the Commonwealth for injuries received in a traffic accident.

Corrine Rhonda Lissell was paralysed in a motorcycle accident in 1972. The operator of the motorcycle on which Miss Lissell was a passenger was Randy David Cox, 23, now a sawmill worker at Williams Lake.

The injury found both Cox and Paul negligent. Cox was found 95 per cent at fault and Paul 5 per cent.

'Workers want place in sun just as do businessmen'

British Columbia is in for a rough year of labor negotiations, the president of one of the province's largest union locals told an audience of about 150 self-confessed "devout capitalists" at The Empress Thursday.

Workers in the province — for the most part — have yet to catch up with inflation and are going to demand wage settlements to do that, Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver Labor Council and the International Woodworkers of America local based in that city, told a meeting of Victoria Rotary club.

Thompson told the Rotarians they didn't seem to understand that "we want the same thing you want," to live comfortably in "one of the richest areas of the world."

He said the average wage of a federal mint worker in Ottawa (mint workers recently settled a lengthy strike against the government) was about $4 an hour, adding such a wage was "a disgrace . . . in this day and age."

A similar situation exists on the municipal level in British Columbia, Thompson said, where most workers get an average of a little more than $4.50 an hour.

Base rate in his own industry now stands at $5.25 an hour, he said, and that was the lowest wage in the forest industry — "most make more."

"Businessmen want their place in the sun and working people are now going to insist on their place in the sun," he said.

"Labor doesn't want strikes . . . we're the ones who go short on groceries in a strike."

But, he added, workers have shown they're not afraid to strike if they need to, because strikes pay off in higher wages.

"I don't know of any other way for working people to get a just share of the wealth they create than our present system," the union president said.

He said the living wages his own union's members are now paid "weren't given to us because they (the companies) liked us, or because they wanted to pay them; they were squeezed out of them."

Check at border 'only suggestion'

Canadian bus drivers crossing into the United States at Blaine, Wash., do not have to produce fingerprint and photographic identification before being admitted to the U.S.

MP Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) told the Colonist Thursday, in a telephone interview from Ottawa, that photographs and fingerprints of Canadian bus drivers were only a suggestion, not a regulation.

Munro said this kind of identification has not been demanded at any other border crossing.

Doug MacGregor, a driver with Vancouver Island Coach Lines said this week he was informed last weekend by U.S. customs officials at Blaine that "the next time you must supply us with a photograph and be fingerprinted."

To prevent fires

Seal off hotel, owner ordered

Fire escapes were removed from the Drake Hotel Thursday to prevent any more fires.

Victoria fire department, which has put out three mattress fires in the unoccupied building in the last two weeks, ordered the owner to seal off the hotel and rip down the escapes.

Part-owner Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf said the escapes enabled transients, who were looking for a place to have a "good party," to get into the building.

The alderman and developer has plans to restore 10 brick tenements backing on the Government Street liquor store, and owns other property on the block which includes the Drake Hotel.

He said crews removed fire escapes from five of the tenements, but left them on five which are still occupied.

Tanker issue on agenda

Passage of oil tankers through Juan de Fuca Strait and Puget Sound will be discussed at a Canada—U.S. conference on energy in Washington on March 18. Senators Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson of Washington state, both Democrats, said Thursday they have had assurances that the tanker issue will be raised.

Bridge tourney weekend set

Victoria's unit of the American Contract Bridge League will hold its 18th sectional tournament at The Empress this weekend.

There will be women's pairs, men's pairs, open pairs, masters and non-masters' pairs and a two session Swiss team event Sunday.

Court won't quash murder charge

An application to have a Victoria murder charge declared a legal nullity was denied Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Judge William Ostler and the lawyer who made the bid indicated later he might take the matter to a higher court.

The legal argument provided the high point in a morning session which saw two persons appear before Ostler on separate charges of murder punishable by life imprisonment.

The appearances of Larry Lovell, 20, of CFB Naden, and Edward Robert Nicholet, 21, of 1345 Pandora, were credited with bringing out one of the largest crowds in history at 633 Fisgard. The spectators' section was filled and 45 persons were standing as court began at 10 a.m.

Lovell, facing a two-count charge in the murders of two women Sept. 6 in an Esquimalt store, was the first to appear and said only six words during his brief hearing.

Prosecutor C. W. Vause said Vancouver lawyer-alderman Harry Rankin had been retained to defend Lovell and had asked for a one-week remand so a psychiatric examination could be held.

Lovell said, "Yes sir" twice when Ostler asked if he understood and agreed. The remand was set at first to March 13 but Lovell was called back moments later when Vause said it should have been March 14. Asked again if he agreed, Lovell repeated, "Yes sir."

A few minutes later Nicholet was called on a charge laid after the drowning Saturday of his wife Patricia, 18.

Victoria lawyer Ted Pollard, appointed by Legal Aid to defend Nicholet, applied immediately to have the charge declared a nullity and called lawyer Robert Monaghan, who had appeared as Legal Aid duty counsel when Nicholet was charged Monday afternoon.

Monaghan testified he had seen the typed charge just before it was read to Nicholet and it was not signed by a justice of the peace as all charges must be.

Ostler asked if Monaghan had told the court of the apparent defect and the lawyer replied he "took the position" his job was to instruct Nicholet on basic procedures, not the merits of the charge. They would be left to the lawyer chosen by Legal Aid.

Vause said the document now had the proper signature and added that "we don't know at what point it was unsworn . . . and anyway, the matter can be resolved by a new information (charge)."

Denying the application, Ostler said the charge had the required signature and was "good on its face." If it was unsworn Monday, he said, Monaghan allowed Nicholet to be remanded in custody "on an information that he himself felt at the time was a nullity."

Pollard said outside court he was considering an application in a higher court next week to continue his campaign against the charge.

Sources said the charge was signed by a justice of the peace Monday after Monaghan saw it but before it was read. Even if a higher court rules it a nullity, they said, a new document can be drawn up containing the same charge against Nicholet.

The mandatory preliminary hearing in the case was set by Ostler for June 10 and 11 but indications later were the date would be changed because of unavailability of police witnesses.

Pollard said he would go to a higher court next week to seek release of Nicholet on bail.

First aid for MLAs

Health Minister Dennis Cocke Tuesday challenged MLAs to take advantage of a first aid program which he said has been made available to members by St. John Ambulance.

UVic societies to tread wary middle ground

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

Victoria is more than just a rest-home city, it is the compromise centre of the nation.

And if eccentricity can be defined as the quaint extremism of middle-of-the-roaders then Victoria can well lay claim to being Canada's eccentric capital.

It basks in the sweet showers and sunshine of the silly season at a time when other Canadian cities are still wallowing in the slush and scandal of high seriousness.

The University of Victoria has long been a pioneer in this regard and has just spawned a society titled SLUTS-SMUTS or, if you prefer, SMUTS-SLUTS.

Loosely translated, SLUTS spells out Society of Ladies to Uphold Traditional Standards. For SMUTS replace Ladies with men.

SMUTS - SLUTS organizer Anita Copeland, a writer for the university paper, the Martlet, and English major who hails originally from Texas, says that so far the society's men and ladies have held only informal pub meetings.

Despite its extremist title the society is opposed to the "polarization" of points of view.

And Miss Copeland says it aims to tread a wary middle ground between that occupied by "male chauvinist pigs" and "blatant women's libbers".

For example, one of the traditional standards this don't-rock-the-boat society wants upheld is the time-honored separation of men's and women's restrooms.

Most of the "big battles" for female equality have been won, says Miss Copeland, who points out that it is extremely easy for extremist groups to "get incensed by something they really don't believe."

Take "sexist advertising," for example, which her society favors "as long as it sells the product."

To clamp down on such advertising would be to treat a symptom and not a cause, she says "You can't force people to change their minds."

Any ban would also represent a kind of censorship, she says. "Where do you draw the line, above or below the waist?"

Miss Copeland herself does not want to go "forcing myself on other people" and finds it "very difficult to get really upset about things."

The society's stand against moral censorship may, however, test its traditional live-and-let-live stance.

Egged on by reports of officially-sanctioned nude bathing in the south of England, Miss Copeland has given notice that her society may well descend upon a Greater Victoria beach to sunbathe au naturel.

This would be later in the year, of course. "It's too cold right now," says the representative of a society which makes a point of upholding that most traditional of standards, practicality.

Talent nights offered

Amateur entertainers in Greater Victoria are being offered the chance to win cash prizes and gain recognition by performing in a series of talent nights sponsored by the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans.

Each Wednesday night for a 12-week period, a group of three or four entertainers will perform at the ANAF hall, 1001 Wharf, and one from each week will be chosen to participate in finals during April.

Ron Richardson, chairman of the group's entertainment committee, says the purpose of the project is to encourage local talent while providing entertainment for the 1,000-member club.

Concert master given grant

A $5,000 Canada Council Grant has been awarded to Harry Cawood, Victoria Symphony Orchestra concert master.

This type of grant is given only in special circumstances and the nominated artist must have exhibited a high standard in his art.

Drawing welfare better than minimum wages

TORONTO (CP) — Ruth Lariviere, 29, who has four young children, says she dislikes being on welfare but that drawing welfare benefits is better than working on a minimum-wage job.

"You don't have anything on welfare," Mrs. Lariviere said in an interview. "They don't give you enough to live on and you have no independence."

She said she hopes Canada Manpower will train her so she can work at a job that pays more than the minimum wage.

Mrs. Lariviere, who has a Grade 9 education and no skills, said the father of her children deserted her just before last Christmas when they lived in Montreal.

She was one year old and her mother was pregnant when her father deserted them. Later on she quit school to help look after her four young half-brothers and sisters.

"You have second-hand clothes or clothes people give you," she said. "You don't have things of your own."

She said she has had herself sterilized because she is determined that her children will have an education.

Tweed Curtain image dead — co-ordinator

Who'd ever say that something is wrong in Oak Bay?

Nancy Wilkin will — but not just yet.

She is co-ordinating eight Oak Bay residents and eight interviewers, under the name of the interim advisory committee, to determine just what is the matter with Oak Bay.

She is a little reluctant to speak of problems in the community because she doesn't want to influence responses to the survey which will be conducted in April 1.

"But it is just like any other community. Oak Bay has people on welfare, drugs, probation and has lonely people," Mrs. Wilkin said.

Oak Bay didn't have one big social conflict to gather the community around, such as Victoria West had in housing, she added.

One problem, she said, is convincing the interviewers that they are doing something socially relevant.

"Here we are actually sitting around discussing community problems," she said. "The Tweed Curtain image is dead."

The interviewers will survey, first, the organizations which service the municipality, second, the professionals which service the municipality, and third, the residents of Oak Bay.

A random sampling of the survey will be taken at the group's first public meeting, March 13 at 7:30 p.m., at the Oak Bay Senior Citizens Centre, 1442 Monterey Avenue.

Films nominated

Two highly acclaimed animated productions from the National Film Board of Canada, called Hunger and The Family That Dwelt Apart, have been nominated for Academy Awards.

The two films, which have already proved to be winners in international competitions, will vie for the award for best animated short film.

Hunger, a computer-animated film by Peter Foldes, has taken awards at Cannes, Edinburgh, Chicago and Barcelona. This 11-minute story about human gluttony was produced with the help of a National Research Council computer.

The Family That Dwelt Apart, a lighthearted story of overkilling with kindness, is directed by Yvon Malette and based on a story by E.B. White.

The Oscar winner will be announced by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences on April 8 in Hollywood.

More female family heads live in poverty

OTTAWA (CP) — Female heads of families are almost five times more likely to be living below the poverty line than are their male counterparts, a report by the Canadian Council on Social Development (CCSD, says.

The report, released Tuesday, shows 28.7 per cent of such families were headed by women in 1973 compared with 13.2 per cent in 1961.

Families headed by women, the report says, constituted 8.6 per cent of all Canadian families in 1973.

The report gives a male family head 9.3 chances out of 100 of being poor and a female in the same situation 40.1 chances out of 100 of being poor.

The council, using figures from Statistics Canada, defines a family living in poverty as one required to spend more than 70 per cent of its income on food, clothing and shelter.

The study also shows more than 30 per cent of the total single female population — 608,300 — to be on or below the poverty line and more than two-thirds of all women under 25 to have annual incomes of less than $5,000.

The council cites virtually no change in the proportion of the Canadian population living below the povery line between 1967 and 1973. An estimated 18.2 per cent of Canadian families were living in poverty in 1973 compared with 18.1 per cent in 1967.

Poverty-line families in the Maritimes declined by 4.1 per cent from 1961 to 1973 while similar families in the Prairies increased by almost five per cent in the same period.

Low-income families decreased by less than one per cent in Quebec during the 1961-1973 period, but increased by 2.2 per cent in Ontario during that period. The number of families living in poverty conditions in British Columbia decreased by 2.1 per cent from 1961 to 1973.

Large families the study shows, no longer dominate the ranks of the poor. CCSD figures show two-member families to have the highest propensity for poverty conditions.

Natural ingredients

Most daughters think their mothers have some recipes worth keeping, but few set out to write a book about them and fewer yet ever find a publisher.

Helen Corey did both and the book has turned out to be an enduring best seller among cookbooks. "The Art of Syrian Cookery" is now in its 16th printing and going strong.

"I guess I was lucky to be so naive that I didn't know one just doesn't walk into a New York publisher's office with a manuscript and ask them to buy it."

That is what Helen did during a trip to New York in 1962 and Doubleday liked what she offered. It has since become their "best seller" among specialty cookbooks.

"It was quite a chore putting together my mother's recipes, because there were no recipes. She had learned to cook from her mother in Damascus by watching and helping.

"So I sat in her kitchen in Canton, Ohio, for about two years 'translating' handfuls and pinches into cups and teaspoonfuls." She also did a great deal of research into the religious and cultural significance of the foods.

"I think the book is still doing so well because with all the emphasis on natural, unrefined foods, Syrian cookery is a perfect answer.

"What could be more natural than ingredients like yogurt, cracked wheat and sesame seeds? Syrians have always eaten basic foods, but now it is considered chic."

While all Middle Eastern food is similar, the spicing and saucing make the difference. Lebanese is basically the same cuisinne and the Trukish influence shows up in some Syrian dishes, notably in the strong black coffees.

Kibby, which Helen Corey describes as the national dish of Syria and Lebanon, is made from fine cracked wheat (called burghol or bulgur), lamb and onion. Following is the basic recipe and one of the variations:

Author Corey with specialties

RAW KIBBY

2 lbs. lean ground lamb or beef.

One and one-half cups fine cracked wheat.

Salt and pepper to taste.

One-half cup cold water.

Rinse wheat in pan of water; drain by cupping hands and squeezing out all moisture. Add to wheat the meat, onions, salt and pepper. Grind or knead all ingredients together well.

After grinding or kneading, add one-half cup cold water to soften, and knead again. Melted butter, spooned over kibby when ready to serve, is a tasty addition. Serves six to eight.

FRIED KIBBY

Raw kibby.
One-fourth cup pine nuts.
3 tbsps. butter.
One-half tsp.salt.
One-fourth tsp. pepper.
Bowl of ice water.
Oil.

Saute nuts and lamb in butter. Season with spices. Shape kibby like footballs by rolling in palms of hands into five-inch balls. Press finger in opening at one end to make a hollow.

Place a spoonful of nut-lamb mixture in opening and close end. Dip hand in ice water while shaping miniature footballs. Fry in hot oil until golden brown. Serves eight.

COMBINATION SALAD

6 tomatoes
2 green peppers
1 bunch green onions
1 avocado
One-half bunch parsley
1 bunch radishes
1 cucumber
1 tbsp. fresh or dried mint
1 tsp. garlic powder
Salt and pepper to taste
One-third cup olive oil
Juice of 3 lemons

Chop vegetables and combine. Add seasonings, oil and lemon juice, toss and serve to eight.

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: As for that character who wanted to know what unemployed housewives do all day besides shop in the stores and talk on the phone, I'd like to enlighten him. I became an authority on the subject last month when my wife went to the hospital for a hysterectomy. She scheduled the surgery during my annual two-week vacation so I could stay home and take care of our children, 6 and 8.

I cooked three unbelievably rotten meals every day, did the laundry five times, tried to iron a few things, burned a hole in our daughter's best blouse and scorched a couple of pairs of the boy's pants.

Housekeeping was impossible. As soon as I got the place looking halfway decent, the kids and their friends messed things up.

My wife deserves a gold medal. How she manages to keep the house spotless, do the marketing, cooking, washing and ironing, take the kids to the dentist, for piano lessons, sew costumes, drive my mother around, bake cakes for sick neighbors and be active in the American Cancer Society, is beyond me.

I hope you will print this on March 7, her birthday. My so-called "average" housewife is a miracle worker and she deserves to read this letter on that special day. — True Believer

Dear True: Here's your letter — and on the day requested. That sound you hear is millions of women blowing kisses. (P.S. Whenever I hear that phrase "unemployed housewives" I hit the ceiling. Many women work as hard IN the house as others do OUT. Maybe harder.)

Dear Ann Landers: Our nephew, a physician, was recently married to a young woman who has a Ph.D. in history. How should this couple be addressed? We feel that Dr. and Mrs. John Smith is incorrect since the woman is not getting proper recognition for the title she has a right to be proud of. Please inform us. — Status Minded

Dear S.M.: Dr. and Mrs. is perfectly O.K. (Maybe she worked harder to get the guy than she did to get the Ph.D.) If you want to go all out, however, you could address them as Dr. John Smith and Dr. Jean Smith, or Drs. John and Jean Smith. If none of these satisfy you, I suggest that you ask THEM the question.

Dear Ann Landers: In reference to the 2½-year-old hyperactive boy, your advice to seek another medical opinion was good. However, I wish you had suggested a physician trained in neurology and psychology — one who would take the time to do exhaustive tests and find out if the hyperactivity is physical or psychological.

Physicians who lack the training or refuse to take the time to get the root of the problem often prescribe drugs which can lead to dependence or even death if the child has a heart dysfunction. I am not a doctor, but my friend's 5-year-old is hyper and the first doctor put him on a certain drug. His mother got a second opinion from a specialist. He said continuing on that drug could have been disastrous. Please print my letter. — Northport Reader

Dear N.R.: Thank you for reinforcing my original counsel: "Get another medical opinion." It's excellent health insurance and could spell the difference between life and death.

Ban sought on DES in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation was introduced Wednesday to ban the use of the hormone DES as a cattle feed additive and to place a one-year moratorium on its use as a "morning after" contraceptive.

Sens. Edward Kennedy, D — Mass., and Richard Schweiker, R — Pa., the sponsors, said DES (diethylstilbestrol) is a proven cause of cancer in humans and its "widespread misuse" has created an urgent situation.

Kennedy and Schweiker said that effective today, new regulations by the Food and Drug Administration will allow use of DES as a contraceptive in "emergency situations."

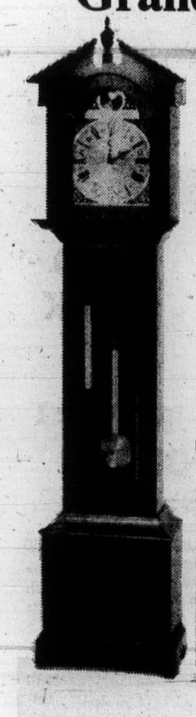

But testimony in recent hearings on the decision indicated the hormone is being widely prescribed as a morning after pill, especially on college campuses, without the "emergency" considerations.

The senators said the FDA has not taken the necessary steps to warn patients of the serious risks involved with DES usage. The one-year moratorium, they said, would allow congress and the FDA to develop better data about its dangers.

Kennedy also expressed concern about DES working its way back into the food supply at alarmingly high levels.

Trash pileup 'not hazard'

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Wednesday that steadily growing piles of garbage in Greater Victoria do not yet constitute a health hazard.

He made the statement in the Legislature in response to a question from Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay).

Wallace wanted to know what was being done about inadequate water, sewer and food inspection during the strike-lockout of Canadian Union of Public Employees, how often such reports were being received and how serious was the health hazard.

Cocke said he had received no reports of any extra hazard since the strike started and he didn't think there was any need for him to act.

Wallace asked if the minister had any contingency plan should there be an outbreak of food poisoning or any other disease as a result of the strike.

X was never like this.
Emmanuelle is sensual, but she's elegant. Emmanuelle is fantasy, but she's fun. But most important she leaves you with a singular lack of guilt. This extraordinary film allows all of us to look unflinchingly into the face of sensuality for perhaps the first time. And that's the clue to its overwhelming popularity. It's the first film of its kind that lets you feel good without feeling bad.

'Treaty didn't shortchange B.C.'

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Krutilla, a United States resource economist, thinks British Columbia was not shortchanged in the Columbia River Treaty.

"I felt the Canadians had done hard bargaining and negotiated extraordinarily hard and successfully," he said in a telephone interview from his home outside Washington, D.C. "I do not share the views of those who felt they had been short-changed."

Krutilla, who is with Washington-based Resources for the Future, analysed various alternatives at the time the treaty was being negotiated.

He was quoted in a recent CBC documentary on the treaty as saying that two of the Canadian dams built under the treaty — the Keenleyside and the Duncan — did not have to be built to meet the terms of the agreement with the U.S.

Krutilla said that in retrospect there is "theoretical redundancy" in the building of the two dams.

"But if one were to ask the question, could this have been avoided, I would be hard pressed to say that it could," he said.

This, he said, was because of a change in administrationss and climates between the time the treaty was first negotiated and ratified by the U.S. senate in 1961 and the time of the final approval by Canada.

While some money could have been saved by starting from scratch in 1964, he said, the Canadian negotiators did not want to lose some of the more favorable terms they had gained earlier.

Krutilla said he was "extraordinarily impressed" with the performance of the Canadian negotiators.

"They even analysed the problem of inflation and decided what they would have to get out of the negotiations to cover 5 per cent a year inflation — at a time when no one was considering inflation," he said.

NDP defeats non-confidence

Budget 'vagueness' rapped

The NDP government Thursday defeated the opposition's motion of non-confidence in the budget debate by a vote of 31 to 17.

The motion, which was debated all day Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, claimed the government had failed to establish budget priorities for revenue-sharing with municipalities, for incentives to stimulate housing and to develop a greater number of job opportunities.

Opposition members pounced on the vagueness of details available to municipalities regarding revenue-sharing based on the export price of natural gas when they were heading into decisions on their own budgets.

"Municipal council after municipal council has gone over the (government's) budget and declared that the municipal tax levels will have to increase," Liberal leader David Anderson said in his speech Thursday afternoon.

It is evident, he said, they will not receive the money they require (from the government) and to tie it to natural gas export price only makes the situation more unrealistic.

Anderson's solution was to give municipalities a portion of the liquor tax and the gasoline tax to "help them judge with some precision what they would be getting."

He said he was appalled by how little he heard about the over-all problem of housing in the province.

As first speaker Thursday in the adjourned debate, Nicolson defended his department. He said housing starts in B.C. may be down 16 per cent but in Ontario they are down 25 per cent.

The opposition might understand what is going on, he said, "if they'd put B.C. first, ahead of their lust for power."

He said municipalities can't afford to go into housing because the government treats them like poor relations.

"It's too expensive to do business with this government," McClelland said, "because it won't put its cards on the table."

He said the government expects municipalities to promote housing yet refuses to make grants to help pay for services.

"The NDP didn't invent social reform, but it's imposing socialism . . . It's following a blind allegiance to some kind of ideology which adds up to no help for the housing crisis."

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said that McClelland had been taught since he was a child "to dislike certain little words like 'socialists'."

British Columbia used to be the laughing stock of Canada when the Social Credit government neglected to take advantage of federal assistance in housing, Cocke said.

"We still are," said a member of the opposition.

Cocke said there was no Pharmacare under the Socreds. "I know because I happened to take over that program. That party was bankrupt of any social philosophy."

Cocke accused the opposition of being "terribly resentful" of anything good happening in the province. "There is a lot happening and you are very resentful."

NDP ad 'contravenes law'

A warning that someone may soon charge the provincial government under its own Trade Practices act was issued Thursday by Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey).

McGeer, waving a full-page newspaper advertisement listing the benefits of this year's provincial budget, said it contravened the Trade Practices Act because it was not truthful, contained false information and failed to tell the whole story.

"It is sleazy political manipulation," McGeer said, "and it was paid for with my money."

He said that with the departure of Social Credit from government he had hoped "such flagrant use of public funds to boost one party's image" would end. "But it has been continued and accelerated," he said.

McGeer said that under the act any citizen could lay a charge against the minister of finance, Premier Barrett.

"This kind of thing is no longer legal in B.C.," McGeer continued. "I do not believe this advertisement would stand the test of truth in a court of law."

Drawing McGeer's wrath was the section of the advertisement placed in all daily newspapers in the province claiming extra benefits for the municipalities through natural gas export prices when the price goes higher than $1 per thousand cubic ft.

"If municipalities prepared a budget on the basis of this ad, they would be breaking the law," McGeer said. The advertisement states that if the price of exported natural gas was $1.50 per thousand, municipalities would have $20 million in extra revenues to share.

"There's no guarantee that we shall get $1.50," McGeer said. "There's not even a guarantee that we shall get $1.35 and, even if we did, it would be July of this year before the municipalities would get a penny."

McGeer said that based on a $1.35 per thousand cubic feet price, he estimated the extra revenues would be $14 million a year, not the $20 million mentioned in the advertisement.

Strachan 'will check'

Socred says ICBC sent cheque in error

Newell Morrison (SC—Victoria) thanked Transport Minister Robert Strachan Thursday for $254.42 cheque for work done in Morrison Chevrolet-Oldsmobile body shop.

Morrison said he was particularly happy to receive the cheque though mystified because the body shop "hasn't been in operation for five years."

The local MLA raised the matter during question period because two days ago Strachan told the Legislature there were no management problems in the Insurance Corporation of B.C.

"I now have three similar cheques in my file," Morrison told the house, "and I'm wondering how many hundreds more are drifting around the province."

Outside the Legislature, Morrison showed reporters the cheque dated Dec. 18, 1974 and carrying Morrison Chevrolet-Oldsmobile's code number with ICBC.

"Don't ask me how they gave me a code number," Morrison said. "We went out of the auto body business in 1969 but, as the company is still listed, I can only guess that they just gave everybody a vendor's number."

One of the other cheques in Morrison's file was forwarded to him by a Sooke woman. The cheque was for $11 "and the lady still doesn't know what it's for," Morrison said. "She sent it to me as a donation for the party."

James Chabot (SC—Columbia River) also has an ICBC cheque on file. It is made out to Reid's Auto Towing and Wreckers, Golden.

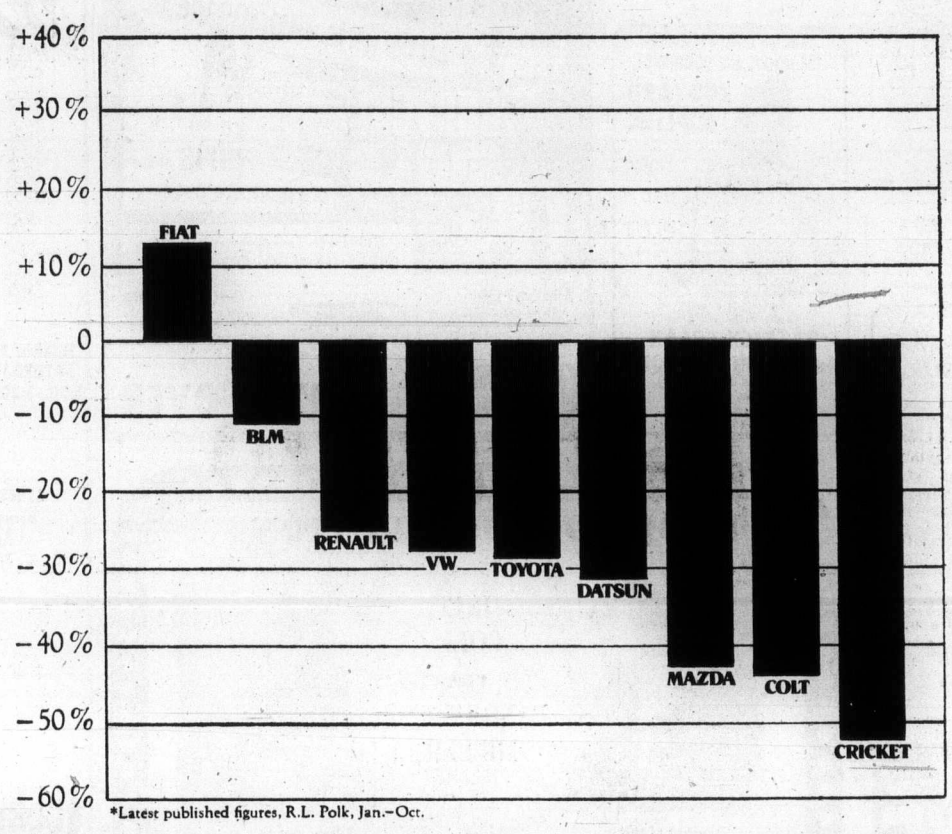

"The cheque is for $58.25," Chabot said. "But my constituent at least knew what it was for. It was for towing a car from Lac la Hache to 100 Mile House. The only problem is that Lac la Hache is quite a distance from Golden, he never did a job there and, anyway, he went out of business in September, 1972."

Strachan asked the MLA's to return the cheques to ICBC and promised to look into the matter. He insisted the cheques did not constitute a management problem.

"A mismanagement problem, maybe?" suggested Allan Williams (L—Vancouver-Howe Sound).

Both Morrison and Chabot expressed dissatisfaction with the answers given by Strachan.

"I wonder how many hundred of them there are out in the province," Morrison said. "And I wonder if we'll ever find out how many have been cashed by people appreciative of a windfall."

*Latest published figures, R.L. Polk, Jan.–Oct.

There must be a reason.

In a year when new car sales were down 4.3%*, how do you explain Fiat dealers across Canada having the best year in their history?

How do you make sense out of the fact that while the entire import industry was down 26%, Fiat sales were up over 13%?

The explanation is not really that difficult.

Many Canadians have simply given up on big, expensive, gas-guzzling, inefficient cars. The idea of the car as a status symbol has heard its death rattle.

What Canadians have started looking for instead is practical, intelligent, sensible transportation. And that's just what we offer.

By looking above, however, you'll notice that Canadians haven't turned to everyone's small car.

You see, people don't want to give up everything for practicality. And we don't force them to.

We've found ways of offering people the advantages of big cars without the disadvantages of small ones.

Our cars don't make you feel cramped or claustrophobic. They have good acceleration. Their handling is nothing short of extraordinary.

Our cars are economical. But they're by no means Spartan. Instead of loading them down with gadgetry, we've given them things that make them perform better. Things you don't find in cars costing hundreds, even thousands of dollars more. Front-wheel drive which gives you extra traction for winter driving. All-independent suspension for better handling and surer cornering. Power-assisted front-disc brakes.

Little by little, we're starting to see other manufacturers emulate our kind of car. A few are coming out next year. Some in 1978. But for now, if you want all of what we've got, your Fiat dealer is the only game in town. And the figures show it.

Patient sleuths prevail

CHICAGO — Two patient detectives plodded through 138 out-of-town telephone directories to track down a Great Neck, N.Y., man wanted in a murder committed in Chicago nearly 25 years ago, authorities said.

But now that he has been found, there is some doubt Chauncey Travick, 63, a man described by friends as a hard-working cab driver and church-going model citizen, will have to face trial. Authorities said it may depend on a new search for witnesses to the crime.

Travick was arrested in Great Neck on Long Island by Nassau County police after they received a teletype message from Chicago authorities.

Authorities said he has the same name, fingerprints and social security number as the man a witness said shot to death Tommie Lee Lasheley, 21, at a South Side bus stop on Nov. 16, 1950. Travick, a cook in a Loop hotel, disappeared after the shooting and a murder warrant was issued for him.

"It sounds a little far out, but we didn't have anything else to go on," Kennedy said, "so we tried the telephone books."

OTTAWA — A House of Commons committee has found there was no evidence to support the charge made by Social Credit party leader Real Caouette that members of Parliament bribe reporters.

□

QUEBEC — Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer told a provincial inquiry the Quebec government was unable to command respect for the law in the construction industry.

□

WASHINGTON — Otto Kerner, the ailing former federal judge and Illinois governor, won release Thursday after serving seven months of a three-year sentence for bribery and tax evasion.

□

CALGARY — Jerry Herbert Daiter, 42, was fined $500 for smuggling 50 pornographic films, including Deep Throat, into Canada last Oct. 10. Daiter, operator of a formal evening wear rental shop here, was arrested at the Carway, Alta., border crossing when customs officers found the films and $880 worth of pornographic books in the trunk of his car.

□

OSLO — King Olav of Norway, 72, will address the United Nations during his unofficial visit to the United States in July, a spokesman said. The king, who last visited the U.S. in 1968, will attend celebrations marking the 150th anniversary of Norwegian emigration to the United States.

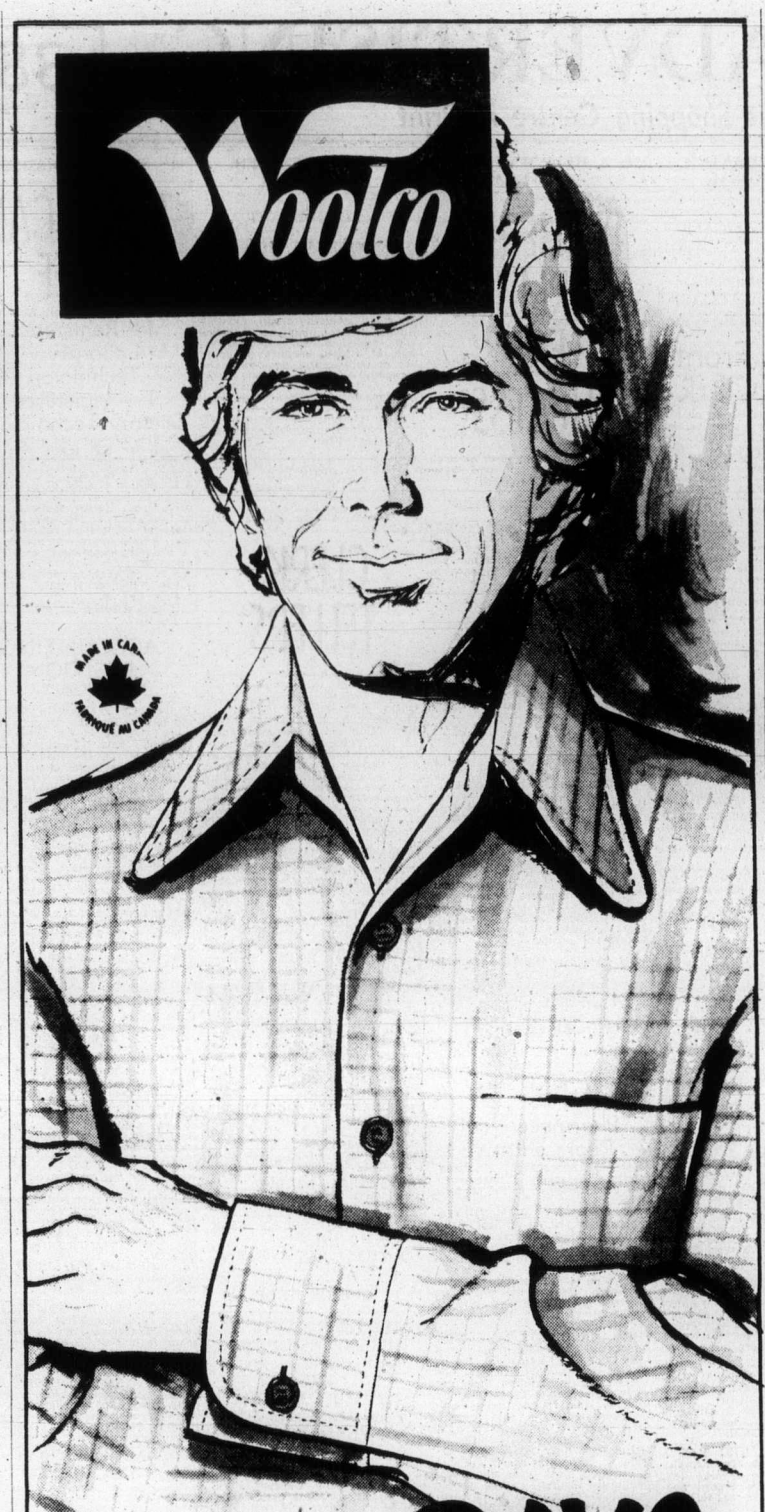

□

JERUSALEM — Haim Bar-Lev, former Israeli chief of staff and a veteran of five wars, has come out the winner of yet another skirmish — this time with a mouse. Bar-Lev went into action and kicked the mouse to death after the rodent invaded a session of Parliament here. He then held the mouse aloft to prove it was dead. But the move didn't particularly impress legislator Matilda Gez. She refused to return to her seat.

□

CARDIFF — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger ran into a swarm of rain-soaked demonstrators outside the city hall of this Welsh port city. The 400 demonstrators, including Greek-Cypriots, Welsh nationalists, Marxists and electricians demanding more pay, shouted obscenities and brandished banners, but no incidents were reported.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

To the many friends who sent expressions of sympathy on the passing of Gloria Mortimore Sewell, her husband, Raymond Sewell, and her mother, Thelma Jones, wish to express their sincere thanks, and regret that it would be impractical to thank each one individually. We would like, however, to pass on to you Gloria's last message to all of us, a message of faith:

Perspective
Hey! Who snuffed out my candle!
"That's unavoidable, "Death explained.
"It's the draught when you open the door.
Don't give it another thought,
Gloria Mortimore Sewell.

We wish to extend our thanks to our many friends for their kindness and expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement of John T. Marsh. Your generous donations towards the Cancer Society are most appreciated. Special thanks to the Staff of 2 Royal, Royal Jubilee Hospital and Drs. Nuggent, Lockier and Huff. Also to pallbearers, Pastor Hawkes and the staff of McCalls.
The Marsh Family

Show business has too many awards but I'm in favor of the latest batch, the Barrys, dreamed up by Barry Bowman of C-FAX and passed on by that little old award winner, Mel Cooper.

Barry's Barry nominations include The Fall of '42 as best picture. It's the story of 50 people walking on a Victoria street and only eight seeing the open manhole.

Others are best actor, Euell Gibbons in Please Eat the Daisies, best director, Richard Nixon for Plantet of the Tapes and supporting actor Tony Orlando for Dawn with the Wind.

Now you've got the general idea, nominate your own. For best song, how about Peter Pollen singing "I'd rather have a CUPE doll."

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer Eleanor Parker's leading men have included Bogart, Chain Lightning; Sinatra, Man with the Golden Arm; Heston, Naken Jungle, and Gable, The King and Four Qutens. Her only TV series was Bracken's World

Today's question does the same bit with James Stewart. Name his leading ladies in The Glenn Miller Story, The Man Who Knew Too Much, Rear Window and You Can't Take It With You. Did Stewart ever star in an Alfred Hitchcock movie? The obvious answers appear here Saturday.

"The tremor registered 3.6 on the Richter scale and was centered just south of Los Angeles."

Friday highlights

7:00 p.m. — A special entitled Gorilla was filmed in Zaire and is about gorillas. Same thing on Channel 12 at 8 p.m., oddly enough—7.

7:00 — Two more hours of world figure skating—8.

8:00 — PBS starts its second run of Vienna 1900 Games with Love and Death, a six-parter based on stories on Arthur Schnitzler—9.

12:00 — Tonight's only rock concert—5.

Friday movies

12:00 noon — The Couch (1962 psycho drama), Grant Williams, Shirley Knight. Good for this time of day, but not for small fry—11.

12:45 — Gunfight at Dodge City (1959 Joel McCrea) Routine for this time of day—8.

2:30 p.m. — Wild in the Country (1961 Elvis). He goes wild in the country and gets rich; I went wild in the country and got arrested—5.

8:00 — Second Best Secret Agent in the Whole Wide World (1965 Tom Adams). When anything in the Bond style got onto the screen—11.

● 9:00 — Bonnie and Clyde (1967 ganster classic), Warren Beatty, Faye Dunaway and family. I didn't say like it; what I did say is it must be considered a movie milestone—12.

10:00 — The Specialist (new epidemic suspense), Maureen Reagan. Big deal—8.

12:15 a.m. — Mad Doctor of Market Street (1941 Lionel Atwill horror fun). If Karloff was the heart and soul of the horror film, Atwill transplanted all the other organs—7.

12:30 — The Omegans (1968 sci-fi foofaw)—8.

1:55 — Honor Thy Father (over-shown 1972 Mafia), Raf Vallone, Joe Bologna, Brenda Baccaro. Again, The Bonnanos bunch—6.

● 2:20 — Singin' in the Rain (1952 musical classic), Gene Kelly, Donald O'Connor, Debbie Reynolds. Watch O'Connor in Make 'em Laugh and all the millions of miserable movies fade away—8.

Friday radio

● Recommended.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR., TEAM CAPTAIN

At the All-Western Regional held annually in San Francisco the winners of the Mixed Pairs were Georgiana Gates and Leslie West of San Francisco.

Some misplaced bridge psychology proved the downfall of a few declarers in one of the hands. Usually it pays to keep the defenders off balance and guessing but today's example shows that declarer can sometimes knock himself over rather than the opponents.

After South's original pass with a near opening bid the jump to two no-trump strongly invited game and North was quick to accept.

West led the spade five and declarer obfuscated by playing dummy's 10. Since declarer held the spade nine, the play of dummy's 10 could only be intended to confuse East, but East had nothing to be confused about. He didn't have the spade jack so he merely followed suit and the lead remained in dummy.

A club was led to the queen and a diamond finesse was taken. In a try for as many tricks as possible, the diamond ace was cashed but East's discard brought the bad news and declarer's contract was gone. West's spades would be established before the diamonds and the defense was slightly confused but very happy.

The declarer who forgot about subtle tricks made the hand easily. He won the opening lead with the spade nine and finessed in diamonds. A club was led to the king and another diamond finesse succeeded, East showing out. Declarer now forgot about diamonds. A club was led to the king and another diamond finesse succeeded, East showing out. Declarer now forgot about diamonds and led a spade to establish a ninth trick, while he still had the club queen as an entry to the good spade.

West won the spade ace and cleared the suit but declarer had his contract. He scored two spades, one heart, three diamonds and three clubs for nine easy tricks.

Vulnerable: None. Dealer: South. The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Opening lead: Five of spades.

Bid With Corn:

South holds:

♣ 6 5

North	South

Answer: Two no-trump. Two diamonds is an alternative but with North bidding two suits a good fit is unlikely and the no-trump invitation is most descriptive.

Cranston misses

Russian skaters finish one-two

Volkov, silver medalist in last year's championships in Munich, and Vladimir Kovalev gave the Soviet Union a one-two finish in the event while John Curry of Britain finished third and Toller Cranston of Toronto came fourth.

After building a lead in the compulsory figures, Volkov skated conservatively but without mistake in the short program Wednesday and the free-skating Thursday to finish with 13 ordinals and 231.35 points. Kovalev had 27 ordinals and 228 points, Curry had 23 ordinals and 229.92 points and Cranston had 29 ordinals and 228.69 points, slipping one notch from his Munich finish.

In the women's event, United States-born Dianne de Leeuw of the Netherlands takes a comfortable margin into the free-skating, final portion of the competition. The 19-year-old blonde Californian, who holds dual citizenship and had to go to Holland in 1971 in order to qualify for the world championships, appears to have the title in her grasp after finishing third last year.

Miss de Leeuw has nine ordinals and 125.68 points. Runner-up Kath Malmberg of the U.S. has 26.5 ordinals and 120.70 points and Isadel Denavarre of West Germany is in third place with 38 ordinals and 118.78 points.

Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa, the 18-year-old Canadian champion, made up for a disappointing 13th in the compulsory figures Tuesday with a strong short program to move up to seventh place in the overall standings.

Christine Errath of East Germany, the defending champion, moved up from sixth to fourth after the short program but is given no chance of catching Miss de Leeuw.

Kim Alletson, 16-year-old Canadian silver medalist who skates out of the Minto club with Miss Nightingale, received respectable marks for her short program to move up a notch to 13th place.

In the dance competition, Natalia Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov of the Soviet Union lead but the next three couples are extremely close. Canadian-champions Barbara Berezowski and David Porter of Toronto are in ninth place while Toronto's Susan Carscallen and Eric Gillies are in 12th place.

WHA honors Howe by renaming cup

SAN DIEGO — THE World Hockey Association's most valuable player cup is going to be re-named the Gordie Howe Cup, league-president Dennis Murphy announced Thursday night in ceremonies honoring the hockey great.

Howe, in his 27th season in pro hockey, will retire after this year. The announcement was made in ceremonies before the Houston Aeros-San Diego Mariners game won by the Mariners, 7-4.

Howe is in his second season with the Aeros after spending 25 seasons with Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League. He plays on the club with his two sons, Mark and Marty.

Mariners blew a 4-1 lead but Wayne Rivers broke a 4-4 tie with a goal early in the third period and added his 47th goal of the season five minutes later.

Andre Lacroix, the inaugural WHA scoring champion two seasons ago, collected two assists in the victory to extend his record-setting points streak to 27 straight games. The assists gave him 106 points, boosting the centre one point ahead of Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets in the scoring race.

The win gave Mariners the season series over the defending playoff champions, 5-1.

HOUSTON (4) — Gord Labossier (10th), Frank Hughes (38th), Rich Preston (20th), Andre Hinse (34th); SAN DIEGO (7) — Ray Adduono (12th, 13th), Wayne Rivers (46th, 47th), Mike Laughton (3rd), Gene Peacosh (33rd), Rick Sentes (25th). Attendance 7232.

Hotelmen leader top hoop scorer

John Lauvaas of Hotel Douglas averaged 18.7 points per game to capture the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball Leauge scoring championship.

Defending-champion Jim Cunningham of Stevens Interiors scored a league-high 435 points, but played two more games than Lauvaas, who scored 412, and tied with Charlie Hunter of James bay for second in scoring with an 18.1 points per game.

Chemainus dam

Province to conduct 'full' investigation

The provincial government will make a "full and comprehensive" investigation of alternative water supply sources for North Cowichan, Resources Minister Robert Williams announced Thursday.

Williams, in his capacity as chairman of the cabinet's environment and land use committee, said the committee's earlier decision to permit the damming of the Chemainus River depended on no other adequate or feasible alternative being available.

"However," Williams continued, "it is clear from a preliminary examination of the situation that there has not been a careful, comprehensive and full engineering and technical investigation to establish the basic facts of the case."

The committee's decision to ask for an engineering investigation does not mean it has arrived at any conclusions, he said.

It is simply a recognition that insufficient technical information is available for either the public or the committee to make a fair decision, he added.

"We know that we will need further engineering information," Williams said. "We could have waited until the public hearings were concluded before we asked for investigations to be undertaken, but this would have been a needless waste of time and an attempt to show decisive action as a result of the public hearings. We still intend to hold hearings and hear views but we will do so knowing that some of the technical answers will also be worked on."

M. V. Chesnut's Garden notes

Among the many blessings showered upon those of us fortunate to live upon Vancouver Island, we have been given a climate which is just about made to order for the growing of green peas.

In most other parts of Canada, peas thrive only in the spring and fall, as the plants cannot tolerate the extreme midsummer heat of our hinterlands, and it is a common complaint for the pea vines to pack up and quit bearing after only one or two pickings.

In our cool summers, though, it is possible, through succession sowings, to keep a continual supply of succulent, freshly picked green peas flowing from the garden to the kitchen all through the growing season.

* * *

Any half-decent garden soil will grow peas. It doesn't have to be particularly fertile or rich, for the pea vines secure quite a lot of their nutrients from the atmosphere, thanks to friendly, hard-working bacteria which live on the roots.

In fact, the soil is usually richer in nutrients after a pea crop than before, particularly if the roots are allowed to remain in the ground when the plot is cleaned up in the fall.

Peas must have an unfailing supply of moisture, however, and the best way to ensure this is to keep the soil well stocked with organic material — manure or compost — to act as a sponge for the retention of moisture.

* * *

Before sowing peas — or sweet peas — it is a wise precaution to inoculate the seeds with beneficial bacteria which feed the pea roots by extracting nitrogen from the atmosphere.

This inoculant comes in the form of a black powder, sold in garden shops and centres for less than half a dollar per packet, enough to treat five pounds of seed.

The usual technique is to shake up the seeds in a paper bag together with a spoonful of the powder, so as to coat each seed evenly with the inoculant.

Both the pea vine and its ally, the nitrogen-fixing bacteria, require a sweet soil for proper development, so the site should be given a dressing of hydrated lime.

For most soils hereabouts, 1½ cupfuls per square yard will be adequate, scattered and then scratched into the surface with the rake.

It is best to sow the dwarf kinds fairly thickly, so the vines will support one another to some extent.

I usually sow in a shallow, flat-bottomed trench, two inches deep and a foot wide, spacing the seeds about four inches apart each way.

If more than one row is grown, a three-foot alley is left between the trenches for ease in weeding and picking.

* * *

The idea of the shallow trenches is simply so the pea roots can be irrigated easily in dry weather by flooding the trenches with a trickle from the hose.

With the tall varieties such as Telephone, not so much grown nowadays, the rows are five feet apart and the seeds are sown in a similar shallow trench, but in a double row nine inches apart.

The space between the two lines of seeds is occupied by the pea stocks or netting used to support the tall vines.

Pea sticks are twiggy tree branches standing five feet high and set close enough together so no wandering pea tendril will fail to encounter a support.

* * *

As peas lose their vitamins and sugar content soon after they are picked, they should be eaten or processed as soon as possible after being picked, and they shouldn't be shelled until just befort cooking or freezing. It is a great mistake to cook peas in salted water, as this treatment toughens them.

It is most important to keep the peas picked regularly all through the season, for if the pea vine is allowed to mature its seeds, its purpose in life is fulfilled and it will pack up and quit, producing no more pods.

WASHINGTON — The FBI has finally firmed up its plans as to what it will do to help celebrate the country's bicentennial.

Efrem Zumguard, the agent in charge of American Revolutionary Activities, told me, "The FBI plans to have one of the biggest exhibits of any government institution. We are going to put on display for the first time our top-secret files on George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Alexander Hamilton and Francis Lightfoot Lee."

"I didn't know the FBI still had those files," I said.

"They were found in J. Edgar Hoover's office. He never threw anything away. We also have a very interesting slide show on Benjamin Franklin's sex life."

"Wow. I'd like to see that."

"There isn't anything about the Amerian radicals we didn't know. We have photographs of everyone who participated in the Boston Tea Party, and one of our agents infiltrated Washington's rabble and got the names and addresses of everyone who crossed the Delaware."

* * *

"Then you must have known about Paul Revere?"

"Of course, we knew about Paul Revere. Our agents bugged his horse, and when he rode from Lexington to Concord we got tapes of him shouting, 'The British are coming.' We also had the Old North Church under surveillance for months. When the signal was flashed from the belfry, Hoover knew about it in 48 hours."

"You people were really on the ball."

"We're going to devote one whole wall to Thomas Paine. He was the worst agitator this country has ever known. Hoover was on to him from the start. We have the original copy of 'Common Sense,' the most subversive document that was printed in the last 200 years."

"More subversive than the 'Declaration of Independence'?"

"Maybe it would be a tossup. We're going to have a room set aside for the 'Declaration of Independence' which, going to have a room set aside for the 'Declaration of Independence' which, incidentally, Hoover considered his greatest case. He knew everything that was going on in Philadelphia. The files on the Second Continental Congress would make your hair stand on end. Did you know Jefferson wore a wig and high-heel shoes when he wrote the Declaration?"

"No, I didn't."

"Hoover did. That's why Jefferson couldn't fire him."

"You heard about Betsy Ross and Lewis Morris?"

"Not the Lewis Morris of New York?" I whistled.

"Hoover had pictures of them."

"Before or after she made the flag?"

"During."

"What about Lafayette?"

"He had an illegitimate child by John Paul Jones' wife. King George III really chuckled when he read that one."

"I guess there was no one in the government Hoover didn't know about."

"Do you know the first letter ever sent by the Continental Post Office? We opened it. It was from Jane Fonda's great-great-great-grandmother to Nathan Hale."

"I knew Hoover was diligent, but he seemed to have a sixth sense about things. No wonder everyone in the 13 colonies was afraid of him."

"Now do you want to hear of the piece de resistance of our exhibit?"

"Of course."

Zumguard said, "Remember the famous painting of 'The Spirit of '76'? Hoover had the original in his files. Do you recall the boy on the left playing the drums?"

"Yes."

"He was an FBI undercover agent. That's how we managed to convict the other two."

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Robert Conrad gave Merv Griffin quite a shock the other night at a taping of Merv's show when Conrad calmly announced that one of the stars of his next movie would be a beautiful 21-year-old blonde who had lived with him for many years.

But it was not bleeped.

Conrad was talking about his daughter, Nancy, who plays Bob's daughter in the movie, by the way.

The movie is Sudden Death and Conrad's pal, Texas millionaire Caruth C. Byrd, is executive producer. The two recently completed Murph the Surf and have a movie called Hoffa on the slate.

Conrad is an honorary member of the Teamster's Union and has done a lot of research on Jimmy Hoffa. For instance, he told Merv that the U.S. government spent $13 million in sending Hoffa to prison.

Sudden Death will be shot on location in Manila, Luzon, Bataan, Corregidor and Manila Bay. It's a tentative title but sounds like the Second World War, doesn't it?

Incidentally, Merv once asked Byrd how he made his first million — he has 70 — and Caruth replied:

"Like all good Texas boys, I inherited it."

* * *

Irwin Allen's new deal with Warners will net him millions even if his movies are flops, which will be the day.

Irwin, meanwhile, keeps his five-picture contract with 20th Century-Fox. Warners lured him after he made the first two-studio deal in history with The Towering Inferno.

The whole town is still talking about Irwin's wedding to Sheila Mathews. A source close to the big affair said it cost $100,000 which is what Sam Katsman used to spend on a whole movie.

Floral designer Jef, of Broadway Florists, refused to say how much the flowers alone cost but did say they would have made five floats in the Tournament of Roses.

Sheila's bridal gown was designed by Paul Zastupneyich, who designs for all of Irwin's movies, and it was made of a fabric that no commercial house could possibly come up with. Knowing Irwin, he probably hired 100 nuns in a Belgian convent to weave the material.

The two went on a honeymoon to Palm Springs for a week and then to Europe — Irwin's first trip to the Continent.

Naturally, The Towering Inferno will be opening in European capitals. Once a producer always a producer. It even takes precedence over being a new bridegroom.

Irving Brecher, the writer, said the wedding was so exciting, he can't wait until the sequel comes out: "Irwin Allen's Wedding, Part II."

PROVINCIAL COURT

"At your age, you must be feeling like an old man with all the time you've spent in jail," Judge William Ostler said Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court to a 28-year-old Victoria area man.

"I would think you would try to go straight for a while," he told Kenneth Graham Moorhouse, who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge containing one count of possession of a known stolen credit card and two counts of false pretences in using the card Jan. 27.

Prosecutor C. W. Vause said Moorhouse used it to pay for about $22 worth of liquor. He added Moorhouse had a record of 16 jail terms for 46 offences since mid-1964.

"You've laid a pretty heavy load of criminal convictions on your shoulders," Ostler told Moorhouse. "It can't be attractive to you."

Moorhouse said it wasn't and the judge then asked: "Why not give it up?"

"I don't know," said Moorhouse. "It goes good for a few months and then . . ."

He was sentenced to a total of 18 months for the new offences.

"I got everything worked out now . . . I really consider this a last chance," Ostler was told by Keith Thompson, 25, of 724 Yates, who pleaded guilty to a two-count Vancouver charge of false pretences.

Defence lawyer Robert Glazier said Thompson had turned his life around since cashing two bad cheques last November. He had cleared up his debts, become a father and found a job through the John Howard Society.

Prosecutor Vause said Thompson had a lengthy record but added the crown would not press for a jail term. Ostler agreed "with some reluctance," fining Thompson $200 and putting him on probation for 18 months.

A higher court trial was ordered by Ostler for Eric Donald Huntley, 24, of 1230 Fort, following a preliminary hearing of a Victoria charge of criminal negligence causing death.

The charge followed a collision Aug. 17, 1974, at Blanshard and Hillside in which Robert Wayne Pritchard, 42, of 2898 Colquitz, was killed.

At the request of defence lawyer Alan Patterson, the judge issued an order prohibiting publication or broadcast of evidence during the hearing.

Glenn Albert Parfitt, 20, of 2228 Richmond, and Kenneth Gordon Whitehead, 19, of 506 Gore, elected trial by county court judge on a Victoria charge of possession of marijuana Feb. 26 for the purpose of trafficking. Their preliminary hearing was set for June 9.

□

Sooke resident Serge Gelinas, 20, a recent arrival from Montreal, was fined a total of $275 by Ostler after pleading guilty to two Victoria charges, one of shoplifting $5 worth of salami and ham Wednesday from Woodward's and one of possession of a small amount of marijuana at the time of his arrest.

□

Gerhardt Malcolm Kirmhse, 17, of Sidney, was charged with a break-in and theft Wednesday of the Owl drugstore, 3189 Douglas, and possession of a quantity of stolen pills. He was released on his undertaking to return next week for further hearing.

Police said outside court an estimated $500 worth of tablets had disappeared from the drugstore.

Council takes lowest bid

COURTENAY — Nib Johnston Motors of Courtenay submitted the lowest of three bids received for two new half-ton pick-up trucks. Their bid of $8,410.39 was accepted by council at Monday's meeting.

A-G visits prison to ponder closure

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, whose department is trying to close the Wilkinson Road jail in Saanich as soon as possible, took a quick tip out to the jail Wednesday afternoon to see how soon it can be done.

He had no firm answer when he returned to the legislative buildings.

Macdonald said the jail population Wednesday was about 40, including 10 prisoners and 30 inmates awaiting trial.

He said the 30 people awaiting trial "are mostly people who are unable to raise bail and require maximum security . . . that's the bone of the problem that we have to solve, and I hope we can solve it soon."

The prisoners are only in the jail briefly while waiting to be transferred to the new work camp at Jordan River, the community correctional centre in Victoria or the Snowden forestry camp near Campbell River.

Police seek car, driver

NANAIMO — RCMP are continuing their efforts to find the car and driver responsible for a hit and run accident here early Wednesday morning. A police spokesman said that an unidentified woman required hospital treatment to cuts and bruises after she was struck down by a car on Selby Street at about 5 a.m. Wednesday.

Lawyer contests trial committal

A Victoria lawyer said Thursday he will go to B.C. Supreme Court this month in an attempt to upset a provincial court order for a higher-court trial of his client on a Combines Investigation Act charge.

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood said he would seek a writ of certiorari on the grounds that there was no evidence on which to base the order, and that he was refused permission to cross-examine a material witness.

Judge Harold Alder ruled Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court that Nick Lapshinoff of Victoria, Gary Ernest Willis of the Delta area and Golden Products Canada Ltd. must face higher-court trial on a six-count Combines Investigation Act charge.

The ruling came at the end of a three-day preliminary hearing where Owen-Flood represented Willis, Peter Freeman appeared for Lapshinoff, the company was not represented and Barry Mahming was prosecutor.

All six counts charged misleading advertising by the company was published in 1972 and 1973 in Victoria newspapers in an attempt to obtain executives.

Lapshinoff and the company faced four counts while Willis and the company faced two. Both men no longer are associated with the company.

Prosecutor Mahming was conducting his final prosecution for the federal government. He is expected to move to Victoria from Vancouver later this month to join the staff of regional prosecutor J. W. Anderson.

'Car adviser' faces closure

Greg Smith may be forced to close his car buyers' consulting firm because Victoria City Police think he's a car dealer and the city itself insists he is not.

Smith, who opened Westland Automobile Consumer Consultants in a Douglas Street office earlier this week, told the Colonist Thursday he may be forced to close his doors because no one seems really sure what kind of business he is trying to operate.

Victoria City Police called at the office Wednesday, Smith said, and told him they had decided — after receiving numerous complaints — that he was operating as a car dealer without a licence and without posting the $5,000 bond dealers are required to deposit before going into business.

They advised him to cease operations until he got a dealer's licence, he said, or he would be prosecuted.

But at city hall, Smith said, he was told he wasn't a dealer and the city wouldn't license him as such, since he did not intend to operate a car lot.

The city has indicated it is willing to license him as an adviser to car buyers, Smith said, which is exactly what he was trying to do in the first place, before police arrived and told him he couldn't

Smith said Thursday he expects to meet later today with city officials to discuss his business and its licensing.

'B.C. forest industry needn't fear takeover'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Barrett says the forest industry in British Columbia doesn't need to fear a takeover by the provincial government, but it might as well get used to being in the same market place.

Barrett was defending his government's purchase of forest-related industries in a question session at the annual commerce faculty banquet at the University of British Columbia.

We won't go back –Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford pledged Thursday night that American forces "will not go back" to Indochina but asked Congress to give Cambodia the supplies it needs to withstand communist - backed insurgents until peace can be negotiated.

Ford appealed to Congress to approve the $222 million in military aid he has asked for Cambodia, whose capital Phnom Penh is surrounded by attacking rebel troops.

Earlier a congressman just back from Southeast Asia said "the war is lost in Cambodia," and a colleague urged the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government to surrender.

Ford gave three reasons why Congress should approve the aid:

- "Humanitarian needs," including protecting the lives of Lon Nol supporters.
- Protecting the legitimacy of negotiation to settle dispute.
- The constancy of American commitment to its friends and allies.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian government task force plunged into swamplands surrounding Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport Thursday in a desperate counter offensive seeking to push back rebel gunners and keep open the capital's only supply line.

Rebel forces forced a temporary halt of the U.S. rice-and-ammunition airlift Wednesday. Only a limited number of flights were resumed Thursday.

In Washington, the U.S. state department denied Thursday that the U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh had ordered the evacuation of any Americans from Cambodia.

Dolphins lead men to free trapped kin

MOSCOW (UPI) — A school of dolphins sought and got aid from Black Sea fishermen to save the life of a baby dolphin, according to the newspaper Trud. The dolphins surrounded the fishermen's boat, then began swimming in a specific direction. The fishermen followed until they reached a marker buoy and found a young dolphin entangled in a fishing net.

They freed the dolphin and the school of dolphins accompanied the boat back to its original location, apparently as a gesture of gratitude, the newspaper said.

'Mood in Israel is ugly'

But nation feels impotent amid peace try

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

TEL AVIV — Israel's leadership senses that American objections preclude any immediate retaliation against terrorist bases following the battle of the Savoy Hotel here, informed offficial sources said Thursday.

Seven Arab commandos died in the battle Thursday morning and an eigth was captured about noon, military sources reported. Losses on the Israeli side were placed at seven killed (four civilians and three soldiers) and 19 persons wounded.

U.S. opposition to a counterattack on bases in Arab countries takes precedence in the Jerusalem leadership's eyes over the need to meet the demand by Israeli public opinion for revenge, the sources said, one of them adding:

"The mood in Israel is ugly."

Premier Yitzham Rabin took pains to say that the terrorist attack on Israel's largest city would not be allowed to jeopardize U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace mission in the Middle East.

Earlier in the day, the cabinet met in extraordinary session and issued a communique which said the commando raid "was timed for a political purpose — to foil any chance of progress for a political settlement through negotiations."

The cabinet declared, however, that terrorist activity would not "move the government from its policy of political efforts for progress towards peace."

Jerusalem's political leaders think that an Israeli raid now on a terrorist stronghold in an Arab country would almost certainly ruin the Kissinger mission, the official source told The Los Angeles Times. He knew of no direct U.S. warning, but added that it was unnecessary.

The impotent position Israel is now in will likely hurt Rabin's already slipping popularity. A public opinion poll in late February reported that the prime minister's popularity had gone down from 64.8 per cent in September, 1974, to 32.2 per cent now. Rabin is strongly supporting the Kissinger approach.

On hand during the critical hours of the siege of the Savoy Hotel were Rabin, Defence Minister Shimon Peres and Chief of Staff Mordichai

Casa Loma agreement void—Grit

Charges that the transaction between the provincial government and Casa Loma motel in Burnaby was "completely illegal" were made in the Legislature Thursday, and quickly denied by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

Allan Williams (L—Vancouver-Howe Sound), the man who touched off the Columbia River Treaty furor on Feb. 19, made the charge during debate on a motion of non-confidence in the government's $3.2 billion budget.

Williams
. . . B.C. 'entrapped'

Macdonald
. . . 'wrecking crew'

Directing his attack at Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, absent from the house at the time, Williams said Nicolson had permitted the government "to become entrapped in an agreement it should not be entrapped in."

Casa Loma, a 125-unit motel on Kingsway, is in process of being purchased by the government for $3.5 million for use as a senior citizen residence.

The government has already admitted that in the initial stages of the deal Casa Loma owners were advanced $565,000 as a down payment on the $3.5 million.

Nicolson earlier tabled a memorandum of agreement in the Legislature which contained details of the transaction.

Williams said the entire agreement was predicated on the government's Dunhill Development Corp. obtaining rezoning approval from Burnaby municipal council in order to use the motel for its senior citizen role.

Burnaby council to date has rejected the rezoning bid.

Williams said that meant the agreement on which the government had already advanced more than half-a-million dollars was completely void.

He said the government had illegally issued the advance on an agreement "that was inoperative until Burnaby council agreed to rezone the property" and that, he said, is something Burnaby council yet has to do.

Much of the money, Williams claimed, was used by Casa Loma to pay off a mortgage against another company also owned by the Casa Loma owners. "It is now beyond the reach of the government," he said.

Williams also claimed the mortgage against the Casa Loma property was registered illegally and that, unless the government could extricate itself from "this mess" by scrapping the present agreement, it could end up picking up the entire bill but without the property.

In addition to what Williams described as a terrible performance by Nicolson and Dunhill, he said there were more bills to come as Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. had insisted the development be brought up to strict CMHC standards.

A manufacturing first

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and mail says that for the first time the average hourly earnings of workers in Canada's manufacturing industries have surpassed those of their United States counterparts.

The newspaper says the American workers made 41 cents an hour more than Canadians in December, 1967, but by December, 1974, Canadian workers were getting nine cents an hour more.

The preliminary figure for Canada is $4.73 an hour, compared with the U.S. figure of $4.64, it says, adding that the averages are for gross earnings and include overtime and shift differentials.

The Globe and Mail refers to comparisons made in July, 1974, by Canada Labor Views Reports which show the average Canadian earnings to be higher in four sectors.

In a month when the U.S. average for all manufacturing was six cents more than the Canadian figure, the Canadian average for paper and allied industries was 65 cents higher than the U.S. figure, the newspaper says.

The Canadian average for textile products was 15 cents higher, for metal fabricating nine cents and or rubber products two cents.

$100,000 ransom frees five

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — A bank manager paid $100,000 ransom Thursday to two masked men who held members of his family captive at gunpoint for almost 10 hours in their home in nearby Orsainville, Que., and then fled.

Quebec Provincial Police said the two armed extortionists burst into the home of Andre Bernier, manager of a Provincial Bank branch here, about 10 p.m. Wednesday.

They kept Bernier, his 35-year-old wife Danielle, their daughters Linda, 13, and France, 7, and an aunt, Regine Menard, 55, captive until the bank opened Thursday morning.

Dental patient got wrong drill

The cast of characters was properly assembled in downtown Victoria at about 11 a.m. Thursday. The backstage people were in their places. The props were where they should have been.

The only trouble was nobody remembered to tell the police what it was all about.

As a result, a Victoria police report said a woman in a dentist's office at View and Douglas phoned headquarters to report she had heard screams and looked outside to see a young woman being dragged into a car, which left the scene rapidly.

But not so rapidly that she didn't get the licence number. Police traced the owner, who said his 17-year-old son had the car. The son said the "kidnapping" was being filmed as a school project.

The son was cautioned that no such films should be made without police being notified.

Police discover fourth skeleton

SEATTLE (AP) — King County police said Thursday they had found and identified skeletal remains of a fourth person in the fifth day of searching a heavily wooded area east of Seattle.

Police said the latest remains found have been identified as those of Linda Ann Healy, 21, a University of Washington co-ed missing since Feb. 1, 1974.

Police used dental charts to identify the remains of Miss Healy, who was the first of several women reported missing in the Puget Sound area in 1974.

Police have found two skulls and parts of two others in the wooded area 23 miles east of Seattle.

The remains of Brenda Carol Ball, 22, of Burien, were identified by police Tuesday. She had been missing since June 1, 1974, when she was last seen at a Seattle tavern.

Police said identification of one of the partial skulls would be difficult because the teeth are missing. Efforts are continuing to match dental charts with the second skull.

However, Dale Rancourt of Anchorage, Alaska, said earlier that authorities told him they tentatively had identified the remains of the second skull as being his daughter's.

The area where the remains were found is within a five-mile radius of where the skeletal remains of Denise Naslund, 18, of Seattle and Janice Ott, 23, of Issaquah were found last September.

Mrs. Ott and Miss Naslund disappeared July 14, 1974, from Lake Sammamish State Park, about 15 miles east of Seattle.

Sima's touch is sure

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — Sima Gorelenko wants to win about $5,000 in the next Olympic lottery, and she just may.

After all, she has won money in every Olympic lottery draw so far — eight winners out of 18 tickets. Seven of the tickets were worth $100 each and one $5,000.

Her luck is so incredible that fellow workers at the Kaufman Footwear Inc. plant here hoped some would run off on them. They asked her to join them in purchasing five tickets on the draw last month, which she did.

But she bought four tickets of her own.

Her Olympic Lottery luck began with the first two tickets she bought for the April draw last year.

She sensed before the draw that she would win the $5,000 and she did. Then came seven other winners.

A mathematics professor at the University of Waterloo says the odds on her luck are about one in 19 billion.

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

● Oil, gas directors see some help. Page 7

A six-man delegation from the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines came away from meetings Thursday with the NDP cabinet and Mines Minister Leo Nimsick "much encouraged" by the government's attitude to mining and hopeful of changes in mining and tax laws.

In a brief presented to the cabinet the chamber asked the government to provide security of tenure to the discoverers and developers of new mines in the province.

The chamber has 1,800 individual and corporate members, including prospectors, placer miners, exploration companies and producing mines as well as people and firms engaged in a wide variety of related equipment-supply-service businesses.

The brief asks that "a mine finder have an assured right to develop and mine a discovery with security of tenure, subject to compliances with the rules and regulations governing extraction."

The brief also asks that the rights and obligations of the private sector of the mining industry and of the government be clearly defined and that mine developers receive a fair return on investment as well as the return of capital.

It reminds the government that no new mines have started up in the province since 1972 and that many existing mines are curtailing their operations or closing down.

"We are very much encouraged by the government's attitude," said Robert Sheldon of Vancouver, chamber president, in an interview Thursday afternoon. "They seem to recognize that mining is dead and have asked us for our recommendations to remedy the situation.

"We talked of fundamental changes, changes which they probably didn't think were as important as we do but we came away believing they are concerned with the health of the mining industry.

"There was no dispute in our meeting with the cabinet," Sheldon added.

He said the group met the cabinet Thursday morning "and they were prepared to accept our concern with regard to technical and other aspects of the industry."

"In recouping itself from this mess, the government has to bring these units up to CMHC standards or it won't get a penny," Williams said.

"This is the kind of action we get."

CMHC is withholding $3.1 million in mortgage funds, 90 per cent of the total cost, "until certain problems are resolved."

It was left to Macdonald to close the debate on the non-confidence motion and he did so with a scathing attack on Wiilams' charges and the opposition in general.

"The rezoning clause was built into the agreement to protect the crown," Macdonald said. "If by the 31st of May we haven't got the rezoning, we get our money back. The money is secured by mortgage and we get it back plus 12 per cent interest."

The attorney-general said the rezoning issue had been introduced as a red herring "by the wrecking crew. But you won't succeed," he shouted over opposition heckling.

Macdonald said the Casa Loma issue was not a legal problem. "It's a political battle for homes for senior citizens. Let's get that wrecking gang out of the way and get on with building."

Earlier in the day, during question period, Nicolson had come under fire on the same issue.

He was asked by Don Phillips (SC — South Peace River) if he could reassure the house that "no work was done on other premises and charged to Casa Loma" accounts.

Phillips said Wednesday that he had a copy of work orders proving that work had been done on the homes of the original owners of the motel and charged to the main construction account.

Phillips was eventually ruled out of order when it was established the work orders were issued prior to government involvement.

Williams had other questions.

He wanted to know on what date Burnaby council informed Nicolson that Casa Loma had been rezoned to make the senior citizen centre possible.

Nicolson said he would take the question "as notice," meaning he will consider providing a reply later.

Besieged man dies in blaze

LESLIEVILLE, Alta. (CP) — A house in which an armed man was holed up near this community, about 35 miles northwest of Red Deer, burned to the ground Thursday afternoon and the body of an elderly man was found in the burned-out wreckage.

Red Deer coroner Dr. R. C. Cooper was at the scene and the cornoner's office in Red Deer confirmed a death in the incident.

RCMP became involved in the incident when an order for the removal of the man was issued under the Mental Health Act as a result of sporadic shooting during the weekend. Gunfire erupted from the house when police arrived Tuesday and the building was cordoned off.

Military assistance in the form of an armored personnel carrier and two helicopters arrived to assist the RCMP in approaching the house. Efforts to flush the man out with tear gas failed.

ANYTIME the discussion turns to today's teaching methods, today's rules of school conduct, I try to keep a barf bag handy. Being of the old geezer belief that schools should be strong advocates of manners, respect and a few other now frowned-upon niceties, I am usually appalled at the permissive attitudes that have afflicted both the school system and far too many parents who have abdicated their disciplinary roles.

There is, however, a light at the end of the tunnel, a new concept that is, in actuality, nothing but old time schooling. A revival, a return to basics and if you'll keep your hands down for a few moments, I'll report on what is taking place in California.

IN PASADENA they've got a school called the John Marshall Fundamental School. The school board that set it up and the teachers who man it, quite openly admit they are part of a conservative revolt against permissive experimental schools with open classrooms, controversial textbooks, new math, no grades, no dress code and weak discipline.

In this school, they begin the school day with 10 to 15 minutes of character building. They have discussions on morality, on pride, respect, patriotism and politeness. And all students (the school goes from kindergarten through Grade 12) and teachers must be neatly dressed. Oh yes, if they step out of line, they can be paddled right on the spot.

THE CURRICULUM itself is concerned to a great degree with the basics. Phonetics, reading, writing, spelling, fundamental math. Yes, they have tests and they are given marks and if they don't pass the tests, no advancement to the next grade. Those at John Marshall Foundation feel the experimenters in school work have caused a "mad dash to illiteracy" and hope to reverse the trend.

Now the way they set this school up was on a strictly voluntary basis — both from a pupil as well as a teacher standpoint. They have had absolutely no problem getting teachers and, in fact, have a waiting list of teachers.

THAT WAITING LIST is considerably greater with pupils. At last tally, there were 1,500 students hoping to be accepted, but there seemed little chance that too many of them would get the chance, because those already enrolled seem to want to stay. In the first year of operation, only 20 students transferred back to the regular-type schools and only six have asked for transfers in this school term.

Dr. Henry Myers, Jr., is the guiding light behind the project and he says it was no great feat establishing the school. "I feel," he told a Los Angeles reporter, "like the guy who nudged a snowball off a cliff." He points to a school in Palo Alto that has gone the same route and how parents tented on the school grounds the night before enrollment opened and that all classroom spots were filled in 10 minutes.

THE IDEA is spreading. Three such schools are scheduled for opening in Maryland, one is in operation in Charlotte, North Carolina, and they're discussing the plan in West Virginia, Wisconsin and Virginia.

Myers has received more than 1,000 queries on the school and has entertained delegations from such places as London, Eng., Winnipeg and Vancouver.

"It's not some right-wing, military program where we teach kids to march and salute. We've just gone back to really teaching them and discipline is a key."

MYERS AGREES it is tough at John Marshall. He says students must be neat and clean, no litter. He disclaims any credit for a fair amounts of homework right from kindergarten days. He says the school must be kept clean, no litter. Hedisc laims any credit for a new idea, stating instead that what they are doing is merely applying the teaching concepts of 20 or 30 years ago and that there are basic truths about discipline, about learning by rote, not "osmosis."

How well will students from the fundamental school do when they come in direct competition from those in the regular school system?

MRS. SUSAN MILLS, a member of the Pasadena school board, says she is concerned for the students not getting the proper basics.

"It bothers me a great deal," she said, "because many children in experimental schools now lack basic skills. I think students who have competed in the traditional schools will swamp them."

I suggest we might have a parallel in our own area. The private schools, like Brentwood, Shawnigan Lake, are run on traditionalist education theories and the rate of teaching success at such schools is considerably higher than in our public school system. Don't argue — the results are there for all to see.

Anyone for traditional schools here?

Israel

Gur. "They were calling the shots," a military source said.

It was their decision to storm the four-story structure early Thursday.

However, a terrorist inside the building touched off explosives that demolished the third floor of the structure, causing one of the exterior walls to collapse.

Nobody could say definitely how many persons were inside the hotel when the Arabs invaded it shortly after landing Wednesday night and shooting their way from the beach to the nearby hotel. Military intelligence director Shlomo Gazit estimated that there were 10 hostages taken in the hotel, but he hedged on this number because apparently two persons hid in the hotel without being discovered by the Arabs.

The battle reduced the hotel to a crumbling heap of brick and plaster with one entire corner sheared away.

The Israeli navy Thursday detained a 150-ton sailing vessel suspected of being the vehicle that transported the two outboard dingies and eight terrorists close enough to the Tel Aviv coastline to shove off.

Information from the surviving commando, captured in the ruins of the Savoy nearly seven hours after his comrades had been killed, will fill in many of the gaps in what authorities know about the raiders, their origin and planning, said intelligence chief Gazit.

At a press conference, Gazit had no apologies for the government's policy of refusing to negotiate with terrorists, no matter how many hostages they hold.

"There was dialogue with them, but not really negotiation. We did offer them only one thing, and that was unconditional surrender," said the general.

"We have a policy that we don't believe in negotiating on that kind of blackmail basis with terrorists. If you release 10 prisoners now, the next time they will say please get out of Tel Aviv," said Gazit.

Your good health

By G. C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has emphysema, and we live about a block from a lake. He wondered if we moved away if this would help him.

There are about six other men here by the lake who have it. What is your opinion —E.H.V.

It is doubtful that the humidity produced by the lake has any effect on emphysema. The nature of emphysema is such that victims often grope for any factor that they suspect makes breathing more difficult.

It seems logical that simply taking a vacation away from the lake to a dry area would indicate to your husband whether or not the lake is or is not a factor, though it is doubtful.

Bomb kills Protestant

BELFAST (UPI) — A Protestant delivery man was killed Thursday when his booby-trapped car exploded as he attempted to start it. Edward Clayton, 27, touched off the ignition-wired bomb in front of his home on the fringe of a predominantly-Roman Catholic area of Portadown, about 20 miles southwest of Belfast.

SEX VS. MARRIAGE?

What part does sex have in the breakup of a marriage? It's a complicated question. But there's no doubt that today's liberated attitude toward sex has led to unreal expectations and a "tyranny of performance". News around the Island

Recreation conference starts in Duncan

DUNCAN — The Vancouver Island recreation conference to be held here this weekend is expected to draw delegates from all over the Island

The conference which is co-hosted by the Cowichan Valley Region Board and the Community Recreation Branch of the provincial government, is open to laymen and professionals who are connected with recreation on the Island.

Registrations begin at 6 p.m. today, at the Village Green Inn. Delegates may also register between 8:30 and 9 a.m. Saturday.

Guest speakers will be Dr. E. J. Tyler, head of psychology department at Brandon University, and Joslyn Kobylka, faculty of physical education at the University of British Columbia.

COURTENAY — A group of concerned senior citizens, interested in developing low rental housing units and a recreational complex on Anderton Avenue, has decided to look for another piece of property for the project, city council was told this week.

The Anderton Avenue property is privately owned, and last week council held a public hearing to hear objections to a proposal by a Comox builder to erect a 20-unit condominium and a 23-apartment block on the property.

However, the senior citizens say the property, located near the downtown area, is better suited for housing for senior citizens and additional recreational facilities.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Saturday and March 15 have been scheduled as dates for boys and girls who want to register for minor softball this season.

Registrations will be accepted in the Teen Room of the Community Hall between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Gordie MacDonald, umpire-in-chief of the B.C. Amateur softball association, will conduct an umpires' clinic April 12 at Cedar school gymnasium.

COURTENAY — North Okanagan MLA Pat Jordan will be guest speaker at dinner meeting March 15 at the Mexicana Motor Inn of the Comox Social Credit Association.

Mrs. Jordan, a former minister without portfolio, will meet with local constituents to discuss their problems prior to the meeting.

□

NANAIMO — Inspector D. J. Webster, officer in charge off Nanaimo RCMP detachment, said Wednesday he has "no reason to believe Gabriola Island will not be policed by RCMP again this summer."

For the past two years, Nanaimo RCMP has supplied one man to police the island during the busy summer months.

Webster said any change in the plan will involve both finances and manpower availability, and will be a decision made by his superiors in Victoria.

A petition is being signed on the island asking for full-time policing for the island's 1,200 permanent residents. It is not known yet how many signatures are on the petition.

COURTENAY — Grants totalling $5,439 a month have been awarded local groups under the community programs division of the human resources department.

A sum of $3,019 a month has been alloted to the family counselling — Crises Line of Campbell River, $1,755 to Courtenay Crossroads Crises and Information Centre, and $665 a month to North Island Family Life Centre.

NANAIMO — Donna Carol Ellis, 20, of Chase River, Wednesday was sentenced to nine months in jail after pleading guilty to theft under $200.

Police said the woman was apprehended by a store employee after she took a bag of money from another employee in Eaton's store in Nanaimo Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Stanley Wardill said he levied the heavy penalty because of a previous criminal record. He noted too, that Miss Ellis is wanted by police in Victoria.

COURTENAY — Irving Guttman and Jacob Hamm will head the Courtenay Youth Music Camp from July 7 to Aug. 10.

A limited number of students will be accepted for the program's specialized courses in all aspects of vocal training and opera production.

Auditions will be arranged throughout Canada upon receipt of applications. A limited number of scholarships are available, but mature students should apply to Canada Council, 151 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

Fees, including room and board, are $500.

□

COURTENAY — There was a slight decrease in the number of births in the upper Island health unit area last year with 1,042 births compared with 1,054 the previous year.

In 1972 the number was 1,014, while 909 births were recorded in 1971.

The Campbell River, Gold River, Tahsis areas accounted for 461 of the new arrivals last year, with Comox reporting 385 and Port Hardy, Alert Bay and Port Alice accounting for 196 births.

SEE THE AMC PACER TODAY. INSIDE. OUTSIDE. THE WIDE SMALL CAR.

INSIDE.

That gives you an idea of how much room there is inside this unique small car. Yet the Pacer will take up just a little more parking length than a Super Beetle.

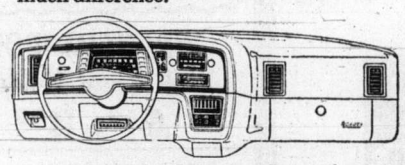

Safety: Panoramic visibility.

The view from inside the Pacer gives you a wonderful sense of spaciousness. You and your passengers see just about everything. Blind spots are largely eliminated. Wait till you see how this feature makes reversing so much easier. The incredible stability and handling really helps here too.

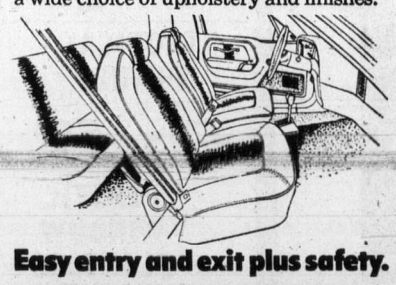

Roominess plus comfort.

Four full-grown adults can sit comfortably. There's lots of legroom front and back. No need to push the front seats way forward. In actual fact, if you check the inside space of the Pacer against most big cars, you won't find much difference.

Feels good. Looks good.

You don't just get room and comfort. You'll like the appointments too. The dash is clean, easy to read. There's a wide choice of upholstery and finishes.

Easy entry and exit plus safety.

The driver's door is wide and high. And we've even made the passenger door almost four inches wider than the driver's. So it should be easier for everyone to get in and out. The unique Pacer design incorporates a rollbar-like roof for your protection.

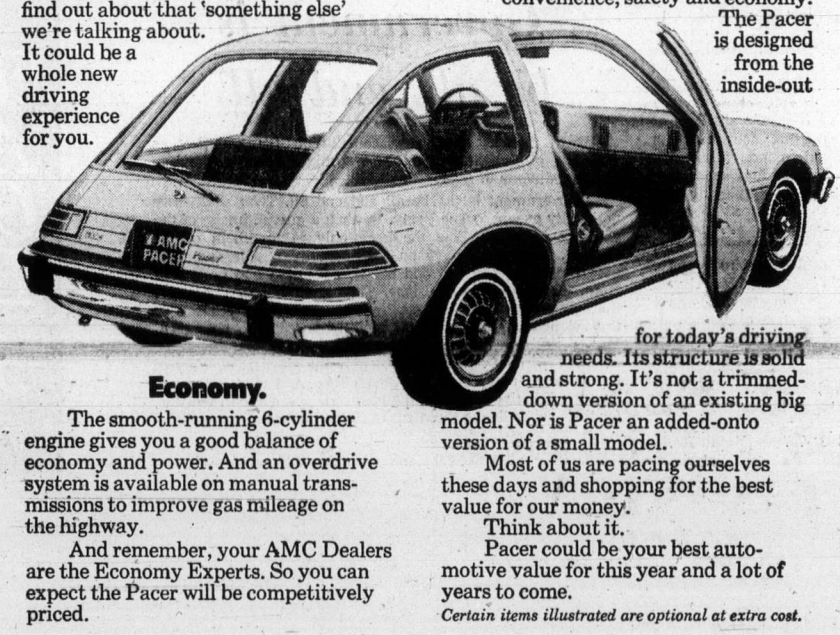

OUTSIDE.

Safety: You can even get a rear window wiper/washer system.

That's only one of the options that you can get with the Pacer. A rear window defogger is another. Your AMC Dealer can deliver a Pacer with almost any accessory you might want.

Safety: The stable ride that's something else.

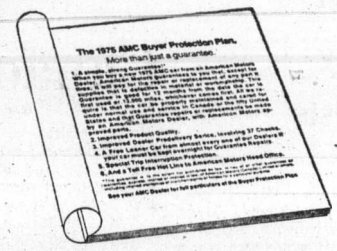

The wide look and stance tells you about it. But get behind the wheel and try it. That's really when you'll find out about that 'something else' we're talking about. It could be a whole new driving experience for you.

Economy.

The smooth-running 6-cylinder engine gives you a good balance of economy and power. And an overdrive system is available on manual transmissions to improve gas mileage on the highway.

And remember, your AMC Dealers are the Economy Experts. So you can expect the Pacer will be competitively priced.

AMC Buyer Protection Plan.

With over four years in the design and building, the Pacer has more than convenience, safety and economy. The Pacer is designed from the inside-out for today's driving needs. Its structure is solid and strong. It's not a trimmed-down version of an existing big model. Nor is Pacer an added-onto version of a small model.

Most of us are pacing ourselves these days and shopping for the best value for our money.

Pacer could be your best automotive value for this year and a lot of years to come.

Sawmill site dredging begins

Dredging equipment moved into Cowichan Bay to former Slegg sawmill site, now owned by Doman Industries Ltd. Doman was given permission on March 4 to re-open sawmill under tight environmental controls. Dredging is to be confined to company property, with fisheries and marine service establishing times zones in which dredging can be carried out to minimize spread of silt.

Village hospital board rejects political discrimination charge

By BILL SMITH
Colonist Correspondent

CUMBERLAND — There have been no political implications in the selection of a construction management firm to oversee the building of a $2 million hospital here.

The statement came Thursday from the Cumberland hospital board, after a second charge of political discrimination was made Thursday.

She said her husband, 35 years in the construction industry, 16 of them as general superintendent with Piggott Construction in Eastern Canada, met "with a fate similar" to that related by Storrie earlier this week.

Storrie, whose son Kevin is seeking the Comox riding Social Credit nomination, has charged there was political discrimination in selection of a construction management firm to oversee the new $2 million project.

Mrs. Evans said she thought her husband was turned down "because of my deep association with the Comox Valley concerned citizens group."

The charge came shortly after an emergency meeting of the hospital board, called to draft a reply to Storrie's discrimination charge.

In a prepared statement, board president Henry Watson said the building committee was not directly involved in the original selection of nine firms from the list of 20 submitted. This selection was done by the board's architect and B.C. health insurance officials.

However, Watson said, the board thinks this selection "was done in good faith and was free of any political implications.

"The final selection of firms invited to bid on the proposal was made by the board, however, no attempt was made to put pressure on the board by any group."

Watson said Comox MLA Karen Sanford had not, at any time, tried to influence or pressure the board in its construction policies.

He also said the hospital building committee will be called upon to make decisions regarding subcontractors for the building, and these decisions will be based on procedures openly outlined by B.C.H.I.S. officials and the merits of the lowest bidder.

"As an individual Storrie is entitled to express his own feelings and opinions on the case but these are not shared by the hospital board," Watson said.

COURTENAY — The father of an 18-year-old girl who was awarded $1,100,000 general damages in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria Wednesday for accident injuries, said later he doubted the sum would be paid.

Robert Lissell, of Courtenay, father of Corrine Rhonda Lissell, who was paralysed from the waist down and in her left arm after the motorcycle on which she was a passenger collided with a car in 1972, was quoted as saying "the award is there but it's nothing like it looks like. The insurance isn't there."

He didn't know how much insurance money is available but "I wouldn't be surprised if it's the minimum" of $50,000 for each of the defendants.

"We are not looking any further," he said.

The award is believed the second highest personal damage award ever made in the Commonwealth. On Jan. 24 in Prince George, Gary Thornton, 19, was awarded $1.5 million for paralysis suffered when he broke his neck in a school gymnasium.

Transport Minister Robert Strachan said Thursday the Insurance Corporation of B.C. is looking at the possibility of raising minimum liability coverage.

"But even if we raised it to $100,000 we still couldn't cover that kind of claim," he said when asked about the court award.

Strachan said he personally has $300,000 basic liability coverage and his advice to drivers is to pay the additional few dollars to get more than the standard $50,000 liability.

The jury found negligence on the part of both the motorcycle operator, Randy David Cox, now a 23-year-old sawmill worker in Williams Lake, and car driver Henry Paul, now 39, a logger living near Alert Bay.

Cox was assessed 95 per cent at fault owing to insufficient caution, inexperience, speed and lack of appreciation that three vehicles he was overtaking were slowing to turn.

The car driver was assessed 5 per cent at fault because the jury was not satisfied he looked back with sufficient care to ascertain the road was clear to make the left-turn into a driveway on a straight stretch of road between Courtenay and Comox on the sunny June day when the accident occurred.

The court, presided over by Mr. Justice James Macdonald, was not told the extent of the public liability insurance held by the motorcyclist and the car driver.

Rodney Taylor of Victoria was counsel for the girl, who attended the three-day hearing, and her father, who is assistant manager of the Courtenay Legion branch. George Kincaid of Vancouver appeared for Paul and L. S. G. Finch, also of Vancouver, for Cox.

Tsitika wilderness hearing

Mount Waddington board backs logging companies

By NEVILLE SHANKS
Colonist Correspondent

PORT McNEILL — Mount Waddington regional board is supporting two logging companies in their demand that limited and controlled logging be permitted in the Tsitika-Schoen Lake moratorium area.

The 310,000-acre area extends from the east coast of Vancouver Island at the mouth of the Tsitika River to a point close to Gold river. The last unlogged watershed on Vancouver Island, it was closed to logging two years ago to allow a study of its various potentials to be made by a group headed by Howard Paish.

The study group's recommendations are being presented to public meetings in Port McNeill, Sayward, Campbell River and Nanaimo.

"If the company had known the tree farm licence was not going to be honored by the government, we would have cut that timber years ago," Owen Hennigar, north Island manager of Canadian Forest Products, told a special meeting of the regional district board Monday night.

CFP and MacMillan Bloedel are the companies which will be most seriously affected by decisions made in regard to the moratorium area.

Hennigar said that when CFP's tree farm licence was granted in 1960, privately-owned timber incorporated in the licence exceeded 70 per cent of the value of the total inventory. In the Tsitika area, the licence includes 1,200,000 cunits of timber (a cunit is 100 cubic feet) purchased by the company in the early 1940s as special timber licences.

"In addition to the purchase price of the timber, the company has paid annual rentals, fire protection taxes, and land taxes over the years to ensure that a perpetual supply of timber could be harvested," Hennigar said. "There would have to be substantial compensation if such lands were withdrawn from the tree farm licence."

A B.C. Hydro transmission line, the new North Island Highway and a few service industries have already taken 2,000 acres from the tree farm licence, Hennigar said, and Mount Cain regional park, a Tsitika reserve and a proposed Schoen Lake park would reduce the annual cut by 31,000 cunits.

"This far exceeds any logical withdrawals of land provided for under the terms and conditions of the forest management licence," he said. "Such extensive deletions would negate the company's objectives of continuing to operate all of its logging facilities and manufacturing plants; therefore many employees would be laid off."

Basing its activities on the terms of its tree farm licence which would be seriously disrupted by major changes, the company has invested more than $42 million in its operations in the area, Hennigar said. Taking timber from lands included in the moratorium area would provide employment for 400 people and generate an annual payroll of $5½ million.

CFP has proposed a 28-year logging plan which, it says, would open the area for recreational purposes through the roads that would be built. At the same time, extensive areas of standing timber would be left to protect streams and provide sheltered areas and migration routes for animals.

Curtailment of logging activity in the area would have an even more drastic effect on MacMillan Bloedel's operations, Jim Trebett, of Nanaimo, the company's regional manager, told the district meeting.

"Unless industrial forestry is to begin in that area, it spells death to Sayward," Trebett said.

MB has recommended that the area under sttudy be managed under a multiple resource plan, with the primary emphasis on timber production. The company wants an immediate start, with studies of the lower Tsitika River with completion within 10 years, while the main valley is undisturbed, along with assessment of ecological reserves it has proposed at Tsitika Lake and Mount Derby.

It has also called for co-operation between the company and the provincial government in a program of logging research with special emphasis on protection of fragile sites, and reduction of environmental impact through the use of new logging systems.

The regional directors agreed that logging should be allowed to take place in the area on a carefully controlled basis, firmly supporting the stand taken by the two companies.

They showed particular concern that any delay in reaching a decision on the moratorium area might stall construction of the North Island Highway, originally scheduled for completion in 1977.

The second hearing on the Tsitika-Schoen area study will be held tonight at Sayward; the third in Campbell River all day Saturday; and the fourth and last scheduled in Nanaimo March 14.

Chemainus dam

Province to conduct 'full' investigation

The provincial government will make a "full and comprehensive" investigation of alternative water supply sources for North Cowichan, Resources Minister Robert Williams announced Thursday.

Williams, in his capacity as chairman of the cabinet's environment and land use committee, said the committee's earlier decision to permit the damming of the Chemainus River depended on no other adequate or feasible alternative being available.

"However," Williams continued, "it is clear from a preliminary examination of the situation that there has not been a careful, comprehensive and full engineering and technical investigation to establish the basic facts of the case."

The committee's decision to ask for an engineering investigation does not mean it has arrived at any conclusions, he said.

It is simply a recognition that insufficient technical information is available for either the public or the committee to make a fair decision, he added.

"We know that we will need further engineering information," Williams said. "We could have waited until the public hearings were concluded before we asked for investigations to be undertaken, but this would have been a needless waste of time and an attempt to show decisive action as a result of the public hearings. We still intend to hold hearings and hear views but we will do so knowing that some of the technical answers will also be worked on."

Vancouver picked for trial

NANAIMO — A change of venue was granted in British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday for three men charged with attempted murder and escaping custody after an incident in Nanaimo last November.

Trial now is scheduled Monday in Vancouver for Claire Wilson, 19, Ricky Dale Beeman, 24, and Robert Moyse, 19. The trial was originally scheduled to be held in Nanaimo.

The men escaped from Cassidy Airport, south of Nanaimo, on Nov. 27, while en route to Vancouver. They had appeared in Nanaimo court on drug charges They were recaptured after a running gun battle with police.

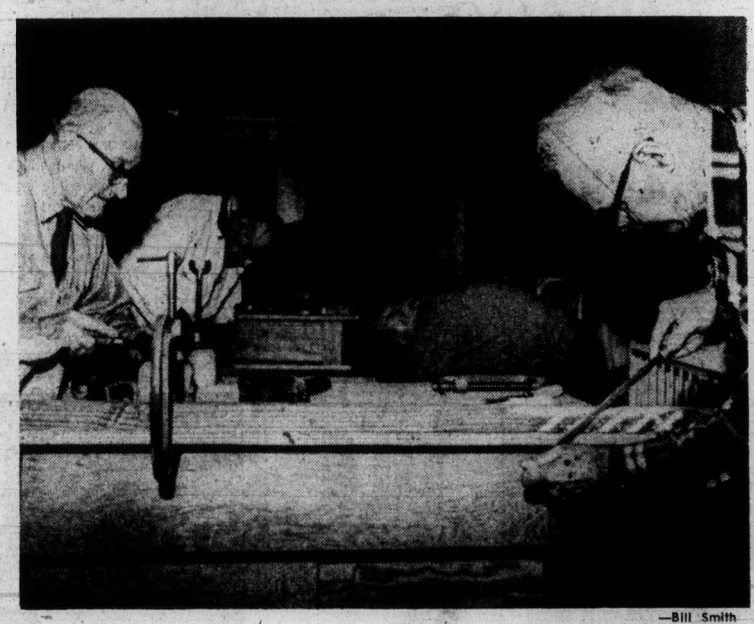

Juniors want seniors back

DUNCAN — The majority of junior high school students have supported a parents' action committee in their attempt to have senior secondary eduction returned to this town.

In a poll of the 300 students at Ladysmith junior high school, 191 said they would rather attend senior high school in Ladysmith than Nanaimo, where it is now located.

The parents' committee, which wants a local high school, say having it in Ladysmith will foster a better student-teacher relationship.

Nanaimo school board moved the senior students to the Nanaimo district secondary school a few years ago because the board felt they would have a wider variety of courses available.

—Bill Smith

GEORGE KING, left, and Harry Hooper both of Courtenay, are members of the new carpentry class being operated as part of the senior citizens recreation program in Courtenay. Course is so successful that similar program will start next week in Comox.

Bennett denies 'don't expand' charges

Herb Doman, president of Doman Industries, will not comment on a charge made by Transportation Minister Robert Strachan that Opposition Leader William Bennett had urged him not to expand his sawmill operation.

A spokesman for Doman said Thursday in Duncan that Doman was aware of the reference made to him in the Legislature but does not wish to comment.

Strachan asked in the Legislature Wednesday during a confidence motion, "To how many businessmen has the leader of the opposition suggested not to expand at this time?"

Strachan then cited Doman, of Doman Industries, which is expanding its sawmill at Cowichan Bay.

"You came to him and suggested it was the wrong time to be making announcements of that kind of expansion — that's why I asked you the question," shouted Strachan.

"I am not lying," replied Strachan. "Take it up with Herbie."

Outside the house, Strachan told reporters: "Herbie Doman told me the leader of the opposition said to him his announcement of expanding was inappropriate timing ..."

Bennett said any charge of advising businessmen not to expand was untrue and that he ended every meeting by urging confidence in B.C. among his listeners and to continue investing despite the NDP government.

Cranston misses

Volkov, silver medalist in last year's championships in Munich, and Vladimir Kovalev gave the Soviet Union a one-two finish in the event while John Curry of Britain finished third and Toller Cranston of Toronto came fourth.

After building a lead in the compulsory figures, Volkov skated conservatively but without mistake in the short program Wednesday and the free-skating Thursday to finish with 13 ordinals and 231.35 points. Kovalev had 27 ordinals and 228 points, Curry had 23 ordinals and 229.92 points and Cranston had 29 ordinals and 228.69 points, slipping one notch from his Munich finish.

In the women's event, United States-born Dianne de Leeuw of the Netherlands takes a comfortable margin into the free-skating, final portion of the competition. The 19-year-old blonde Californian, who holds dual citizenship and had to go to Holland in 1971 in order to qualify for the world championships, appears to have the title in her grasp after finishing third last year.

Miss de Leeuw has nine ordinals and 125.68 points. Runner-up Kath Malmberg of the U.S. has 26.5 ordinals and 120.70 points and Isadel Denavarre of West Germany is in third place with 38 ordinals and 118.78 points.

Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa, the 18-year-old Canadian champion, made up for a disappointing 13th in the compulsory figures Tuesday with a strong short program to move up to seventh place in the overall standings.

Christine Errath of East Germany, the defending champion, moved up from sixth to fourth after the short program but is given no chance of catching Miss de Leeuw.

Kim Alletson, 16-year-old Canadian silver medalist who skates out of the Minto club with Miss Nightingale, received respectable marks for her short program to move up a notch to 13th place.

In the dance competition, Natalia Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov of the Soviet Union lead but the next three couples are extremely close. Canadian-champions Barbara Berezowski and David Porter of Toronto are in ninth place while Toronto's Susan Carscallen and Eric Gillies are in 12th place.

WHA honors Howe by renaming cup

SAN DIEGO — THE World Hockey Association's most valuable player cup is going to be re-named the Gordie Howe Cup, league-president Dennis Murphy announced Thursday night in ceremonies honoring the hockey great.

Howe, in his 27th season in pro hockey, will retire after this year. The announcement was made in ceremonies before the Houston Aeros-San Diego Mariners game won by the Mariners, 7-4.

Howe is in his second season with the Aeros after spending 25 seasons with Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League. He plays on the club with his two sons, Mark and Marty.

Mariners blew a 4-1 lead but Wayne Rivers broke a 4-4 tie with a goal early in the third period and added his 47th goal of the season five minutes later.

Andre Lacroix, the inaugural WHA scoring champion two seasons ago, collected two assists in the victory to extend his record-setting points streak to 27 straight games. The assists gave him 106 points, boosting the centre one point ahead of Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets in the scoring race.

The win gave Mariners the season series over the defending playoff champions, 5-1.

HOUSTON (4) — Gord Labossier (10th), Frank Hughes (38th), Rich Preston (20th), Andre Hinse (34th); SAN DIEGO (7) — Ray Adduono (12th, 13th), Wayne Rivers (46th, 47th), Mike Laughton (3rd), Gene Peacosh (33rd), Rick Sentes (25th). Attendance 7232.

John Lauvaas of Hotel Douglas averaged 18.7 points per game to capture the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball Leauge scoring championship.

Defending-champion Jim Cunningham of Stevens Interiors scored a league-high 435 points, but played two more games than Lauvaas, who scored 412, and tied with Charlie Hunter of James bay for second in scoring with an 18.1 points per game.

UVic ponders speech school

Establishment of a school of speech and hearing sciences at the University of Victoria was recommended Wednesday by a special committee of UVic senate.

After objections from some senators to the lack of overall planning for expansion of academic programs, the senate expressed general support for the proposal but declined to make a commitment until further discussion has taken place.

As outlined by the committee, the new school would prepare students for careers in treating speech and hearing defects and would initially serve about 25 students a year in a four-year program.

Estimated expenses would be $757,000 in initial capital costs and $332,000 in annual operating costs.

The committee reported that, at present, the only speech and hearing schools west of Ontario are at the University of Alberta and the University of British Columbia.

'Talking' books

The collection includes unabridged novels, biographies, history and poetry.

Each book has an average of seven standard cassettes which may be played on any cassette player. The library does not provide players.

We won't go back –Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford pledged Thursday night that American forces "will not go back" to Indochina but asked Congress to give Cambodia the supplies it needs to withstand communist - backed insurgents until peace can be negotiated.

Ford appealed to Congress to approve the $222 million in military aid he has asked for Cambodia, whose capital Phnom Penh is surrounded by attacking rebel troops.

Earlier a congressman just back from Southeast Asia said "the war is lost in Cambodia," and a colleague urged the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government to surrender.

Ford gave three reasons why Congress should approve the aid:

- "Humanitarian needs," including protecting the lives of Lon Nol supporters.
- Protecting the legitimacy of negotiation to settle dispute.
- The constancy of American commitment to its friends and allies.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian government task force plunged into swamplands surrounding Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport Thursday in a desperate counter offensive seeking to push back rebel gunners and keep open the capital's only supply line.

Rebel forces forced a temporary halt of the U.S. rice-and-ammunition airlift Wednesday. Only a limited number of flights were resumed Thursday.

In Washington, the U.S. state department denied Thursday that the U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh had ordered the evacuation of any Americans from Cambodia.

Dolphins lead men to free trapped kin

MOSCOW (UPI) — A school of dolphins sought and got aid from Black Sea fishermen to save the life of a baby dolphin, according to the newspaper Trud. The dolphins surrounded the fishermen's boat, then began swimming in a specific direction. The fishermen followed until they reached a marker buoy and found a young dolphin entangled in a fishing net.

They freed the dolphin and the school of dolphins accompanied the boat back to its original location, apparently as a gesture of gratitude, the newspaper said.

'Mood in Israel is ugly'

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

Nation feels impotent amid peace try

TEL AVIV — Israel's leadership senses that American objections preclude any immediate retaliation against terrorist bases following the battle of the Savoy Hotel here, informed offficial sources said Thursday.

Seven Arab commandos died in the battle Thursday morning and an eigth was captured about noon, military sources reported. Losses on the Israeli side were placed at seven killed (four civilians and three soldiers) and 19 persons wounded.

U.S. opposition to a counterattack on bases in Arab countries takes precedence in the Jerusalem leadership's eyes over the need to meet the demand by Israeli public opinion for revenge, the sources said, one of them adding:

Premier Yitzhak Rabin took pains to say that the terrorist attack on Israel's largest city would not be allowed to jeopardize U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace mission in the Middle East.

Earlier in the day, the cabinet met in extraordinary session and issued a communique which said the commando raid "was timed for a political purpose — to foil any chance of progress for a political settlement through negotiations."

The cabinet declared, however, that terrorist activity would not "move the government from its policy of political efforts for progress towards peace."

Jerusalem's political leaders think that an Israeli raid now on a terrorist stronghold in an Arab country would almost certainly ruin the Kissinger mission, the official source told The Los Angeles Times. He knew of no direct U.S. warning, but added that it was unnecessary.

The impotent position Israel is now in will likely hurt Rabin's already slipping popularity. A public opinion poll in late February reported that the prime minister's popularity had gone down from 64.8 per cent in September, 1974, to 32.2 per cent now. Rabin is strongly supporting the Kissinger approach.

On hand during the critical hours of the siege of the Savoy Hotel were Rabin, Defence Minister Shimon Peres and Chief of Staff Mordechai Gur. "They were calling the shots," a military source said.

It was their decision to storm the four-story structure early Thursday.

However, a terrorist inside the building touched off explosives that demolished the third floor of the structure,

Casa Loma agreement void—Grit

Charges that the transaction between the provincial government and Casa Loma motel in Burnaby was "completely illegal" were made in the Legislature Thursday, and quickly denied by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

Allan Williams (L—Vancouver-Howe Sound), the man who touched off the Columbia River Treaty furor on Feb. 19, made the charge during debate on a motion of non-confidence in the government's $3.2 billion budget.

Williams
. . . B.C. 'entrapped'

Macdonald

Directing his attack at Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, absent from the house at the time, Williams said Nicolson had permitted the government "to become entrapped in an agreement it should not be entrapped in."

Casa Loma, a 125-unit motel on Kingsway, is in process of being purchased by the government for $3.5 million for use as a senior citizen residence.

The government has already admitted that in the initial stages of the deal Casa Loma owners were advanced $565,000 as a down payment on the $3.5 million.

Williams said the entire agreement was predicated on the government's Dunhill Development Corp. obtaining rezoning approval from Burnaby municipal council in order to use the motel for its senior citizen role.

Burnaby council to date has rejected the rezoning bid.

Williams said that meant the agreement on which the government had already advanced more than half-a-million dollars was completely void.

He said the government had illegally issued the advance on an agreement "that was inoperative until Burnaby council agreed to rezone the property" and that, he said, is something Burnaby council yet has to do.

Much of the money, Williams claimed, was used by Casa Loma to pay off a mortgage against another company also owned by the Casa Loma owners. "It is now beyond the reach of the government," he said.

Williams also claimed the mortgage against the Casa Loma property was registered illegally and that, unless the government could extricate itself from "this mess" by scrapping the present agreement, it could end up picking up the entire bill but without the property.

In addition to what Williams described as a terrible performance by Nicolson and Dunhill, he said there were more bills to come as Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. had insisted the development be brought up to strict CMHC standards.

A manufacturing first

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and mail says that for the first time the average hourly earnings of workers in Canada's manufacturing industries have surpassed those of their United States counterparts.

The newspaper says the American workers made 41 cents an hour more than Canadians in December, 1967, but by December, 1974, Canadian workers were getting nine cents an hour more.

The preliminary figure for Canada is $4.73 an hour, compared with the U.S. figure of $4.64, it says, adding that the averages are for gross earnings and include overtime and shift differentials.

The Globe and Mail refers to comparisons made in July, 1974, by Canada Labor Views Reports which show the average Canadian earnings to be higher in four sectors.

In a month when the U.S. average for all manufacturing was six cents more than the Canadian figure, the Canadian average for paper and allied industries was 65 cents higher than the U.S. figure, the newspaper says.

$100,000 ransom frees five

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — A bank manager paid $100,000 ransom Thursday to two masked men who held members of his family captive at gunpoint for almost 10 hours in their home in nearby Ossainville, Que., and then fled.

Quebec Provincial Police said the two armed extortionists burst into the home of Andre Bernier, manager of a Provincial Bank branch here, about 10 p.m. Wednesday.

They kept Bernier, his 35-year-old wife Danielle, their daughters Linda, 13, and France, 7, and an aunt, Regine Menard, 55, captive until the bank opened Thursday morning.

Filmsy excuse for a crime

The cast of characters was properly assembled in downtown Victoria at about 11 a.m. Thursday. The backstage people were in their places. The props were where they should have been.

The only trouble was nobody remembered to tell the police what it was all about.

As a result, a Victoria police report said a woman in a dentist's office at View and Douglas phoned headquarters to report she had heard screams and looked outside to see a young woman being dragged into a car, which left the scene rapidly.

But not so rapidly that she didn't get the licence number. Police traced the owner, who said his 17-year-old son had the car. The son said the "kidnapping" was being filmed as a school project.

The son was cautioned that no such films should be made without police being notified.

Police discover fourth skeleton

SEATTLE (AP) — King County police said Thursday they had found and identified skeletal remains of a fourth person in the fifth day of searching a heavily wooded area east of Seattle.

Police said the latest remains found have been identified as those of Linda Ann Healy, 21, a University of Washington co-ed missing since Feb. 1, 1974.

Police used dental charts to identify the remains of Miss Healy, who was the first of several women reported missing in the Puget Sound area in 1974.

Police have found two skulls and parts of two others in the wooded area 23 miles east of Seattle.

The remains of Brenda Carol Ball, 22, of Burien, were identified by police Tuesday. She had been missing since June 1, 1974, when she was last seen at a Seattle tavern.

Police said identification of one of the partial skulls would be difficult because the teeth are missing. Efforts are continuing to match dental charts with the second skull.

However, Dale Rancourt of Anchorage, Alaska, said earlier that authorities told him they tentatively had identified the remains of the second skull as being his daughter's.

The area where the remains were found is within a five-mile radius of where the skeletal remains of Denise Naslund, 18, of Seattle and Janice Ott, 23, of Issaquah were found last September.

Mrs. Ott and Miss Naslund disappeared July 14, 1974, from Lake Sammamish State Park, about 15 miles east of Seattle.

Sima's touch is sure

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — Sima Gorelenko wants to win about $5,000 in the next Olympic lottery, and she just may.

After all, she has won money in every Olympic lottery draw so far — eight winners out of 18 tickets. Seven of the tickets were worth $100 each and one $5,000.

Her luck is so incredible that fellow workers at the Kaufman Footwear Inc. plant here hoped some would rub off on them. They asked her to join them in purchasing five tickets on the draw last month, which she did.

But she bought four tickets of her own.

Three of her four won $100 each. None of the five jointly-owned tickets was a winner.

Her Olympic Lottery luck began with the first two tickets she bought for the April draw last year.

She sensed before the draw that she would win the $5,000 — and she did. Then came seven other winners.

A mathematics professor at the University of Waterloo says the odds on her luck are about one in 19 billion.

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

● Oil, gas directors see some help. Page 7

A six-man delegation from the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines came away from meetings Thursday with the NDP cabinet and Mines Minister Leo Nimsick "much encouraged" by the government's attitude to mining and hopeful of changes in mining and tax laws.

In a brief presented to the cabinet the chamber asked the government to provide security of tenure to the discoverers and developers of new mines in the province.

The chamber has 1,800 individual and corporate members, including prospectors, placer miners, exploration companies and producing mines as well as people and firms engaged in a wide variety of related equipment-supply-service businesses.

The brief asks that "a mine finder have an assured right to develop and mine a discovery with security of tenure, subject to compliances with the rules and regulations governing extraction."

The brief also asks that the rights and obligations of the private sector of the mining industry and of the government be clearly defined and that mine developers receive a fair return on investment as well as the return of capital.

It reminds the government that no new mines have started up in the province since 1972 and that many existing mines are curtailing their operations or closing down.

"We are very much encouraged by the government's attitude," said Robert Sheldon of Vancouver, chamber president, in an interview Thursday afternoon. "They seem to recognize that mining is dead and have asked us for our recommendations to remedy the situation.

"We talked of fundamental changes, changes which they probably didn't think were as important as we do but we came away believing they are concerned with the health of the mining industry.

"There was no dispute in our meeting with the cabinet," Sheldon added.

He said the group met the cabinet Thursday morning "and they were prepared to accept our concern with regard to technical and other aspects of the industry."

New housing funds ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) announced Thursday it is ready to invest up to $200 million in construction of moderately-priced rental accommodation.

An urban affairs department news release said Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson will seek proposals from builders this week.

Maximum incomes for tenants entering the accommodation would be limited to four times the rent. Intent is for rents to be below market rates or, in high-cost areas, to be at market rates for comparable accommodation.

Builders will have until April 30 to submit proposals, a CMHC spokesman said. Construction would begin this summer.

The program is expected to provide accommodation for more than 8,000 families.

"Rents ... will be set between CMHC and the owner of a project and will be based on the size of the units ... services ... financing terms offered," the news release said.

"Selected proposals will be financed by loans under the National Housing Act, which enables CMHC to provide financing up to 95 per cent of costs at ... 8 per cent interest."

OPEC decree

West must help

ALGIERS (UPI) — Leaders of the world's oil producing nations Thursday ended their first summit meeting by proposing a conditional freeze on oil prices, linking the cost of oil to the cost of industrial imports from Western nations.

But such a freeze, they added, would depend on Western agreement to reform the world monetary system to protect the oil nations' bank accounts and investments abroad and to give massive development aid to the Third World.

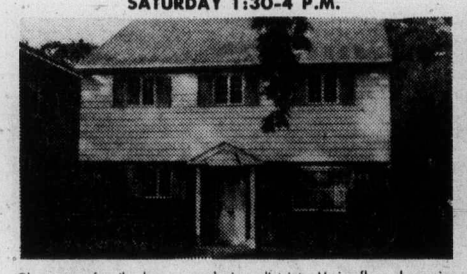

The 13 kings, presidents and sheikhs of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said any freeze must be linked to inflation, so the price of oil would go up as their imports from the west became more expensive. But they left open whether OPEC would demand oil price increases equal to the full rate of inflation, or only part of it.

A final 14-point "solemn declaration" ending the three-day summit said the member nations "ensured (oil) supplies that will meet the essential requirements" of industrial nations. But it threatened joint "measures" — presumably including an oil embargo — against any nations committing "aggression, economic or military", against any OPEC member.

Iraq, Iran agree

ALGIERS (UPI) — Iraq and Iran Thursday signed a surprise agreement engineered by Algerian President Houari Boumedienne to seek a "final and lasting solution' 'to their long-standing territorial disputes. The agreement opens the Shatt Al-Arab estuary leading to Iran's big Abadan oil refinery to free navigation by Iranian tankers. In return, it was indicated that Iran would close its northern borders with Iraq to Kurdish rebels.

Exhaust limits eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced Wednesday a one-year suspension of automobile anti-pollution standards previously due to take effect with 1977 models.

At the same time, Russell Train, EPA administrator, changed present standards to interim standards to remain in effect through the 1977 model year, but with some tightening of nitrogen oxide controls.

Train also proposed a new auto emission standard to control sulphuric acid emissions beginning with 1979 models.

And, as expected, he proposed further intermediate emission standards, leading up to the imposition in 1982 of the standards originally scheduled for 1977. Such additional delay will require congressional authorization.

Train also said the EPA will try to tighten its regulations to control hydrocarbon emissions from paints, solvents, dry-cleaning liquids, and refineries.

First quarter

Doman optimistic

DUNCAN — The figures may have been down but the optimism was evident Thursday at Doman Industries when the results of the first quarter of the current fiscal year were announced.

President Herb Doman said that sales for the quarter ending Jan. 31 were $7.57 million compared to $10.68 million in the same period of 1974. Net earnings were $246,000 this year against $941,000 last. However, compared to the fourth quarter results of 1974, the net earnings were a vast improvement on the $85,000 that was the result last Oct. 31.

The president said that the shock of the energy crisis has been partially absorbed, interest rates are falling and mortgage money is becoming available.

He said the Chemainus plant is on one shift, the Vancouver mill has changed over from pulp chips to lumber production and on two shifts and the main producer, at Ladysmith, is now on a three-shift basis.

The company said that when the new mill at Cowichan Bay gets into production late this year its initial annual production of 125 million board feet will bring the company's capacity to 360 million board feet.

Dispute throttles building work, CUPE tells city

The general construction industry in the Greater Victoria area is "slowly grinding to a halt" because of the six-week-old strike and lockout of municipal employees, union spokesmen said Thursday.

"Builders cannot get permits and inspections and are concerned about the legality of the work they are now doing," three members of Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 388 (Victoria inside workers) said in a letter to the city's acting mayor, Ald. Alf Hood.

The letter was signed by Dennis Burke, Frank Preston and Jim Nelms, members of the CUPE local's negotiating committee, and was written at the instruction of the local's executive.

It did not deal with specific negotiations, but was written to "underline the general deterioration of services and relationships in the community."

The three gave as examples of that deterioration the cutbacks — of "about 75 per cent" — in Farmer Construction's Old Town renewal program.

They also said B.C. Hydro's gas division had laid off many of its construction crews since the strike-lockout began Jan. 27.

But the deterioration of services was not their only concern, the negotiators said.

"The loyalty and co-operation between council and civic employees, enjoyed by yourself and your colleagues over the years, (also) seems to be rapidly deteriorating," they said in their letter.

Hood — who is acting as the city's chief administrative officer while Mayor Peter Pollen holidays in Hawaii — was elected on a platform of continued development in the city, the three men said, as were most aldermen.

The continuing strike-lockout was making the attainment of promises made during the election an impossibility, the union said.

As a result, "taxpayers, long-term employees and, indeed, newer employees find your inactivity in this matter hard to understand, and your silence concerns us deeply."

The negotiators said the wage offers put forward so far by the city would "put us among the lowest paid public employees in the general area."

"The city," they added, "will not reap any benefit or receive any bargain from paying substandard wages," as such action would affect "quality of staff and standards of work."

The letter to Hood came the same day a member of CUPE Local 333, representing the Esquimalt civic staff, told reporters that union members affected by the strike-lockout who had applied for welfare were given aid but then cut off.

Hector Whitcomb said he had been given full benefits for himself and his family for two weeks.

Then the social assistance office reviewed the situation and stopped payments, Whitcomb said, explaining it did not want to be involved in the area-wide dispute.

Whitcomb said he knew of five or six other CUPE members who had applied for benefits after being locked out.

Some of them, he said, had received at least partial benefits.

Earlier, Greater Victoria School Board spokesman Bill Stavdal told reporters most classes at Lampson School had been dismissed early Thursday, because of a lack of heating at the school.

Only grade 1 and 2 classes continued until noon Thursday, he said, with all other students being sent home at 10 a.m.

Boil it, water users advised

Analysis of tap water from a house on the west side of the lake has shown a high degree of pollution, according to regional medical health officer Dr. A. F. Arnell, and any water for drinking should be brought to the boil before consumption.

However, he said, it is impossible to pinpoint the source of pollution.

"We are in the situation where we say any lake with habitation on it has some pollution and should not be used as a water supply," said Arneil.

He said he does not see boiling of water as anything but a temporary solution to the Florence Lake problem.

"Obviously, people are not going to go on indefinitely boiling every spot of water before they drink it or clean their teeth or anything," he said. "The only solution is extension of the Victoria water supply to that side of the lake."

Latest tests, he said, showed that at present the water is safe for swimming but not patable.

Unique in Canada

Wobbly-legged, fuzzy-coated American spotted ass foal, born last week, has joined first herd of its kind to be imported to Canada, at donkey farm at 5450 Rocky Point Road, Pedder Bay. Mrs. Edelgard Schalke, who had donkeys as domestic pets when she was a child in Germany, imported one jack and three jennies from Chicago in 1973.

Americans wait with sleek ship for Seattle run

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

The lineup of those awaiting a provincial decision on whether the ferry Princess Marguerite will fly under government flag has been joined by three U.S. businessmen.

The Americans, who are forming a company called Victorian Ship Inc., have a sleek 20-knot vessel they want to put into service on the Victoria-Seattle run in Many.

But so far they haven't got Inner Harbor berthing space — and they won't operate the run if the B.C. government goes ahead with the Marguerite.

510 patrons

Their ferry, the 165-foot Avalon, now sailing between southern California and Mexico, is licensed to carry 510 foot passengers but doesn't ship cars.

But both Tom Orr of Long Beach and Seattle's Lynn Campbell, co-owners with a third U.S. businessman of the Avalon, said Thursday that if the government was to reopen the Marguerite service, withdrawn last fall by Canadian Pacific Ltd., there would be no point in them operating their service.

Package deal

The province is believed to be negotiating a package deal with CP and its real estate subsidiary, Marathon Realty, to buy not only the Marguerite but also Marathon's 10-acre Inner Harbor property.

But both Transport Minister Robert Strachan and Resources Minister Robert Williams would give no indication Thursday of when a decision would be reached on the transaction.

Orr told the Colonist the province in January had turned down his group's invitation to buy into the Avalon service.

And so the group — which has CP berthing space in Seattle committed to it — started to investigate the possibility of docking at the Black Ball terminal in the Inner Harbor.

Black Ball

Black Ball went along with the idea as there would be no apparent conflict of sailing schedules with its own ferry service.

But Orr said Thursday his investigation showed it was not "economically feasible" to modify the terminal to accommodate the Avalon's foot passengers.

Orr's latest scheme is to get permission for a floating berth fronting the harbor seawall, with the Avalon docking parallel to Black Ball's Coho ferry.

Orr said the Causeway's Imperial Esso service station could perhaps act as a customs shed to process passengers from the U.S.

Murmurs

The Avalon, however, has raised murmurs from Don Nixon who manages the local tourist promotional and information bureau on the Causeway.

Nixon hopes the prospect of such a venture will not cause the province to change its change its mind about buying the Marguerite, which with the carrying capacity of up to 2,000 passengers brought some 16,500 cars to Victoria last year.

He maintains the Marguerite "is the only answer" and that the Avalon would be acceptable only as an additional service.

His views are echoed by bureau president Terry Farmer who points out that without the car-carrying capability of the Marguerite, there will be intolerable lineups at the Island's Black Ball and Swartz Bay terminals.

Ald. William Tindall, a director of the tourist bureau, says the Avalon run would be better than nothing. "Half a loaf is better than none."

Tindall notes that even if the Marguerite service were to be reopened by the government, it's a "little late" as far as Victoria's tourist business is concerned.

"The government is in the driver's seat on this thing," said Tindall, who feels the province is using the Marguerite as a "lever" to acquire the Marathon site at a reasonable price.

The 10-acre site has been the subject of price-haggling for 18 months.

On the verge

In August, 1973, the city announced it was on the verge of concluding a deal with Marathon Realty — at a price of about $1.2 million — but at that point the provincial government stepped in and took over negotiations with the company.

Meanwhile, Orr maintains there is "no way" that the Marguerite or similar ship can be operated at a profit.

Even if the government takes over the ship, it would be unlikely it could be put into operation by the start of the summer tourist season.

As far as the Avalon is concerned, said Orr, "we have to have some answers or we have to disregard this particular route."

Local flavor

The Avalon would then be recommitted to her California-Mexico route.

If the Avalon went into service it would be renamed — to give local flavor — and the cost for a single passenger round-trip fare would be about $16.80.

The CP fare had been $14 in the last 1974 season of operation.

CP blamed soaring fuel expenses, inflation and manpower costs for the Marguerite's discontinuance. The vessel required a 95-man crew and was steam-powered.

The Avalon, powered by four gas turbines, needs only a seven-man crew, including only two union members.

The six-year-old ship, complete with luxury features, could probably add Victoria-Port Angeles runs during the five-hour layover period, and would operate between May and the end of September.

Island girl given $1.1 million award

An 18-year-old Courtenay girl was awarded $1.1 million general damages in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria on Wednesday, believed the highest award in the Commonwealth for injuries received in a traffic accident.

Corrine Rhonda Lissell was paralysed in a motorcycle accident in 1972. The operator of the motorcycle on which Miss Lissell was a passenger was Randy David Cox, 23, now a sawmill worker at Williams Lake.

The injury found both Cox and Paul negligent. Cox was found 95 per cent at fault and Paul 5 per cent.

'Workers want place in sun just as do businessmen'

British Columbia is in for a rough year of labor negotiations, the president of one of the province's largest union locals told an audience of about 150 self-confessed "devout capitalists" at The Empress Thursday.

Workers in the province — for the most part — have yet to catch up with inflation and are going to demand wage settlements to do that, Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver Labor Council and the International Woodworkers of America local based in that city, told a meeting of Victoria Rotary club.

Thompson told the Rotarians they didn't seem to understand that "we want the same thing you want," to live comfortably in "one of the richest areas of the world."

He said the average wage of a federal mint worker in Ottawa (mint workers recently settled a lengthy strike against the government) was about $4 an hour, adding such a wage was "a disgrace . . . in this day and age."

A similar situation exists on the municipal level in British Columbia, Thompson said, where most workers get an average of a little more than $4.50 an hour.

Base rate in his own industry now stands at $5.25 an hour, he said, and that was the lowest wage in the forest industry — "most make more."

"Businessmen want their place in the sun and working people are now going to insist on their place in the sun," he said.

"Labor doesn't want strikes . . . we're the ones who go short on groceries in a strike."

But, he added, workers have shown they're not afraid to strike if they need to, because strikes pay off in higher wages.

"I don't know of any other way for working people to get a just share of the wealth they create than our present system," the union president said.

He said the living wages his own union's members are now paid "weren't given to us because they (the companies) liked us, or because they wanted to pay them; they were squeezed out of them."

Check at border 'only suggestion'

Canadian bus drivers crossing into the United States at Blaine, Wash., do not have to produce fingerprint and photographic identification before being admitted to the U.S.

MP Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) told the Colonist Thursday, in a telephone interview from Ottawa, that photographs and fingerprints of Canadian bus drivers were only a suggestion, not a regulation.

Munro said this kind of identification has not been demanded at any other border crossing.

Doug MacGregor, a driver with Vancouver Island Coach Lines said this week he was informed last weekend by U.S. customs officials at Blaine that "the next time you must supply us with a photograph and be fingerprinted."

To prevent fires

Seal off hotel, owner ordered

Fire escapes were removed from the Drake Hotel Thursday to prevent any more fires.

Victoria fire department, which has put out three mattress fires in the unoccupied building in the last two weeks, ordered the owner to seal off the hotel and rip down the escapes.

Part-owner Victoria Ald. Sam Bawlf said the escapes enabled transients, who were looking for a place to have a "good party," to get into the building.

The alderman and developer has plans to restore 10 brick tenements backing on the Government Street liquor store, and owns other property on the block which includes the Drake Hotel.

He said crews removed fire escapes from five of the tenements, but left them on five which are still occupied.

Tanker issue on agenda

Passage of oil tankers through Juan de Fuca Strait and Puget Sound will be discussed at a Canada—U.S. conference on energy in Washington on March 18. Senators Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson of Washington state, both Democrats, said Thursday they have had assurances that the tanker issue will be raised.

Bridge tourney weekend set

Victoria's unit of the American Contract Bridge League will hold its 18th sectional tournament at The Empress this weekend.

There will be women's pairs, men's pairs, open pairs, masters and non-masters' pairs and a two session Swiss team event Sunday.

Court won't quash murder charge

An application to have a Victoria murder charge declared a legal nullity was denied Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Judge William Ostler and the lawyer who made the bid indicated later he might take the matter to a higher court.

The legal argument provided the high point in a morning session which saw two persons appear before Ostler on separate charges of murder punishable by life imprisonment.

The appearances of Larry Lovell, 20, of CFB Naden, and Edward Robert Nicholet, 21, of 1345 Pandora, were credited with bringing out one of the largest crowds in history at 633 Fisgard. The spectators' section was filled and 45 persons were standing as court began at 10 a.m.

Lovell, facing a two-count charge in the murders of two women Sept. 6 in an Esquimalt store, was the first to appear and said only six words during his brief hearing.

Prosecutor C. W. Vause said Vancouver lawyer-alderman Harry Rankin had been retained to defend Lovell and had asked for a one-week remand so a psychiatric examination could be held.

Lovell said, "Yes sir" twice when Ostler asked if he understood and agreed. The remand was set at first to March 13 but Lovell was called back moments later when Vause said it should have been March 14. Asked again if he agreed, Lovell repeated, "Yes sir."

A few minutes later Nicholet was called on a charge laid after the drowning Saturday of his wife Patricia, 18.

Victoria lawyer Ted Pollard, appointed by Legal Aid to defend Nicholet, applied immediately to have the charge declared a nullity and called lawyer Robert Monaghan, who had appeared as Legal Aid duty counsel when Nicholet was charged Monday afternoon.

Monaghan testified he had seen the typed charge just before it was read to Nicholet and it was not signed by a justice of the peace as all charges must be.

Ostler asked if Monaghan had told the court of the apparent defect and the lawyer replied he "took the position" his job was to instruct Nicholet on basic procedures, not the merits of the charge. They would be left to the lawyer chosen by Legal Aid.

Vause said the document now had the proper signature and added that "we don't know at what point it was unsworn . . . and anyway, the matter can be resolved by a new information (charge)."

Denying the application, Ostler said the charge had the required signature and was "good on its face." If it was unsworn Monday, he said, Monaghan allowed Nicholet to be remanded in custody "on an information that he himself felt at the time was a nullity."

Pollard said outside court he was considering an application in a higher court next week to continue his campaign against the charge.

Sources said the charge was signed by a justice of the peace Monday after Monaghan saw it but before it was read. Even if a higher court rules it a nullity, they said, a new document can be drawn up containing the same charge against Nicholet.

The mandatory preliminary hearing in the case was set by Ostler for June 10 and 11 but indications later were the date would be changed because of unavailability of police witnesses.

Pollard said he would go to a higher court next week to seek release of Nicholet on bail.
